In Memoriam.

It pleased God to take from our midst Sister Verna Todd, Sept. 19, 1907. She would have been twenty-four years old in October. She leaves a father, mother, sister and a host of relatives and friends to mourn for her. How sad is the broken home! She has been called to that home where no traveler ever returns. A noble Christian girl has gone, but God needed one more jewel. We know not why God would call away one who was so much needed in this world, but the Master has said, "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." So we bow in humble submission to his divine will knowing that he doeth all things well. She has gone to behold the King in all his beauty. Only those who have had the same experience can realize the desolation wrought in the home and hearts by her death. Never will her dear lips greet loved ones again in this world, but we hope in some brighter, sweeter climate to receive her greeting again. "Farewell dear father, mother and sister I will strive to meet you in heaven," and though we shed the tears of love the consolation is given us that she is happy now, her soul is safe in heaven.

Sister Verna Todd belonged to the Baptist church at Shady Grove. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. T. C. Carter, of Marion, Thursday at 11 o'clock and they were very impressive. A large crowd of sorrowing relatives and friends were present. She was laid to rest in the Shady Grove cemetery to await the resurrection morn.

Though God in his own good wisdom has seen best to take her from us, we read in his blessed word that God is wise and good and just in his judgment, and that the righteous are the Lord's portion, and that if our earthly tabernacle was dissolved we have a building of God not made with hands eternal in the Heavens. Then why should we weep, for if we live right some day we will clasp hands with our loved ones on the other shore.

Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

If you will allow me space in the columns of your valuable paper, I will once more try and give the readers of the RECORD-PRESS a few items from Fort Leavenworth, which may prove of interest to some.

We are now drilling from three to four hours a day preparing for a trip to St. Joseph, Missouri, at which place we will go for the opening of the Carnival, which opens September 23rd. The 18th Infantry will give an exhibition drill which at present is causing a great deal of hard work for the men of the 18th Infantry, we will remain at St. Joseph for 3 days returning to Fort Leavenworth, September the 28th, and then the work will begin, preparing for a long and wearisome journey for the Philippine Islands for which the 18th Infantry will proceed by rail for San Francisco, Cal., arriving about Oct. 4th, and from that Port will embark on the United States Army Transport Sheridan en route for the Philippine Islands sailing about October 7th, and will go by the way of the Hawaiian Islands which is about 7 days sail from San Francisco and at which Port we will coal up, being there for a period of three days which will give the boys an opportunity to visit the city of Honolulu.

The next stop after leaving Honolulu, will be Nagasaki Japan, we will lay there for a period of 2 days, giving the boys in blue a chance to visit the most important places of that city which the majority of them never had. I myself, had the pleasure of visiting both the former cities several times before, but there are always something new to be seen in a foreign country which proves to be of interest to any one.

We will leave Fort Leavenworth over the Santa Fe R. R., going through the following States, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and California, and will give the boys of the 18th Infantry an opportunity of seeing a great deal of the western country.

I shall keep the data of my voyage across the Pacific and if any of the RECORD-PRESS think that it will prove of interest to them they may receive same by addressing "Burt E. Woody," Company D, 18th Infantry, Manila, P. I.

I shall take this means of bidding my friends and loved ones good-bye, wishing them much happiness and the worlds success.

Coal, Iron and the Ohio.

In press discussions of the imperative necessity for the improvement of inland waterways, it is a deserved tribute to the entire Ohio Valley Improvement Association cited as an example of what concentrated effort can do, and the press and the industrial and commercial organizations of the Ohio Valley hold up as illustrating the value of cordial and earnest support of the great work of improvement of the Ohio.

The Ohio River is the only river in the country which carries tonnage from source to mouth. There is no river in the country equaling it in tonnage, nor is there any river comparing with it in possibilities of tonnage on completion of the Nine Foot Stage. In a recent editorial the New Orleans Picayune well said that "Coal and iron are the two most important minerals used by man and as iron cannot be put in any usable form except by the aid of heat, which means the combustion of coal, it follows that coal is more important than iron." The question of the value of the Ohio is stated in that paragraph. By no other means save at prohibitory railway rates of freight, can the South procure its iron or its coal. No States in the Union can compare with Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana or Illinois in the production of coal and of iron—nor with any one of them nor with their capacity to supply not only the States of the South but all States.

The value of the Ohio, though stated in the paragraph quoted, is thus emphasized by the Picayune: "Not a steamboat is plying between New Orleans and St. Louis, or even between Memphis and New Orleans, where the water is deep enough for all craft except the great ocean steamers, yet there is no such falling off in traffic on the Ohio" and that "About the only freight that comes to us from the Mississippi is coal which is shipped all the way from Pittsburgh."

Such is the Ohio River—unquestionably the river of greatest value to the trade and commerce of the entire country, the feeder of the South and the Southwest and the greatest feeder of all to the Panama Canal. If there is no falling off in traffic on the unimproved Ohio, and there is not, what would its tonnage be and what would be the extent of the beneficial effect of the improved Ohio on each and every interest in the Ohio Valley? It cannot be estimated. But with unity of action the improvement can be accomplished.

"For Mother's Sake," which is billed to appear at the Opera House Oct. 11, is highly spoken of by the press throughout the country. The stage settings are said to be magnificent, the story thrilling and pathetic and the comedy plentiful and varied.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE Makes Kidneys and Bladder Right

An Animal Story For Little Folks

MORE THAN SPOT COULD STAND

Spot would not pull the wagon for the two little girls.

"Never mind," said Ethel, "I know how we can make him go. Let's tie a tin can to his tail. Brother Tom makes dogs run by tying cans to their tails."

A tin can was found and tied on. Both little girls got in the wagon and by pulling at the lines finally got old Spot to his feet. The dog heard a strange rattling behind him. He turned to one side to see what it was and the can slammed against the wagon on the other side.

Then Spot began to run. The faster he ran the louder the tin can rattled.

SPOT BEGAN TO RUN.

The little girls screamed and pulled on the lines, but there was no stopping Spot.

They saw a gentleman coming up the street. "Oh, papa," Daisy cried, "stop him—stop Spot! We'll be killed."

Daisy's papa stopped the runaway. Then he asked, "Why, little daughter, what's this you've tied to Spot's tail?"

Both little girls were crying. "It is just a tin can we tied to his tail 'cause he wouldn't go, and Ethel said a tin can would make him go," Daisy explained.

"Well, it did make him go," Daisy's papa said, laughing. "But I don't believe you ever want to try it again, do you?" Both little girls said no. Then Daisy's papa put them in the wagon and led old Spot home, a sadder and a wiser dog.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Why They Did Not Marry

Mr. Jim Panzee was very much in love with Miss Bab Boone, who was known to be a very terrible flirt.

But Jim did not seem to care, though the young lady was very hard to suit. He tried his best to please her. Putting on his best looks he would come and sit for hours at the foot of her tree and sigh and smirk and look coy, and she would sit behind her palm leaf fan and look bored and weary.

But she liked Jim for all that, and I think they would soon have been married, as Jim was about to propose, but for one little event.

"You are so hard to please," he said one day. "I have brought you all kinds of nice things, and none seem to suit you. You don't like this unless I dry them and take all the seeds out."

"IS IT STONED?"

You won't eat coconuts because it's so hard to chew them. What can I get you?"

"Oh," she said wearily, "I should so like one of those lovely purple plums that grow up on the mountain."

"I'll go to the ends of the earth to please you, dear. I'm off," said Jim as he ran on, his beautiful tail dragging behind him. After much hard climbing he secured a fine luscious plum and ran to her with it.

"Here, dear one," said Jim. "I have brought it," holding it up to her. She looked at it a moment, shut her eyes slowly and said, "Is it stoned?"

"You know I can't really take the trouble to stone it."

"You lazy thing!" said Jim. "Can't I never marry you!" And he didn't.

Don't be lazy, girls.—Detroit Journal.

COW ATE DYNAMITE

AND FOR A TIME THERE WAS CHAOS ON THE FARM.

Peculiar Diet of Bovine Simply Unsettled Everything—Caused Labor Complication Among Other Things.

Queer demands are coming from the farmers on the line of the new aqueduct, says the New York Times.

A claim for "one dynamited cow" was settled the other day. When the claim reached the controller it called for $425. The controller turned it over to the board of water supply, which in turn sent Engineer Charles E. Davis to investigate. The claimant was John McCauley, of Brown's station, Uster county. The engineering force had been at work near his place. The claim, he said, included the tramping down of growing grain.

"Was the cow blown up?" asked the engineer.

"Not exactly," said the claimant, "but she scared us all to death. You see, one of the engineers had left a stick of dynamite in a field and the cow ate it. She probably thought it was an ear of corn or something. You know how hard it is to get any hired men in this section. Why, the department of agriculture has sent out circulars telling the farmer how to get over the labor difficulty. I've got one of them up to the house."

"Well, some of the help I have had read that circular that was lying about the house, and then they kicked for more pay. There was Ed and John—"

"What's that got to do with the cow?" asked the investigator.

"Well, I was telling my story in my own way. You see, labor is scarce, and I had got that darned circular locked up in a closet, and I was hoping to keep Bill with me for a little, when Bill and I was walking through that field toward the cow. We saw her eating something and we didn't mistrust anything until we got up close to her just as the end of the stick was sticking out of her mouth, and I saw what it was."

"What she she eating?" asked Bill. "I didn't feed her anything."

"Bill," says I, "if there's one thing of which I wouldn't suspect you it's work. I know darn well you didn't feed that cow anything. But she's fed herself," says I, "and it's darned hot stuff," says I.

"Bill he looked a little queer."

"What is it?" says he.

"Dynamite," says I.

"My God," says he.

"He stood still for so long a time that I thought he wasn't afraid. All of a sudden the cow turned and walked toward him."

"Drive her off; we'll both be killed," says Bill, picking up a big stone.

"Don't you do it," says I; "she'll explode. She's full of dynamite, and the slightest jar'll set her off."

"Bill began to laugh—half laugh and half cry, you know, like a lady summer boarder I once had who found a toad under her bed when she was looking for a man. Then I says:

"Bill, it's up to you to do something."

"Why is it up to me?" says he. "You own the cow."

"That's just it," says I. "I own the cow and you are working for the man that owns her."

"Bill gave me a look. Then he says: 'Well, I ain't working for him no longer,' says he, and with that he cut across the fields without waiting for his wages."

"Well, my family and I stayed that night at the home of my brother, five miles away, to make sure of being safe. In the morning I went back to the farm and found that the cow was dead. The dynamite had poisoned her. John Wilkie, the dare devil of the neighborhood, carried off the body for $10."

The engineer found upon questioning the force in the neighborhood that a stick of dynamite had disappeared. So he settled for $150. The farmer took the money.

"Say," he said, "you know I have a telephone in my house. Day before yesterday Bill called me up."

"Say," says he, "is that cow dead? If she is I'm coming back for my wages."

"You'll get no wages," says I."

Sermon in a Few Words.

We are very much impressed by something we saw and heard while passing along the street a few evenings since. A young girl was standing in front of a store, and near her, with a hang-dog expression on his face, was a young strapping boy. As we passed the two, the girl said to the boy: "Any one who speaks of my father as 'the old man' is not worthy of my respect." From the tone of her voice, we knew that the girl spoke from the impulse of a moment, but there was a whole sermon in her utterance. We don't know the girl, but if she lives she will develop into a noble womanhood, and the world will be the better for her having lived in it. And the boy, if he has any redeeming qualities in him, will profit by the lesson given him in that one sentence.—Burlington Chronicle.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure," as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weakness and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—asa general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well
