Weather's Face Last Earthly Vision

Hopkinsville, Ky., Oct. 15.—Nurse, turn the light up as high as you can, for I want Mable's face to be the last thing I see on earth," were the last words of George Roby, who died here this morning of typhoid fever. His orders were obeyed and as the glass of death beclouded vision, Miss Mabel Geharing, the woman to whom Mr. Roby was to be married about Thanksgiving time, stood where he could see her best.

Mr. Roby came here about a month ago from Columbus, Ind., and accepted a position as jeweler. A few days later he was stricken with fever, which he had contracted on a camping trip.

Miss Geharing lived in Peoria, Ill., and as she heard of her lover's illness, she hastened to his bedside. The body was taken to Columbus, today, where the interment will take place.

Piece of Board Blown 23 Miles.

Montezuma, Ind., Oct. 16.—A few seconds after the explosion of the powder mill at Fontanet, a piece of pine board almost one foot long, about three inches wide and more than one inch thick, flew through the window of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Bailey, who live on South Jefferson street. It came with such terrific force that it went through a rambler rose bush by the window, through the wire screen and the window glass. One end was jagged and rough, where it had been broken or blown off a longer piece and had several drops of blood on it. The supposition is that the piece of pine was blown here from the Fontanet powder mills, a distance of twenty-three miles.

Doctors Said He Would Not Live.

Peter Fry, Woodruff, Pa., writes: "After doctoring for two years with the best physicians in Waynesburg, and still getting worse, the doctors advised me if had any business to attend to I had better attend to it at once, as I could not possibly live another month as there was no cure for me. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me by a friend, and I immediately sent my son to the store for it, and after taking three bottles I began to get better and continued to improve until I was entirely well." JESUS THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD.

JOHN 8-12.

Some bible scholars who have given much study to this scripture think that it was uttered at the close of the day during the feast of tabernacles when there was the ceremony of the lighting of the lamps. Jesus was teaching in this court that when suddenly the lights flamed forth, he turned all eyes upon himself and sought to give spiritual instruction by pointing to the temple lights and exclaiming, "I am the Light of the World: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

Other bible students think that these words were spoken in the early morning—that at day break Jesus was in the midst of the people gathering for early worship, and the first words of this chapter, if we take it to be a connection in regular order would indicate that for it says, "And early in the morning He came again into the temple and all the people came to him, and he sat down and taught them, the dawning of the morning in that wonderful temple must have been a sight never to be forgotten. The first beams of the sunlight gilded everything beautiful, the pinnacles of the temple and touched the hills with gold, and as the people watched the splendid sunrise, the Lord Jesus there in the midst of them said "this is the emblem of My mission I am light of the world, he that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness but shall have the light of life. Christianity is a religion of light, it has no fellowship with the owls and bats which hide in darkness. Free press, free schools, free science, free speech, the light of the intellect, the light of the heart, the light of sympathy and soul, all follow in the wake of Jesus Christ. And the Lord Jesus says: Ye are light of the world. As the moon and stars get their light from the sun, so we must get our light from the Lord Jesus Christ, let us notice this is a guiding light, it is to guide us along our path to the Saviour to guide us in the midst of sorrows and trials of human life it is not the light that saves us, it is not in the power of light to save, but the light shining upon our path makes it possible for us to find our way to the cross and thus find salvation. As John says in his epistle, if we walk in the light as He is in the light we have fellowship one with another and the blood of Jesus Christ, his Son cleanseth us from all sin." Christ comes to us first as a light and then as a Saviour.

These are not matters which we can afford to neglect any longer. The effect of these untidy, unhealthy, frequently vulgar conditions upon the children can not be uplifting, can never be educative. In consequence we are raising up a generation which will not have a fair chance—a generation which cannot compete with its fellows who have come up under better conditions. We are by our neglect robbing the children of their brightness. They have a right to expect a fair start in life, and we are not giving it to them.

Kentuckians no longer occupy the place in our national life that they did one and two generations ago. Our children are not being trained as they are in other states.

Do you know that the Commissioner of Education's Report, places Kentucky forty-second among the states in the descending scale of illiterary of the white population, and fifty per cent. of her children of school age are not in school? Of those that are, we have seen, the opportunities are very meager.

And now, what is to be done about it? It is certainly time for us to be interesting ourselves in our public schools, for they are the training place for our future citizens. It is not possible for one man acting alone to do what needs to be done in each district, but it is possible, if the men and women of the district and the teacher and children of the school, all unite in an organization with the definite purpose to make their school what it should be—it is responsible for such an organization to metamorphose it.

To the Citizens of Crittenden.

Do you know the condition of the public schools in your country? Do you know the condition of the school in your own district? If it is not all that it should be, what are you willing to do to improve it?

For some time many Kentuckians have felt that the efforts of our superintendents and teachers must be reinforced by the efforts of the patrons and friends of the public schools and that all of the people must be brought closer together in a movement for the improvement of the schools.

Why is this necessary? Because teachers and superintendents can not do it alone, and because our schools are in a lamentable condition. In many cases the houses are not habitable, and yet the children spend a greater number of waking hours there daily during the session than at home. It is cruel to confine them in buildings insufficiently heated, and either unventilated or full of drafts, and with the light from unshaded windows blinding their eyes, and with the seats so adapted to them that the little children are suspended in mid-air and the larger ones are cramped for space.

In many cases the sanitary condition needs attention. There are no outhouses, or they are placed too near the main building, or they are so constructed as to make cleaning impossible. They frequently offer no adequate provision for the separation of the sexes, and children who are carefully shielded at home from demoralizing conditions, are at the school subjected to obscene influence.

In many schools the simplest educational appliances are lacking, such blackboards, that are really black, maps and charts.

The stoves need polishing, the windows need mending and cleaning. Walks are needed from the school-house door to the road and to the outhouses, so constructed that they will not in wet weather become pools of water or beds of mud. Water buckets are needed, and basins and towels, and hooks for the hanging of hats and coats, and shelves for the lunch baskets. In fact, in some places almost everything is needed if we would have the children spend the school hours in the midst of decent surroundings, and in almost every place something is needed.

These are not matters which we can afford to neglect any longer. The effect of these untidy, unhealthy, frequently vulgar conditions upon the children can not be uplifting, can never be educative. In consequence we are raising up a generation which will not have a fair chance—a generation which cannot compete with its fellows who have come up under better conditions. We are by our neglect robbing the children of their brightness. They have a right to expect a fair start in life, and we are not giving it to them.

Recognizing our need, and desiring to enlist our unusual forces in the interest of the schools, it was decided some months ago to inaugurate a movement for the organization of School Improvement Leagues, such as have given such an impetus to the cause of education in almost every Southern State of Kentucky.

The plan is to organize Local Leagues around every school in a county and to endeavor to engage every person in a district in some service for his school; to organize a County League to which the Local Leagues shall report at stated times; and to send reports and representatives from the County Leagues to the State Committee.

The matter was first taken up by the Education Committee of the Women's Federal Clubs of the State, and the organization of twenty-one County Leagues has been pushed under their auspices this summer.

The Kentucky Educational Association at its last meeting appointed a committee to co-operate with the Education Committee of the Federal Clubs, and also gave reports from the Leagues a definite place on the annual program.

Encouragement and promises of co-operation have come from various organizations, notably from conventions of religious bodies, from the Daughters of the Confederacy and the Daughters of the Revolution.

If information is desired as to methods of organization, or as to plans for work it can be obtained from Mrs. R. N. Roark, Richmond, Kentucky.

Body Cut to Pieces.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 15.—Sidney Williamson, aged twenty six years, met death in a horrible manner here to-night. While attempting to board an east-bound C. and O. passenger train, he was drawn beneath the wheels, and his body, crushed and mangled, was dragged for nearly four blocks along Broadway.

The accident occurred about 8 o'clock and was not witnessed by anyone. A negro going through the tunnel at the eastern end of the railroad station discovered the head and upper portion of the body lying between the rails at the mouth of the tunnel. The legs were found two blocks away, and pieces of the body and clothing were gathered up between.

A strange fatality has pursued the family of the young man killed to-night. His father, Jerry Williamson, was shot and killed in this city eighteen years ago; a brother, Dudley Williamson, was shot and killed here about five years ago, and another brother, Tark Williamson, was burned to death at Jeffersonville, Ind., a few years ago, and still another is an inmate of the State Insane Asylum at Lexington. Williamson was unmarried. He leaves a mother and sister.
