TYPHOID FEVER.

Tragically Ends The Life of Orlin Moore.

He Comes Saturday Morning and Burial Was Sunday Afternoon.

GENERAL SORROW PREVAILS MARION.

Orlin Moore, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Moore, died Saturday morning shortly after nine o'clock, of typhoid fever. He was confined to his bed for just two weeks, but had really been sick for several days before he consented to give up. The disease was in a most virulent form and the young man's condition was critical almost from the time he was prostrated. Everything possible was done for his relief. All the science known to the medical profession was brought to bear, skilled and devoted nursing and attentions from friends and relatives were given without stint, but all proved unavailing before the grim Reaper, Death.

He was taken just at the period when he stood at the threshold of manhood, with the vista stretching before him bright with promises of a long life of happiness, and the successful achievement of those things which tend to the betterment, advancement and uplifting of mankind. Orlin was in his seventeenth year. He was a member of the class in the Marion High School which would have graduated next year and already his plans were made for continuing, as a well-rounded completion, his education in college. He was healthy and robust, of an active temperament, and possessed an intellect which was quick to receive impressions or instruction and was retentive to an unusual degree. He was never satisfied unless busy and he was constantly planning for further improvement and preparation to take a real man's place in the world's affairs. He was indeed one of nature's noblemen, for every instinct was refined and this had been intensified by a home training until he abhorred anything which approached the coarse, the vulgar or the wrong. He was a modest and retiring as a girl, with a heart and life pure and undefiled, a deep respect and consideration for everyone with whom he was associated, and a love of home, of parents, of brothers and relatives that was all-absorbing and beautiful in the extreme. To him his parents were indeed his counselors, to whom he went for solace in times of trouble or and at whose feet he joyously laid as tribute the victories he had won in his boyish world or in school. His three brothers, Virgil, Homer and Neville, were his boon companions and he was as deeply interested in their affairs and as jealously guarded them as he did his own. He was brave in spirit, loyal and devoted in his friendship and devout in the profession of christianity which he made at the age of thirteen years, since which time he had been a faithful and consistent member of the Methodist church. He realized for several days the seriousness of his condition but at no time did he show word or sign that he feared in the least to go down into the valley and bow of Death, but instead his regret seemed to be the premature termination of all the bright hopes of nature held for him, and the severing of home and family ties.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence in East Marion, and never in the history was there a larger or more sincerely sympathetic gathering of relatives and friends to mingle their tears with those of the bereaved parents and brothers. The services were conducted by the Rev. J. B. Adams of the Methodist church and the songs were sung by Mesdames Fannie Walker, J. H. Orme, Miss Nellie Sutherland, Messrs. Geo. M. Crider and C. S. Nunn.

In his prayer Bro. Adams touchingly asked for Divine aid and comfort for the sorrowing ones. His talk was eloquent and a beautiful tribute to the stainless character and life of the deceased. The text was John 13-7—"What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." The preacher stated that, looking at it from the human viewpoint, we could not understand why it was that a promising life like Orlin Moore's should be cut short as it was, but that the ways of God are inscrutable and full of wisdom and that what now seems to be a dark and unexplainable mystery would be made light and the wisdom of it shown when the troubles and trials and tribulations of this vale of tears were over and his loved ones had joined him in Heaven to which happy estate his death was merely the forerunner of his going.

The remains were laid to rest in the new cemetery, the funeral cortege being one of the longest that ever passed through the streets of Marion. An especially touching feature of the procession was the part taken by the members of the 1910 High School class and the Sunday School class to which the young man belonged. Headed by Prof. J. P. King, principal of the Marion Graded School, the boys and girls of next year's graduating class marched by twos from the residence to the cemetery. Immediately behind them, and in the same formation, came the young men of the Sunday School class led by the teacher, H. D. Pollard. These intimates of the deceased maintained a position alongside the hearse throughout the entire route, thus forming an escort of honor prompted by the purest motives—those of sincere love, respect and sorrow.

Even to the last details the sad rites were performed by intimate friends, the pall bearers being Messrs. W. B. Yandell, H. K. Woods, J. H. Orme, Geo. M. Crider, J. C. Bourland and T. H. Cochran, the hearse being driven by J. M. Freeman and the grave being rounded up by Senator P. S. Maxwell.

The floral offerings were numerous and handsome and when placed in position covered the mound under which the young man sleeps. The brief services at the Cemetery were impressive and just before these were begun a last invitation was given for the friends to look upon the features of the dead boy who had the appearance of having dropped into a quiet and peaceful sleep. After the burial was over scores of sympathizing friends offered their condolence to the surviving members of the stricken family.

As Bro. Adams said in his talk, it is hard to give up a character like Orlin Moore, but when we think of the happiness he has shed by his sunny nature, the incentive he has given to his companions and those younger than himself to emulate his example and lead a blameless life, and the comfort, help and pride he was to his parents we should rather give thanks that he was allowed to remain with us as long as he was for the constant blessing derived from association with him and the glorious memory that is left us for the future.

CHICASHAS SHUT-OUT.

By Marion in a Hotly Contested Battle at Maxwell Park.

Cooperrider Struck out Twenty men And Allowed But One Hit.

COMPLETE WALK-OVER FOR MARION.

Saturday afternoon's game was a complete walk-over for Marion, the Indians being shut out with but one hit and no runs. Only four men reached first base, and one of these got as far as third, but died there. Cooperrider was in great form, and the red-skins simply had not the least chance against him. His pitching and the field work behind him would have won against almost any team. Twenty men fanned, Perryman put one out by catching a foul fly, five were caught at first base, and Guess retired the other by holding on to a line drive. One single to center, two bases on balls, and Marion's lone error put four men on bases, but whenever they were there, Cooperrider was simply invincible to the batter. In the second inning, two bases on balls put men on first and second, and a passed ball advanced them to second and third; nobody was out, and it began to look as if the Indians would score, but Cooperrider fanned the next three men, and the last hope of the Chicashas' perished.

Jones, the first pitcher put up by the Indians, proved good. Marion could do nothing with him until the fifth, when Cooperrider opened up with Marion's first hit; a base on balls to Cannon put him on second, Dixon sacrificed him to third, and he came home on Rochester's infield hit. Cannon scored a moment later or a passed ball, making more than enough to win. Hayes then relieved Jones, and Marion made no more in that inning. Atkins went in to pitch in the sixth, and did well. Marion had three on bases and nobody out in the sixth, but Atkins struck out three. Marion scored one in the seventh on an error, a passed ball and two hits.

This is Cooperrider's fourth game pitched for Marion, and fourth victory, the last three being shut-outs; eight hits have been made off him in the four games, an average of two to the game. During the same games, Marion has made thirty-five hits, and only eight errors. Such pitching with that kind of batting and support from an amateur team, will win nearly every time. Marion is certainly putting up a stiff game, with Kraft and Cooperrider pitching, and the boys backing them up in the way they are doing. Besides being an extra good pitcher, Kraft plays a star game at first, and his base-running is a revelation to some of our friends; his continual talking during an inning is a great brace for the team, as well as being entertaining for the crowd. Those teams who based their hopes of defeating Marion on the fact that Paul Gossage is out of the game are certainly being disappointed. We may lose some games yet, but the teams that do defeat the boys are going to have to play major league ball to do it.

MARION LOSES TWO GAMES TO PRINCETON.

Princeton won both games of ball from Marion this week. Tuesday

the score was 6 to 3, and yesterday

our home team was shut out, while

Princeton scored 3. So Princeton is one game on us with even shut outs.

We are very proud of our boys notwithstanding they were defeated in both of these hotly contested games.

Both were good games and that both are fast teams there is no doubt and with the best of feeling we will say:

Let each team have its picked bat-

ttery home boys for the other positions and see who has the best team.

If it be true that Princeton played

but four or five of her regular team

there is little for her to exult over.

GREAT EXAGGERATION.

Of Typhoid Fever in Marion AS Shown By Following Article.

Dr. T. A. Frazer Gives Advice to The Citizens of The Town.

HOW TO PREVENT THIS DISEASE.

Various reports have been circulated in regard to typhoid fever in Marion, and Dame Rumor has reported anywhere from twenty-five to one hundred cases of this disease in our midst. These reports have been circulated far and wide, and have done our community great injustice and injury. People of our own town have been principally responsible for these false reports. They take up mere rumor and report it as facts, when they could easily investigate this matter, as any of our physicians would give them the facts in regard to this disease.

It has also been reported that epidemics of other diseases have been present in the community. It is true we have had a great deal of sickness. At least 50 per cent of this sickness should have been prevented. I have made a careful investigation of the situation, consulted every physician in our city, and find that we have had a total of twelve cases of typhoid fever in and around town this year. It is, however, a reproach to any community to have this disease, as it originates in filth and is easily prevented. If every person would work for their own good and the good of the community, no person ever has typhoid fever unless they get the germs into the alimentary canal, and these germs must come from some previous case, where the discharges have not been properly disinfected.

The mouth is the port of entrance for typhoid germs and they enter either with our food or drink. When our water supply becomes contaminated with these filthy little "bugs," we drink them, and therefore, become infected with the disease. If all drinking water was boiled it would obviate this course of danger. Our food may become contaminated by contact with the common house fly, which is a scavenger, and the most filthy place he can find is his "haven of rest." Then he comes to our kitchens and dining rooms with his feet and legs teeming with the various disease germs, and deposits them on our food. This source of danger can only be overcome by proper screening. Many other diseases originate from filth, and, if we would keep our premises scrupulously clean, be careful what you eat and drink, we could prevent at least 50 per cent of the usual summer sickness, save much suffering and many valuable lives. Benediction.

Come in and look over our china and glassware departments, Fobs,

Hon. J. F. Gordon.

Elsewhere in this issue is found the notice which the people with one accord, will be glad to see, we refer to Judge Gordon's announcement for re-election. He has served this the fourth judicial district with honor and distinction, and in few cases have his decisions been reversed. Our people have learned to love and respect him for his honesty and care in the administration of the law. That he will be renominated is a foregone conclusion and we believe the people will endorse him and re-elect him by a large vote in November.

Hon. John L. Grayot.

Elsewhere in these columns will be found the announcement of the Hon. John L. Grayot as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for re-election as Commonwealth's Attorney in the Fourth judicial district. This gives pleasure to the writer and will to the thousands of Democratic hosts who have known him since boyhood and who have honored him heretofore with their votes and their confidence and who will testify at the poles that he has been loyal and true to his trusts in all the walks of life. Mr. Grayot was born and reared at Smithland and makes his home there. He attended school here and ever since those happy days has held as warm place in the hearts of Marion and Crittenden county as his home county and people could possibly entertain for him.

Mr. Grayot is one of most conscientious and painstaking men in official life. He is alert for every point against a criminal, but his warm heart and generous nature would revolt at any injustice done an innocent man. That he is terror to evil doers, is one of the strongest reasons why the people are going to endorse him and keep him where he is.

Annual Home Coming Day.

A perfect day, and a fine audience assembled at the Cumberland Presbyterian church last Sunday to enjoy the annual Rally Day of this church. On account of the former postponement from the third Sunday in June to the third Sunday in July, many out-of-town people could not attend. Among those from abroad were noticed, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Williams, of Carversville, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lamb and Miss Jewel, of Clay, Miss Mendoza Deboe, of Blackford and Hon. J. S. Durham, of Nebo. The choir rendered some good music with fine enthusiasm; and altogether the services were not only deeply spiritual and impressive, but pronounced by all very enjoyable. Mr. Biddle preached again on Monday and Tuesday nights.

Miss Mary Cameron, our popular telegraph operator, who also keeps all of the popular weekly and monthly magazines and story papers in her office received the following message late yesterday evening. "Send at once 'A Bashful Man.'"

H. Hughes, of the country, was in Marion yesterday.

F. M. Doom, of Salem, a prominent photographer, was in Marion yesterday.

B. B. Terry, of Sheridan, was in Marion yesterday.

Chas. Boyd and Albert Shoemaker, of Sheridan, were in Marion yesterday and bought themselves a new buggy each, of T. H. Cochran & Co.

W. C. Reymers, proprietor of the Airdome, is putting up a high-class, moral entertainment. His entertainments each night are being liberally patronized.

Sam Givens, a former citizen of Uniontown, now a prominent traveling salesman out of Paducah, was in Marion Monday and Tuesday.
