The health of this community is fairly good at present.

Quite a number from this place attended the singing at Big Creek Sunday.

Mrs. Mary Bell, who has been spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. S. A. Taylor, at Gradyville, returned home Friday afternoon.

We have been having some nice rains for the last week or two, which puts a different appearance on the corn fields and gardens, of which we are very thankful.

Mr. Luther Bell, of this place, will teach the Mosby Ridge school this year, commencing last Monday.

We have preaching here twice a month, and Sunday School every Sunday morning at 9 o'clock.

Master James Hunter, who has been visiting at Gradyville for the past week, returned home Sunday evening.

The school at this place, under the management of Miss Margaret Walker, is progressing nicely.

Mrs. A. C. Pulliam and Mrs. D. W. Kinniard, were the guests of Mrs' C. S. Bell, of Gradyville, one day last week.

T. B. Combs made a business trip to Edmonton last Thursday.

C. C. Kinniard, of Red Lick, passed through here Tuesday en route for Weed.

Taylor & Romines finished prizing tobacco at this place Thursday.

Miss Zula Kinniard, of Red Lick, was visiting here Wednesday afternoon.

The saw mill here is being repaired, and will soon be in sawing order.

Mrs. S. L. Kinniard and Son, Ed, of Red Lick, were here Thursday.

J. F. Pendleton, of Gradyville, was here one day last week, and bought some nice cattle.

SHOULD WOMEN BE ONLY COOKS.

Charles M. Schwab is advising young women how to get husbands. To sum up his advice, it is to learn how to cook, sweep and darn socks. He would have girls taught to be domestic rather than intellectual.

All this sounds well because we are used to it. This advice has been sounded in feminine ears since "Adam delved and Eve span." Possibly Eve did not spin, but why spoil a quotation for a mere fact?

It is good advice, too, but does it express quite all the duty of womanhood? Cannot women be good wives and mothers and still be intellectual? Simply because cooking must be done and socks must be darned, must half of humanity—and the best half at that—be excluded from all the wonders of progress, all the beauties of the thought world, all the higher and finer developments of spirituality, of art and of life?

Cannot a wife be a mental comrade of her husband as well as his mere housekeeper and cook? Should not the mothers of future men be able to impart to their sons, through pre-natal influence and through early association, some of the intellectual strength and tendencies that the coming age will require?

Why have a lopsided humanity? Why keep one sex circumscribed, while the thought world of the other is forever expanding? Why confine the horizon of the one to four walls while that of the other is ever glorified by new dawns? If we limit the mothers of the race to a petty sphere, will not this narrow outlook be imparted to the children? Women should learn to cook, but should they not also learn to live?

"Regular as the Sun" is an expression as old as the race. No doubt the rising and setting of the sun is the most regular performance in the universe, unless it is the action of the liver and bowels when regulated with Dr. King's New Life Pills. Guaranteed by T. E. Paull, druggist. 25c

HIS LAST JOKE.

A dispatch from Clarion, Ia., says: "After wearing a heavy beard for forty years, Stephen Mahon sought to play a joke on his family by getting a clean shave last Saturday. The result was that he was taken for a tramp and landed in the cooler by the City Marshal. Mahon first asked for a handout, but was refused. He then sought to embrace his wife, and the screams of the latter resulted in his incarceration for two hours before his family could be convinced that it was really "Pa." Mahon says it is his last joke."

EPIGRAMS ON WOMEN.

A thrifty woman will make her home attractive, though it may be a hut in the wilderness.

Women sometimes lose sight of great things by their attention to insignificant details.

Women's honesty is proverbial. The exceptions are a few and far between.

Women never enter into conspiracies with one another. Men usually concieve them, and induce women to join in their execution.

A wronged woman should be implacable, but rarely is. She is more likely to forgive and forget.

It is supposed that the injunction to turn the other cheek if one is smitten was directed exclusively to women.

Women are supposed to hide behind a smiling face all the sorrows of an aching heart.

The woman who betrays the anguish of her soul to the world forfeits her claim to the sympathy of her sincere friends.

If women would only realize that few are interested in their woes or their ambitions, they would not so often become bores and nuisances.
