DEMOCRATIC TICKET

For United States Senate—Gov. J. C. W. Beckham

The present Legislature will be expected to redistrict the State, and while that may be considered a light duty by some, a political advantage to be gained by others, yet it does not so occur to us. Political districts were not originally intended to be formed for partisan purposes, but for equal and fair representation of the people and business interests within. To redistrict this State is no little matter, for it ought to be done in the interest, and for the welfare of the entire people, and not for individuals or a particular party. No fair minded man should want an undue or unfair advantage, and the Democratic party ought to be willing to live within the limits of its principles—equal and fair representation to all, and if it desires to do so, its representatives must make such changes as will truly represent the people. This State is no worse than the average, it is not so great a sinner as some of the Northern States, but two wrongs do not make conditions better. To make a long story short, the News believes in redistricting, so as to give fair representation to the people of both parties, to the varied industries and interests of every section.

By order of the Postmaster General weekly newspapers will not be carried through the mails as second class matter where the subscriber is as much as one year in arrears. The Postmaster of Columbia has called the attention of the News and Spectator to the ruling and asked that it be obeyed. The extra postage will amount to about 50 cents per year on each subscription affected, so it is a plain fact that all those more than one year in arrears must be dropped from our list. If you want The News pay up arrearage, for on the first day of February every one more than a year in arrears will be dropped from our list. A statement will be mailed you at the earliest opportunity. This is not of our choosing, but in obedience to a decree that invades personal rights, but beyond our power to regulate. We can not afford to pay the extra postage and must keep within the law. The Editor of The Spectator is under the same ruling and will act accordingly, avoid the postage.

One of the greatest propositions that should engage the attention of Kentucky's Legislature, is the creation of a State road fund under the control of a board of State Road Commissioners, with explicit instruction as to how it should be prorated to the various counties willing to build macadam roads. If the Legislature will move out on this proposition, it will confer the greatest good yet attempted to be done for the rural districts, and not only bring good to the people of Kentucky, but will become the initiative of a system that will be adopted by other States and finally lead to National aid—the thing that should have been done long ago.

Miss Sallie Ray Marcum, of this place, was nominated by the Joint Republican caucus at Frankfort for Librarian. This is a nice compliment paid her by the solons of her party especially when it is known that her attachment to that political organization dates back to only a few months. She has made, however, a most telling fight for Republican principles through her paper. The Columbia Spectator, and it is but right that she should be rewarded. The News feels proud of such a high compliment paid Miss Marcum.

If the National Government had given as much money to build roads in Kentucky as it has appropriated on a few of our streams, commerce within our borders would have been on a firmer foundation and the farmers happier and more prosperous. National aid to roads will come by and by, and the sooner the better.

Ex-Gov. W. O. Bradley is the caucus nominee of the Republicans for United States Senator. When candidates for U. S. senator are voted for it will be strictly a party vote, and the Democratic nominee, ex Gov. J. C. W. Beckham will be elected. At least that is the way it looks at this writing.

Secretary Taft is the first Big Gun to open up an explanation of the cause of the panic. In his speeches he charges it up to extravagance—certainly so, so, so.

The similarity between the Kentucky dog law and the Republican candidate for President next November rests in the fact that both are likely to be repealed.

The many announcements made by the newspapers that the panic is over is no news to the people. It is over all the country and every body knows it.

A bill has been introduced to repeal the dog tax and to refund the taxes collected on them last year. The amount is about $100,000.

The Kentucky Legislature will investigate the tobacco situation in the State. The actions of night riders grow more alarming.

COBURG.

Now that the election is over, the panic about subsided, and Winter here in full blast, I presume we may again be a welcome visitor to the columns of the News, and the editor will give us credit with at least a part of our duty.

J. G. Dudgeon has prized and shipped over 50,000 pounds of tobacco from his barn at Coburg. R. L. Faulkner has also prized and shipped a large amount. They paid the growers living prices for it. Prices ranged from $5 to $10 per hundred. Most of this tobacco was grown in Adair.

We are glad to notice the familiar face of W. R. Johnson, our junior merchant at Coburg, behind his counters. He is slowly improving in health, and will, we hope, soon be able to attend to all his business at the store.

State Senator Jarvis, of Taylor county, before he left for Frankfort, moved to his new residence on the pike near Tampico school house.

"Hop" Davis, who last year occupied the Bomme property on the pike, has gone with his family back to Lee Farris', from whence he moved one year ago. Hop is post master at Coburg.

A number of Caney Fork farmers, among them Chas. Morris, J. T. Sublett, T. S. Scott and J. A. Dulworth are getting a great deal of winter plowing done.

J. F. Sublett, of Caney Fork, rented the Watson property at Cane Valley, and removed his family thereto. He placed his children in the Cane Valley Normal School. He will run his farm as usual.

Bud Deering was on Caney Fork last week and bought 30 263 pound hogs from T. S. Scott, and 6 180 pound hogs from A. A. Cowherd.

Your correspondent accompanied by his mother-in-law, Mrs. A. A. Cowherd, his wife and little son, visited Elijah Sublett at his home in Cane Valley, Sunday, and had the pleasure of seeing four generations assembled under the same roof. This distinguished old gentleman and his good wife are at the head of one of the best known families of Adair, and they have a record, that but few can equal. They have been married more than fifty years, and have always made their home in and about Cane Valley. They have raised eight children to be grown, all of whom are living except one, and all married except John Green, their bachelor son, who has settled down to wait upon them in their old age. They have a large number of grand children and two great-grand-children, all of whom delight in surprising these good old people and aunt Jane, who has always lived with them, at Christmas time with innumerable gifts, which are sure to please them. They have led a very active life—have made and lost two or three fortunes in their day, and still have enough of this world's goods with the unstinted help of their children, to make life pleasant. While their health is not as good as usual at present, due to attacks of grip, yet they hold up well for people nearing their three score and ten years, and their minds are as clear as in days gone by, and they take great delight in conversing on current issues, as well as the things of the past. If the history of this family were
