Gladstone on Drunkenness.

Gladstone's laurels are still so green that it is a hard to think of him as one of the centenarians of 1909, though he was born one hundred years ago next Wednesday. His personality is still vivid in the minds of thousands of Englishmen. In those young people who grew up on his great estate at Hawarden he took a fatherly interest. One of them remembers that the boys and girls of his tenantry were required to learn the following characterization of drunkenness:

Drunkenness expels reason,
Drowns the memory,
Distempers the body,
Defaces beauty,
Diminishes strength,
Inflames the blood,
Causes internal, external and incurable wounds.

It's a witch to the sense,
A devil to the soul,
A thief to the purse,
A beggar's companion,
A wife's woe and children's sorrow.

It makes man become a beast and self-murderer.

He drinks to others good health,
And robs himself of his own

Learn to Cook.

One reason living is high is that in America we do not know how to prepare the expensive food we buy.

Archbishop Ireland is quoted to this effect: "Americans do not know how to save in cooking, and what they do cook they don't know how to prepare in a manner to make it palatable and health-giving."

Learn to cook and the benefit will remain long after the era of high prices has passed.

Food should be so prepared that it will appeal to the palate. It should be selected for its nourishing qualities, but not for nourishment alone. It should be served to please.

Cooking is an art; is a science; it is an inspiration; it is a moral obligation.

When the wife is able properly to prepare the food the husband's wages can pay for the attractions of the corner saloon and the fashionable restaurant will decline, and most of the domestic difficulties will disappear. Bad cooking may not justify divorce, but it does much to provoke it. —Louisville Post.

Somebody's Mother.

The woman was old and ragged and gray,
And bent with the chill of the winter's day,
The street was wet with a recent snow,
And the woman's feet were aged and slow.

She stood at the crossing and waited long,
Alone, uncared for amid the throng.
Of human beings who passed her by,
None heeded the glance of her anxious eye.

Down the street, with laughter and shout,
Glad in the freedom of school let out,
Come the boys like a flock of sheep,
Hailing the snow piled white and deep;

Past the woman, so old and gray,
Hastened the childred on their way,

Nor offered a helping hand to her,

So meek, so timid, afraid to stir.
Lest the carriage wheels or horses' feet should
Crowd her down in the slippery street.

At last came one of the merry troop,
The gayest laddie of all the group.

He paused beside her and whispered low,
"I'll help you across if you wish to go."

Her aged hand on his strong young arm
She placed, and so without hurt or harm

He ghider her trembling feet along,
Proud that his own were firm and strong.

Then back again to his friends he went,
His young heart happy and well content.

She's somebody's mother, boys, you know,
For all she's aged and poor and slow;

"And I hope some fellow will lend a hand
To help my mother, you understand.

"If ever she's poor and old and gray
When her own dear son is far away."

And "somebody's mother bowed her head
In her home that night, and the prayer she said

Was, "God be kind to that noble boy
Who is somebody's son, and pride and joy."

Saved From Awful Peril.

"I never felt so near my grave," writes Lewis Chamblin, of Manchester, Ohio, R. R. No 3. "as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 115 pounds in spite of many remedies and the best doctors. And that I am alive today is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 160 pounds and can work hard. It also cured my four children of croup." Infallible for Coughs and Colds, its most certain remedy for LaGrippe, Asthma, desperate lung trouble and all bronchial affections, 50c and $1.00. A trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Paul Drug Co.

A Keen Lad.

"I had always heard that New Englanders were "smart," a young physician who had "graduated" from village practice remarked the other day "but I hardly thought it developed at such an early age."

He smiled reminiscently, then continued:

"Just after I settled in Dobbs Corners a 12-year old boy called on me one evening.

"Say, Doc, I guess I got measles, he remarked, but nobody knows it 'cept the folks at home. an' they ain't the kind that talks, if there's any good reason to keep quiet."

I was puzzled, and I suppose, I looked it.

'Aw, get wise, Doc. my small visitor suggested. What will you give me to go to school an' spread it among all the kids in the village?'"

Game and Fish Law.

All the sportsmen of the State are said to be behind Senator Claude M. Thomas, who introduced a bill in the Senate creating a State Game and Fish Commission and providing for a rigid enforcement of the game laws. Should the act become a law, both residents and non-residents of Kentucky will be forced to get license to hunt in this State. The bill also provides for a Game and Fish-Warden, who will have a deputy in each county. The bill fixes heavy penalties for violations. The advocates for a more stringent law for the protection of game and fish in Kentucky, declare that such a statute rigidly enforced is absolutely necessary to prevent game from becoming extinct.

Shawls Coming Back.

It is probable that the beautiful old crepe shawls of thick white, gold or rose silk which were shipped from Canton in the days of our great-grandmothers will soon be unpacked from the paper wrappings in which they have lain so long.

These finely embroidered squares, with their handsome knotted fringes sometimes half a yard long, are being used in Paris for the new swathed gowns and loose draperies.

The once necessary Paisley shawl, or that of Indian make beloved of Queen Victoria and so often given by her as wedding gift, is not likely to share the popularity of the silken square. Its make is much too thick and heavy and the coloring does not lend itself to the present mode. The pitfalls of artistic dressing are many, and because one mode of a period is useful it does not follow that others are really acceptable.
