THURSDAY, MARCH 15, 1903.

The Kentucky General Assembly had its adjournment not later than midnight Tuesday. It was not the best thing it did, and that wasn't voluntary.

CASSIE CRADWICK in the Columbus, O., penitentiary was supplied with dainty edibles by her attorneys in Cleveland until the warden ordered it stopped. Cassie evidently has yet a lot of coin salt ed down somewhere.

UNCLE JOE CANNON is wrathful because of the Senate's action on the Philippine, Statehood, and Railroad Rate bills and says Aldrich, Burrows & Co. seem to want to be running things. Uncle Joe runs the House and wants no rival legislative factory.

It is hinted that a lot of the standpat U. S. Senators have become utterly indifferent to the fate of the Philippines since the Administration has sought by a reduction of seventy five per cent the Dingley tariff rates on Philippine importations to give those islands partial justice. The true standpatter don't want anything he can't skin to the bone.

The U. S. Senate amended the Joint Statehood bill passed by the House, providing for the admission of Oklahoma and Indian Territory with the name of Oklahoma, and striking out the provision for the admission of New Mexico and Arizona as one State. The vote was 87 to 35. The Joint Statehood bill was an Administration measure, but the Senate treated it about right.

Sixty-four Kentucky counties are as abstinent and temperate in the matter of alcoholic beverages as the rigid Prohibition law can make them. The Prohibitionists hope to and will likely add twenty-five more counties to the list.
It is possible that before many years Kentucky will be as much Prohibitionized as Maine and Kansas, which is not saying much for total temperance.

The U. S. Supreme Court was announced in sending the case of Caleb Powers back to the Kentucky Courts for trial, but Justice Harlan, who delivered the opinion, said that when the Kentucky Courts had finally decided the case it might be brought to the Supreme Court for review to decide whether any substantial right of Powers had been violated.
Powers may be tried for many years yet if he lives.

SUBAN B. ANTHONY is dead at Rochester, N. Y., at the age of 88 years. She was a Yankee school-mistress in the earlier part of her career, next became an agitator for the freeing of the negro and the latter part of her life devoted her energies to the cause of woman's suffrage. Her power lay in her persistency, her steadfast adherence to purpose, rather than in intellect. She "kept everlastingly at it" and lived to see the triumph of the most of her causes so far as the law was concerned, but she quickly abandoned the attempt to institute female dress reform by wearing bloomers herself.

The Prohibition County Unit bill was passed by the Kentucky General Assembly and it went to the Governor for his signature to become a law. It violates the principle of local self-government in regard to towns of the fifth and sixth classes. The citizens of the whole county may impose prohibition on towns of those two classes, though they have to pay some of the taxes necessary to run the government of those towns. Liquor license is an important source of revenue and if the citizens of incorporated towns wish to raise revenue by it they ought to have the legal right to do so. In fact, some towns can not raise sufficient revenue otherwise without unduly burdening their taxpayers or license men, and you don't have to go any further than Owingsville to find an example.
