EDISON'S LATEST.—Whole houses, molded in a single casting of solid concrete, which will provide cozy homes for workmen at a cost from $500 to $600—much less than the average mechanic pays today—is the goal which Thomas A. Edison is striving to reach, says a New York telegram. He is confident of success. Combined with economy of construction and maintenance, the inventor aims to embody architectural beauty and practical indestructibility.

Edison intends to make his first practical experiments next year in his new village in Warren county, N. J. One of the big Edison industrial establishments is situated there, and he proposes to erect the homes by the new process for the families of the hundreds of employes of the plant. If he succeeds in demonstrating the practicability of the scheme he will introduce it generally. He already has conceived every detail of the project. Four days at the outside is the period Edison estimates will be necessary to cast and turn out whole houses with every light to ten rooms each, complete in almost every detail and ready to be furnished and carpeted. The actual time for pumping the concrete into the metallic molds will be only consumed in drying out and hardening. Whole cities of concrete may be built in the brief period of 4 days, if only enough molds and men are provided.

Edison thinks that the time is near when the world must find some substitute for brick and lumber. The yellow pine forests of the United States will be destroyed within fifty years if the present drain upon them is maintained. Whole cities of concrete may be built in the brief period of 4 days, if only enough molds and men are provided.
