throwing reflection on the Sheriff ticket but equally as much on the Fiscal Court. They were the men that relieved the sheriff of these mistakes that he was not responsible for. In my territory there were eleven men charged with poll tax that were released and had their receipts. These are as good men as Morgan county affords and prompt tax payers. There were 19 men in my territory that have moved out of the county that were assessed here. There were 7 men assessed here that were men of no such names. There were also some parties not allowed their exemptions and as soon as the Fiscal Court released me of this I paid these men their money back. They live in this county now and will make an affidavit to this effect. Some being in Toms Branch precinct with their initials so that the best acquainted citizens of that precinct could not make out who they were. Five have died since they were assessed. They were all put under head of delinquent except one, Robert Patters, marked dead. Also 1 man, Silas Perry, who is actually a non-resident and has been for 2 years. Also Taylor Shockey, a resident of Wolf county. I do not believe the sheriff and his deputies are responsible for men dying, leaving the county and being released from paying poll tax, and yet being charged with same and holding them responsible. If any one in my territory is touched over this matter come to me and I will explain to you the reason this was done.

Very respect,
 LUTHER PIERATT, D. S.

prise and the school was opened in 1775 with fifty children. Here Pestalozzi found his life work. His intense love for children and teaching knew no bounds.

His school was not a financial success but he wanted to persevere. He lived like a beggar in order to teach beggars how to live.

In 1780 he published a book entitled "Evening hours of a hermit." In this book he wrote fundamental truths of education. He says "that education alone can lead to an independent, honorable, and happy life" all wisdom, he says, "rests upon the vigor of a good heart obedient to truth; and all happiness, upon simplicity and innocence."

"I build all liberty upon justice, and justice upon love; and the source of all justice and of all earthly blessings, the source of love and charity, rests upon the great thought that all are children of God."

In 1781 Pestalozzi gave to the world his greatest book, entitled, "Lienhard and Gertrude." A book for the people."

The gloom of dark ages still hovered over the world in Pestalozzi's time. The schools were in a miserable condition, the teachers had more of superstition than education. The wealthy class alone had the advantages of education; they demoralized and oppressed the poor. Pestalozzi saw the misery and degradation of the people and his loving heart and quickened brain worked out the plan of their liberation. In this book he tried to show mothers the great responsibilities that rested with them in the training of their children. He begged mothers to be to their children what no human being on earth can be in their stead.

In 1805 he established his great school at Yverdon, pupils came to him from all parts of the world. Here he kindled the flames of zeal and enthusiasm in the hearts of his pupils, here he formulated the greatest principles of education. Here he expounded the theory that education was good for the masses. His influence has revolutionized the education systems of Europe.

ertheless, I do not use this power, I offered all things, lest we should hinder the gospel of Christ. Do you not know that they which minister about holy things live of the things of the temple, and they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar. Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel shall live of the gospel. But I have used none of these things, neither have I written these things, that it should be so done unto me for it were better for me to die, than that any man should make my glorying void."

We will now go to the last chapter of Paul's first epistle to corinthians and quote from 1 to 4, inclusive; "Now concerning the collection for the saints, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, even so do ye. Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath promised him that there be no gathering when I come. And when I come, whomever ye shall approve by (Continued next week.)"
