Xmas passed off quietly here, very little if any drinking and was celebrated in way that the writer recalled days long ago when the people had some respect for God of course every day should be held sacred and especially Xmas day, the anniversary of the birth of our Savior, but it is usually spent in a very disrespectful manner. It seems that the world is going so fast that every body both young and old are on the rush, parents do not take time to instruct their children or pray and therefore the young generation is losing all reverence, it is a rare thing to see or hear any youngster respect an old person or lady, or show the old time training, therefore our penitentiaries are filling up and souls rushing into eternity unprepared to meet God and who is to blame? Parents more than any others, and as 1922 is soon to be a closed page forever we can never change one item but we trust the readers of the Times will each one resolve to make 1923 the most useful year of our lives by using each and every moment in way that when the pages are opened again that we can read it without a pang, and remember we reap what we sow and at a time perhaps when the least able to bear our heavy burdens we will have to suffer for mistakes. So let us all make the world better and brighter by having lived in it. May God's richest blessings shower down upon the Times and all its family.

"Back to the Bible"

There seems to be a natural turning to the bible as a cure for the fast living, unrestful spirit existing, and all forms of vice and immorality all over the country. Readers of the bible and observers of the teachings of Jesus Christ will moralize and christianize any country however wicked it is. "Back to the Bible" is a slogan that is seriously timely. Let us all join in the chorus.
