NEWS OF THE WEEK.

County fairs were held last week at Paris, Bowling and Bardstown.

Mr. Mills, of Texas, is in Ohio this week taking part in the campaign.

The town of Attala, Alabama, suffered a $100,000 fire on Thursday.

According to Gen. Porter's census the exact number of people in this country is 62,922,260.

The world's record for speed by pacing stallions on a half-mile track was broken by Roy Wilkes at Decatur, Ill., Thursday. He went the mile in 2:14.

Gov. Campbell, of Ohio, has gone to New York for a change of air recommended by his physicians. The Governor is only slightly improved in health. He will be in New York two weeks.

At a meeting Wednesday of the Board of Lady Managers of the World's Fair, Mrs. Susan Gale Cook was elected permanent Secretary, succeeding Miss Phoebe Cousins. The salary is $3,000 a year.

The Hon. C. W. Buck, Minister to Peru under President Cleveland, is an applicant for the position of Interstate Commerce Commissioner, made vacant by the death of Commissioner Bragg, of Alabama.

The saloon-keepers of Indiana organized at Indianapolis Wednesday. Officers were elected, and a constitution adopted. The object is to prevent any legislation at the coming General Assembly which will be hurtful to the saloon business.

A fire nearly wiped out of existence the town of Dalles, Oregon, on Wednesday. Eighteen handsome business blocks, upward of five hundred residences, the opera house and three churches were burned. More than a thousand people are homeless, and the town is under martial law.

The decree rescinding the prohibition placed upon American pork was signed at Berlin Thursday. The agreement, which was signed by President Harrison some two weeks ago, gives to the United States the same schedule with reference to its farm products as that enjoyed by Russia.

The most violent gales in years have recently been playing havoc throughout England. On land and sea the loss of life and property has been great. Reports from Dublin are to the effect that all crops in Ireland are in a lamentable condition as a result of the storms.

A new submarine cable, connecting the United States and Brazil, was opened in New York, Tuesday. Connection with the United States is made by the cable to Havana and the Cuban submarine cable between Cuba and Hayti, thence to San Domingo, on to French Guinea and there to the town of Vizew, in Brazil. It is laid and controlled by French capital.

S. P. Stiker, a mechanical engineer of Buffalo, has, it is claimed, discovered a method of making ice with gas and returning the gas to the main unimpaired. He has an experimental plant at work in the Provincial Gas Company's works, and can, it is said, produce a temperature of eighty degrees below zero. No chemicals are used, simply water and gas.

The Sultan of Turkey has made a clean sweep of his right hand men, and the Grand Pasha and six of his cabinet have been deposed on the shortest kind of notice. During his ill-humor he discharged his Minister of War, Minister of the Interior, the Governor of Salonica, the Governor of Smyrna, and the President of the Council of State. They were all allowed, however, to carry their heads with them.—[Courier-Journal.

In the lower house of the Tennessee Legislature a resolution was adopted declaring the General Assembly powerless to abrogate the present lease of the State's convicts. A resolution to investigate the conduct of Labor Commissioner Ford and his assistants created a sensation. It is charged that they abetted the miners and encouraged lawlessness. The resolution was adopted, and the investigation will be made at once.

Buckner-Brown.

The text of Gov. Buckner's address in retiring from the Gubernatorial chair, was as follows:

"The moment has arrived when it becomes my duty to render back to the people of Kentucky the trust which, four years ago, they confided to my keeping.

"It would be improper in me to speak of the manner in which I have discharged the duties of the high executive office to which I was called by their partiality. My official acts have become part of the history of the Commonwealth; and no words of mine at this hour can in any degree modify the effect of completed actions.

"To a just and, fortunately for me, a generous people, must be left the duty of passing judgment upon the official acts of their executive agent.

"But I may be pardoned for saying that I have endeavored to keep constantly in view the fact that it is the paramount duty of the Chief Executive to exert all the authority vested in his office by the organic law to protect the rights and interests of the people, to enforce their laws, and to maintain the honor and dignity of their Commonwealth.

"If I have met with any success in the attainment of these objects, the chief merit must be ascribed to the patriotic officials who, in their respective departments, have so ably and efficiently aided and sustained my efforts.

"In laying down the high trust reposed in me, and in resuming my place in the walks of private life, I do so with the more pleasure and satisfaction, as the voice of the people has chosen as my successor a citizen of such varied gifts and distinguished ability. To the charms of an oratory unsurpassed he adds a maturity of learning and an experience in statesmanship which show the wisdom of their selection, and give assurance that their interests are secure in his hands.

"I would be insensible to every feeling of gratitude if I failed to render my sincere acknowledgments to the people of Kentucky and to the press, which so largely represents their sentiments.

"They have aided and supported my efforts to discharge with fidelity the duties of my office. They have given undue praise to acts which they have deemed worthy of commendation; and, even where I have failed to meet their expectations, they have judged me in a spirit of leniency and kindness.

"Fellow-citizens, I carry with me, in retiring to the home of boyhood, the liveliest appreciation of your generosity. I will cherish through life the ardent love I have ever felt for my native land and for her magnanimous people; and I will endeavor to teach my descendants that, as integrity is the essential to true manhood, so is the faithful discharge of public duty the essence of patriotism and good citizenship."

Gov. Brown thus gracefully presented himself to take the oath of office:

"Ladies and Gentlemen and Fellow Citizens: I am here in the presence of this vast multitude to take the oath of office as Chief Magistrate of our great and beloved Commonwealth of Kentucky. It is not an appropriate occasion for an elaborate address, and my remarks shall be brief.

"To those who have by their suffrages bestowed upon me this exalted trust, my heart is overflowing with the profoundest gratitude. I am proud of the honor I bear; yet it is with humility and diffidence and distrust of my ability to fill the measure of the manifold and solemn responsibilities that I assume the discharge of the duties of this great office. These feelings mingle with, and to a degree subdue, the spirit of the gratulations of this day.

"I here make the vow to consecrate to the faithful discharge of my official duties all the powers of my mind and energies of my body, invoking in my work the guidance of Almighty God, and the charitable judgments of my fellow-citizens upon my acts, begging Kentuckians to have faith always in the rectitude of my intentions.

"In so far as is committed to me the guardianship of the rights of the citizen and honor of this State, I shall keep vigilant watch, and discharge all of my official duties in a way that I shall believe will best promote the public welfare, and I shall act without fear of favor. I intend to do what I believe to be right, without any selfish regard to consequences.

"The welfare of a free State depends upon the maintenance of the supremacy of its laws. To the law-abiding these laws are a shield; to the malefactors they should be a sword. The certainty of punishment for crime is the surest restraint of the vicious. There should not be careless interference by the Chief Executive with the judgment of courts. The injunction of the Constitution is that 'he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.'

"The glittering and priceless jewels of liberty are clustered in our Bill of Rights. In it is declared that 'all power is inherent in the people, and all free governments are founded on their authority, and instituted for their peace, safety, happiness and protection of property.' The officers of the State are but the temporary agents of the people, and public servants in the exercise of power should never forget their duties and obligations to their masters, who have made and can unmake them.

"The people want honesty in public officials and firmness in the assertion of right, and in public expenditures the strictest economy consistent with an efficient public service. There should be vigilance to detect and courage to expose all fraudulent and corrupt practices among the officials of the Commonwealth.

"Mingled martial and civic glories crown the past of Kentucky's history. Her present rank in the sisterhood of States is majestic. In peace and war she has asserted herself, and to-day is imposing in her power, exhaustless in her resources and matchless in her renown. God bless the State—My old Kentucky home."

"With good laws and honest administration of the affairs of the Commonwealth, we should move onward to the realization of the glowing promise the future now reveals. Let her officials not for a moment forget their obligations and responsibilities to the people; let the people stand by the Constitution and the laws, and I trust that all will be well for every class of our citizens.

"Mr. Chief Justice Holt, I am now ready to take the oath of office."

A Cure For Paralysis.

Frank Cornelius, of Purcell, Ind. Ter, says: "I induced Mr. Pinco, whose wife had the paralysis in the face, to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. To their great surprise before the bottle had all been used she was a great deal better. Her face had been drawn to one side; but the Pain Balm relieved all pain and soreness, and the mouth assumed its natural shape." It is also a cure for rheumatism, lame back, sprains, swellings and lameness. 50 cent bottles for sale by T. G. Julian. 5-4t
