

SUMMER CATARRH

Catarrh of the bowels, because it is most prevalent in the summer months, is called summer catarrh. It surprises many that bowel trouble is catarrhal. Dr. Hartman's books make this plain. Write to the Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O., for them. They tell all about catarrh and how Pe-ru-na cures it wherever located.

"I had chronic diarrhoea for fifteen years," writes Mr. T. E. Miller, Grand Prairie, Tex. "I tried many medicines and doctors in vain. At last Pe-ru-na was recommended, and it relieved and cured me at once."

Mr. John Harting, 633 Main St., Cincinnati, O., writes: "My wife and myself took your Pe-ru-na for chronic diarrhoea and it cured us. No doctor or medicine we tried before helped us."

Mr. Edward Wornack, Ledbetter, Tex., writes: "Pe-ru-na for bowel troubles is unequalled by anything in my experience. I owe my life to Pe-ru-na, and shall always recommend it to those suffering as I was."

Mr. John Edgerton, 1029 Third Ave., Allouma, La., says: "I suffered from dysentery for three years. I took Pe-ru-na and am now well."

Give Credit Now.

An ounce of "tally" to the living is better than a ton of "epitaphy" when you are dead.

'Tis a habit as well as a fault of mankind. To be always rather too inclined To withhold from a brother cheering words of praise,

Until the poor fellow comes to the end of his days.

An ounce of "tally," if given right now, is very much better, I think, somehow, And will bring more joy and glad surprise Than a ton of "epitaphy" when a fellow dies.

If you've any good gifts on a friend to bestow, They will help him while living, the most. Pray do not delay until its too late, Till at length he lays down and "gives up the ghost."

Lend aid to your friend while yet he is here; 'Twill be more Christian-like, noble, and brave, Than your tears of sorrow you shed round his bier.

Or the flowers in abundance you strew 'er his grave.

"Yes, 'twere better to give a cheap bouquet To a living friend this very day, Than a bushel of roses, white or red, To lay on his coffin when he is dead."

'Twere better to lend him a helping hand In his struggle for food and clothes, Than to erect a monument, costly and grand.

'Over his ashes when he "turns up his toes," 'Yes, 'twere better to give him a bushel of meal Or a sack of flour to make him some bread.

Than write an obituary two columns long To inscribe to his memory when he is dead.

Monuments and epitaphs do mighty little good In keeping the wolf from your fellow-mans' door. If you are blest with riches and worldly estate, You'll be serving your Master if you give to the poor.

REV. W. T. TIBBS

Gives Reasons Why Wm. Goebel Should Be Elected.

Says He is a Man To Trusted, And Highly Commends Him,

Red Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Aug. 16, 1899.—Mr. H. P. Prewitt—Dear Sir: Necessity alone debars me from extending to Mr. Goebel a more cordial greeting than I have ever tried to give any candidate for a political office.

A careful review of many State campaigns and a patient study of the present situation have fixed firmly the conviction that not for a third of a century have there been submitted to the voters of Kentucky issues half so clear-cut, practical and grave as those now made up between the Republican and Democratic parties. The equity and urgency of the Democratic position on purely State issues are so easily made manifest that a lucid statement is a potent argument, and a proper presentation of the facts to the people ought to result in the arousing of the forces of the motley combination arrayed against the very practical policies propounded in the Louisville platform. The only reasonable hope of the opposition would seem to be the creation of some sonorous and passionate diversion from these pressing questions of State policy.

John Young Brown was one of our best Governors. During his public career from his first speech to the recent day of vacillating weakness, when he slipped and fell, I followed him with interest and admiration, as is my custom. I sought all information bearing on his life and character and made measurement of the real man. I KNOW HIM.

I KNOW WILLIAM GOEBEL. With the assurance of knowledge, I affirm that the life of William Goebel from childhood to the stormy hour of battle has always moved on a more elevated plane and has developed a far nobler character. He is a man to trust. When the truth has shamed to silence

WOOD & STUBBS, SEEDSMEN, Louisville, Ky.

The weary laborer, the slauderer and the accumulator, this heroic man will not only be trusted but loved as well. Not since the days of Andrew Jackson has such a Democratic leader stood on the fiery front of battle to wake all the fury of his foes and to evoke the deathless devotion to his friend.

Since the Louisville Convention I have met two typical advocates. The first to accost me was a stranger of intellectual force and insinuating manners. He gently unfolded before me an appalling picture of the moral turpitude of Goebel, and against it he told a fascinating story of the shining virtues of all men in his part of the State who were against the Democratic ticket for the purpose of placing the Republican candidates in power. He asseverated that all good men were against Goebel. A happy coincidence enabled me to learn that he was on the pay-roll of the Louisville & Nashville Railway Co. He took me for a Mt. Sterling attorney of incorruptible virtue. Silence suddenly settled upon him. After reflection he came to assure me that the L. & N. railroad was not using as much money in this campaign or taking as active a part as some people supposed.

My second interviewer was a distinguished minister of the Gospel; for a generation a conspicuous figure in religious enterprise in Kentucky; known and loved by thousands, even beyond the borders of the State. To his anxious inquiry, I replied that it was claimed that all the good men in Montgomery county—white and black—were against the Democratic ticket, but there were enough sinners in Montgomery county to make some noise for Goebel, Blackburn and Democracy; that not being myself invested with that crystalline virtue and elevated piety that characterizes the opposition, I was not a bit too good to vote the Democratic ticket, and that probably many of the saints would yet fall from grace and enter the ranks of us sinners.

The grand old minister then informed me he had taken little interest in politics for many years, but he had been aroused by the false and cruel attacks upon Mr. Goebel to make a thorough investigation, which resulted in his thorough and ardent adhesion to the Democratic cause. He declared that no public man had yet bolted whose private life or public record could compare favorably with Mr. Goebel's; that in his part of the State the character of the opposition to Mr. Goebel had fired the indignation of the people; that more than the usual Democratic majority was assured for the ticket; that Goebel's victory would be signal and glorious—of which he was fully worthy.

And so may it be! In the language of that eloquent old Confederate, whose worthy feet are safe in the pathway that leads from Woodford to Washington: "He that dallies is a dastard, And he that doubts is damned!" W. T. TIBBS.

Bryan The Favorite.

There can be no doubt that Wm. J. Bryan is the favorite candidate of the Democracy for President.

This has been shown by the replies received to the inquiry sent out by The Democrat, and now the New York Journal comes forward with supplementary information.

The Journal has made a canvass of the States, sending out the following question:

"Will your State send a Bryan, anti-Bryan or Bryan and silver delegation to the national convention in 1900? If undecided report on the outlook."

In reply thirty-eight answers were received. Of these thirty were absolutely in favor of Bryan, seven were in doubt, but favoring him, while one named him as second choice.

The States solid for Bryan are: New York, Washington, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Maine, Ohio, Michigan, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, Louisiana, Alabama, Arizona, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Virginia, Wyoming, Nevada, Florida, Delaware, Kentucky, Missouri, Indiana, Kansas, Arkansas, South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, and Texas.

Those States which have not yet decided but which favor Bryan are: Connecticut, Maryland, New Jersey, Vermont, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Oregon.

In Pennsylvania there is a desire to urge the candidacy of Robert E. Pattison, but Bryan is the second choice.

This view of the situation as given by the Journal seems partly accurate, with the exception of Illinois. This State will undoubtedly instruct its delegates for Bryan, and, indeed, there is but little doubt that those which are now in the doubtful column will soon fall into line for the people's champion.—Chicago Democrat.

The Tarahumare People.

The Tarahumare people, who live in the most inaccessible part of northern Mexico, were described by Dr. Krauss in the British association as ignorant and primitive, and many still living in caves. What villages they have are at altitudes of about 8,000 feet above the sea level. They are a small and wiry people, with great powers of endurance. Their only food is "pinoli," or maize, parched and ground. They have a peculiar drink, called "teshuin," also produced from maize and manufactured with considerable economy, which tastes like a mixture of sour milk and turpentine. Their language is limited to about 300 words. Their imperfect knowledge of numbers renders them unable to count beyond ten. Their religion seems to be a distorted and imperfect conception of Christian traditions, mixed with some of their own ideas and superstitions.

Storing Bicycles in Paris.

The storage of bicycles in Paris during the winter months is expensive. So a great many Parisians pawn their machines in the Mont-Delpie, or state pawn shop. The interest paid on the advance of money is very small, and is a great saving on what would be paid for storage.

In CLAY you have a union of the same elements that produced the great Geo. Wilkes, but in a concentrated form, combining the blood of Green Mountain Maid, dam of nine in 2:30 list, and Maid of Clay, dam of four in the list. Maid of Clay takes very high mark as a producer of speed. Out of six foals (one died at yearling) she has four out of five in the list.

R. S. Strader, who paid Gov. Leland Stanford $15,000 for Clay, says that he never saw anything by Clay with a splint, curb, spavin or any kind of a growthy substance.

This great sire will make the season of 1899 at ELM WOOD FARM, 1 1/2 miles east of Mt. Sterling, Ky., on the Owingsville pike, at the low fee of $20.00 To insure a Living Foal. Grass furnished at a reasonable price for mares from a distance. Care taken to prevent accident but not responsible should any occur.
