FACTS AND OBSERVATIONS.

A Fine Dinner. Appeal to the Citizens of Menefee County. Men Who Wore Shirts.

We spent Thursday, July 18, in Menefee county. Leaving the train at W. S. Hamilton's we secured his horse for the journey, down Slate, Hawkins Branch, etc. Crops appeared backward and the roads were dusty.

We spent several minutes with W. M. Ingram, who has been sick for about 18 months. He is unable to work, but is not confined to his room. How thankful should be the men who are free from sickness. Yet sickness is often a blessing. If men are endeavoring to live as God would have them live, sickness, a broken leg, loss of property, false accusations, etc., are for their good, for we are told that all things work together for good to those who love God.

Speaking words of encouragement, we rode on and unexpectedly fell in with some men, another sort, boisterous fellows, who were drunk or pretended to be drunk, and who were not choice in their language.

An object lesson was presented, throwing the effect of unrestrained appetite and passion; perhaps too their youthful surroundings had been unfavorable, perhaps reared by ungodly parents; or perhaps reared by Christian parents, whose hearts had been crushed by wayward sons.

We did not ask whether they had been drinking "red eye" beer, claret punch or champagne. A drunk is a drunk, and drunkenness is sin. They were clothed (they had on their shirts) but evidently not in their right minds.

This reminds us that on August 12 in two precincts in Menefee county an election is to be held to decide whether or not whiskey is to be sold in those precincts. We appeal to the people of Menefee county to unite as one man in ridding the county of the accursed stuff, which has tempted, bound, destroyed so many men, who without its legalized sale in the county would have been contented, prosperous and happy citizens. All sections of our State have felt the sting of the serpent. The sting will bring death. O! that the manhood of our State may be saved from degradation. Do not legalize the traffic. Fathers, mothers, officers, citizens, work and pray that the good may prevail. Save, if possible, the saloon keeper and his intended victims.

We returned to Mr. Hamilton's. Dinner was over, but we dined and a fine dinner we had—vegetables, old ham and as fine milk as can be found, with blackberry pie, etc.—simple, nourishing, helpful.

We continued our ride to Cornwall and hired a boy to take the horse home. We publicly thank Mr. H. for his generous hospitality and courtesy for transportation.

We paid our respects to Tabor Bros., and on the run congratulated Mr. O. P. Hughart, who recently married Miss Samuels, of this city. Daroset & Buchanan had opened a grocery store since our last visit. We interviewed Mr. Daroset. We did not see Mr. W. A. Allen, who is now a dealer in general merchandise, ties, locust posts, etc., at Locust Grove, across the mountain.

We greeted A. L. French and boarded the train for home.

Fatal Cutting Affray.

A cutting affray occurred Monday night about six miles from Winchester in which James Brown, aged 30, was stabbed to the heart and instantly killed by his uncle, George Brown, aged 50. Both men were drinking and disputed over some trivial affair.

Dimes Found in a Log.

A dispatch from Owingsville says: In sawing up an oak log, three feet in diameter, at Taylor & Wells' saw mill, the saw struck an obstruction in the shape of four ten cent pieces near the center of the log. When picked up from the sawdust, they were found to be sealed together in such a manner as to render their separation impossible. How they came there is a mystery, as the log was perfectly solid.

Unable to Reach a Verdict.

The case of Henry Cassidy, charged with the murder of Town Marshall Kirk, was given to the jury at Inez Saturday morning, and after being out for some time the members returned to the court room and stated that they had been unable to reach a verdict, six of them being for acquittal, five for two years' imprisonment and one for twenty years.

To Develop Iron Fields.

A press dispatch says. Through the efforts of the management of the Illinois Central road, two syndicates, composed of St. Louis and Milwaukee capitalists, have been formed to develop the iron fields of Kentucky. The members of the syndicate believe that the Kentucky lands will be eventually the greatest source of supply for iron ore in the United States.

THE SCRIBBLER

Wise and Otherwise—
Mostly Otherwise.

'Tis the constant drop of water wears away the hardest stone,
And the constant gnaw of Towser masticates the roughest bone;
And the constant cooing lover is the man who gets the maid;
And the constant advertiser is the man who gets the trade.

SHIRT WAIST MAN, NET WAIST GIRL.

The shirt waist man and the net waist girl
Go hand in hand to-day,
And the people year after year keep on
Throwing their clothes away.
The coat and the vest are tossed aside,
And where is the fleecy shawl?
Our clothes get thinner and fewer—what
Will be the end of it all?
Oh, what will the shirt waist man take next
From things he has to wear?
And what will the net waist girl throw off
From the shoulders now half bare?
The shirt waist man and the net waist girl
Go rollicking down the way—
Have we started a style that is going to end
With the old fig leaf some day?
—Chicago Times-Herald.

Most of the heat victims are those who have attempted to carry too big a load.

"Are we slaves or are we free men?" thundered the orator. "I pause for reply,
"Some of us are married," came the answer from the last row of seats.

When Judge Crane, of New York, decided that a wife had no business going through her husband's pockets, he was all right. But when he added that neither had a man a right to go through his wife's pockets he wrote himself down a bachelor, for the man who can find a woman's pocket doesn't exist.

An enterprising editor appeals to his subscribers in this way: "If you have frequent headaches, dizziness, and fainting spells, accompanied by chills, cramps, corns, bunions, chilblains, epilepsy and jaundice, it is a sign that you are not well, but are liable to die any minute. Pay your subscription a year in advance, and thus make yourself solid for a good obituary notice.

WE PASS.

A one armed man living near Falmouth, who has a sharp-pointed hook in lieu of a hand, one day last week while asleep in a boat on the licking river, allowed his hooked hand to fall over the side of the boat. A minnow came along and was impaled on the end of the hook while it was struggling a three pound bass made a rush and was also impaled. The owner of the hand was aroused from his sleep and succeeded in landing the bass which he enjoyed heartily for supper that night.—Bourbon News.

Somebody—Shakespeare, or Mother Goose, or that old Philistine, Aesop, once told a little story of a peacock that tried to sing and the disaster that came of it. There are lots of people known to me and to you just like that. They are forever putting themselves forward, trying to shine before the world through accomplishments they don't possess.

One sees them o' week days all up and down the street, always with an air of self-importance surrounding them like an aureole about the heads of the saints in old pictures. And on Sundays, too, while the rest of us are sitting unobtrusively in our pews, humiliated with the consciousness of steps wrongly taken and overcome with the greatness of the Divine love, which forgiveth all, one of these shysters comes strutting down the aisle as if he were conferring a favor on God Almighty by coming to church at all.—Danville Advocate.

When we see a young man who has just returned from an excursion come into the postoffice, run over half a dozen ladies who were waiting for the office to open, and yell at "Bill" loud enough to be heard in the next block, to open his box, we conclude there is something wrong under his hat, or else "old red" was doing it all. And, by the way, speaking of the postoffice a lady said to THE SCRIBBLER the other day: "Did you ever think what an opportunity one had to study people in a postoffice? A man large enough to hide half a section of boxes will get his mail, study the superscription of each of several letters for several minutes, will proceed to open them and read everyone before moving, while the crowd gnashes its teeth and waits for him to get out of the way. At this juncture a prominent business man who thinks he is "the whole thing," and has been guilty of the above offense, slipped silently and swiftly out the door. Now you people who impose on the kindness of the Postmaster, of "Bill" and "Miss Lou" and the public generally should remember that you are not the only persons who get mail at our postoffice, and that you're liable to be classed with the person who drives his vehicle on the crossing and talks to a friend half an hour while pedestrians walk around where Barney's sprinkler has recently passed along. We may change the head of this column to "The Kicker" someday.

Held Over.

A man named Robinson, claiming Charleston, W. Va., as his home has been here several days selling rugs, laces, etc. He was arrested Wednesday and tried before Judge Hazelrigg for peddling without license, the jury fixing the fine at $50. This verdict was set aside by Judge Hazelrigg, who held him over to Circuit Court in the sum of $50, which was given and the young man liberated. The following from an exchange in regard to peddling fits the case and we reproduce it:

"Before patronizing a peddler or faker ask yourself the following questions: Did the peddler give anything to your school debt? Did he set up with you when you were sick? When your house burned was his name on the list of those who helped you in your misfortune? Was he one of your sympathizers when death came to your door? Did he carry you on his books when you were out of work. If he won't respond to these requirements he certainly is not entitled to as much consideration as your local business men, for they help you in these particulars and many more."

In this connection we would remind our merchants that if they advertise their goods and let the people know what they have that the people will patronize them instead of the peddler. Talk to them through your ad in the home papers. If you think you can't get up your ad let us know. We will write it for you. That's our business.

Will Seek a Change of Venue.

It is said that Caleb Powers will seek a change of venue to Bourbon county, when the case is called at Georgetown at the October term of Circuit Court. It is also stated that Maj. W. C. Owens will be the leading counsel in the case.

The Prohibitionists will name a ticket in Paducah and McCracken county.

A Miniature Railway.

One of the greatest novelties of the age is the Miniature Railway, the smallest steam railroad in the world. The gauge is 15 inches; the height, 36 inches from top of rails to top of smokestack on locomotive. Each passenger coach accommodates two persons, either adult or children, and is six feet long and 24 inches wide. A man standing beside the engine is from two to three feet above its top, and yet this midget runs 12 miles an hour. It works just like the big railroad trains, and will be one of the features at the Street Fair and Carnival August 21-24. Every child in the State should see and ride it.
