DEATH

CLAIMS MAYOR OF CINCINNATI.

Distinguished as a Soldier and Newspaper Man.

PARTNER OF R. B. HAYES.

Col. Leopold Markbreit, Mayor of Cincinnati, and a distinguished soldier and journalist, died Tuesday night of last week after an illness extending over the greater part of nineteen months he had served as chief executive. He will be succeeded in office by Vice Mayor John Galvin, who has been the acting Mayor during a good part of the present administration, because of Col. Markbreit's illness.

Leopold Markbreit was president of the Cincinnati Volksblatt Company, which publishes a German newspaper. He was born in Vienna, Austria, in 1842, and came to Cincinnati in 1848, studied law and was admitted to the bar and was a partner for a short time of Rutherford B. Hayes, who was later President of the United States. He served as captain in the Twenty-eighth Ohio Infantry during the Civil War, and was adjutant on the staff of Gen. Geo. Crook. He was captured in 1863 by the Confederates and was in Libby prison for many months.

Col. Markbreit was appointed United States Minister to Bolivia by President Grant and served from 1869 to 1873; was Assistant Treasurer of the United States at Cincinnati in 1882-6 and became Mayor in January, 1908.

Col. Markbreit was at one time a member of the board of directors of the Associated Press.

PRESIDENT TAFT EULOGIZES HIM.

President Taft sent a telegram of condolence to Mrs. Markbreit, upon the death of her husband, who long had been a prominent figure in the affairs of that city.

"Col. Markbreit was a brave soldier," said the President; "a public-spirited citizen, a knightly gentleman, and one whose friendship and courtesy to those who came within the influence of his charming personality will always be cherished as a sweet memory."

Moves to Lexington.

Dr. J. W. Taulbee, a well known physician of Owingsville, moved to Lexington where he will practice his profession.

He has secured offices in the McClelland building. Dr. and Mrs. Taulbee will make their home with Mrs. Taulbee's brother, Mr. J. M. Kelley.

AGAIN FALLS INTO SEA.

Within Two Miles of Dover, the Motor Falls.

Hubert Latham's second attempt to fly across the English channel from France, distance 21 miles, ended disastrously July 27. Almost in the moment of victory his monoplane fluttered down into the sea two miles beyond the Admiralty pier, like a bird with a broken wing.

Latham's flight to the moment of its sensational finish in some respects eclipsed Bleriot's, who crossed last week. He made greater speed, being only twenty minutes in the air from the time he left the coast of France.

Shortly before 6 o'clock bells on the ships in the harbor notified the town that another crossing was to be attempted. At 6:14 o'clock the airship was discerned and quickly assumed birdlike outlines. Suddenly it began to slacken speed at the same time glided toward the surface of the ocean. It fluttered a few times and dropped to the sea. There it floated.

"It is another case of real hard luck," said Latham in an interview. "When I started the wind was just right and the rain was not a serious impediment. I rose 500 feet and felt that victory was at last within my grasp. The engine was working with rhythmical accuracy. I seemed to stand still over a moving plateau of blue, but in reality I was traveling at great speed. Almost in a few moments, it seemed, I could see the Dover cliffs. The coast seemed to grow with every pulsation of the motor.

"Then, within three miles of the coast I heard the sirens and hooters. Then came the tragedy. I was only two miles from the harbor mouth. A dead silence; the motor hesitated and stopped. I had been gradually descending. Thirty feet above the water I drifted like an injured bird, fearing to alight, realizing I had failed again.

"I struck the sea with comparative lightness, although the descent was very rapid. I will have another try as soon as I am fit. I do not think the machine was much damaged; it probably will be repaired before I am."

Hedges' Bail.

At Owingsville, on July 27, before Judge Lane, the examining trial of Simond Hedges for killing Wm. Wyatt was held. He was granted a $2,500 bail which was readily given by George Jackson and his son Sam.

CORK LEG WAS BANK.

Depository of Penitentiary Convicts Discovered at Last.

For ten years the cork leg of Charles Knifely, a convict in the Kentucky penitentiary, was the depository, or safety vault, for the money and treasures of the convicts. Warden E. E. Mudd discovered this vault only a few days ago, and since then the circulation of money within the prison walls has decreased to nothing. Previously there was plenty of money in circulation. This money was used principally in the crap and card games that can not be stopped.

When Warden Mudd took charge he found a great deal of money in circulation. He ordered the prisoners searched and would find money in their pockets, and in a short time there would be more money in their pockets. He finally issued an order that every article in possession of the convicts must be searched, even down to the cork legs and crutch handles. When the cell of Knifely was entered he was told to turn over his cork leg for search, and in it was found several hundred dollars in bills and coins and other valuables. He had found the depository for the convicts' money. Convicts smuggle contraband, such as dope, saws, dynamite, poison. Newspapers are the chief medium of smuggling dope. The dope would be smeared over a page and another page pasted over it.

He found that dope was being smuggled into the prison in tomato and peach cans, which were soldered up after some tomatoes and peaches had been taken out, and bottles of dope put into them.

Warden Mudd has stopped the newspapers coming into the penitentiary, except the weekly paper from the home of the convict. He had to do this to prevent the convicts from communicating with their pals. How they did it he does not know, but he is confident that such a correspondence takes place.

The handling of the prison correspondence is a problem. There are 1,650 convicts who want to write a letter every night, and receive one or two every day. Each letter going out has to be read, and each letter coming in must be read.

Warden Mudd says that the adoption of the grey suits from that of the stripes has worked wonders in the prison. They all want to get in the greysuit. The men will be graded by caps. The highest grade will wear the navy blue cap, the next best men the grey cap, and the lowest grade the stripes. Only men wearing the navy blue cap will be paroled.

Be sure and take a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with you when starting on your trip this summer. It cannot be obtained on board the trains or steamers. Changes of water and climate often causes sudden attacks of diarrhoea, and it is best to be prepared. Sold by all dealers. 4-4t.

Bryan Will Make Home in Texas.

At Bellefontaine, Ohio, on Wednesday—William Jennings Bryan announced that he intended to make Texas his permanent home, following a tour of the world. "I am not to seek election as United States Senator from Nebraska," he said. "I am not to be a Nebraskan much longer, for I am going to move to Texas. I expect to continue in politics in Texas."

EDITOR PERRY

Takes in the Seattle Exposition and Tells His Readers About It.

We clip from the Winchester Sun-Sentinel extracts from a letter written by its editor, R. R. Perry, who is on a trip to the Seattle, Washington, Exposition:

We joined the editorial special at Spokane, on the 16th. This is a thriving city of about one hundred thousand population. Many courtesies were extended us at Spokane.

We arrived at Seattle late Sunday. Seattle is a wonder, when a hill is in the way of progress they take it away. There are more good buildings going up than I have seen in any other city.

During the last decade Seattle has enjoyed a phenomenal increase in population and wealth, which has placed it among the leading cities of the land. Endowed as it is with a situation of immense strategic importance as regards the commerce of the Pacific, favored by nature with a mild and equable climate, and located in the heart of a region rich in undeveloped resources, who can say but that the period of the city's greatest growth is yet to come?

The Exposition is all that is claimed for it, upon the whole it is the most satisfactory of any that I have attended. It is not so large as Chicago or St. Louis and is more compact. The fact that the exhibits represent a comparatively new and undeveloped country, gives it more than ordinary interest.

The Alaska Building attracts more visitors than any other.

There is a panorama of characteristic Alaska scenery covering 4,000 square feet. One of the most interesting exhibits is the Mineral division. The progress made in mining is fully illustrated.

A reproduction of Cordova and the Copper River Valley, showing the Copper River and Northwestern Railroad running up the valley.

A reproduction of the Pacific Coast Gypsum Mine, illustrating the mining of gypsum.

A reproduction of the Porcupine Hydraulic Mine. The machinery of this exhibit was furnished by the Hydraulic Supply Co., of Seattle. The booth illustrates the method of using water under high-pressure in mining.

In the mineral exhibit proper is displayed the ores and other mineral products from hundreds of mines. Gold dust, nuggets and bricks of the value of one million dollars in a specially constructed case.

ALASKA BUILDING.

A lunch counter, model kitchen and dining room demonstrates the merits of Alaska canned salmon as a staple dietary. The product in a variety of recipes is served to the public gratuitously. The kitchen is in view, displayed behind glass. A model of an Alaska salmon cannery is shown under a glass canopy, with electric light installation.

Fish is delivered from a scow by means of an elevator. Butchering and cleaning are under way (the hand method has now been supplanted by the "Iron Chink.")

The "Iron Chink" is displayed in the Fisheries Exhibit. This wonderful machine has become indispensable. It was invented by Mrs. E. A. Smith in 1902 and constantly improved until perfection was attained. It removes the head, tail, fins and splits the fish open, removes the entrails, scrapes the blood from the backbone and thoroughly washes the fish and makes it ready for the can. The "Iron

"Chink" will dress any salmon weighing from one to twenty pounds at the rate of sixty per minute. The marvelous feature of the machine is its having such a variation of capacity without tearing or destroying the fish.

FURS.

In the Alaska Building can be seen a full representation of all the fur animals of the North. The furs will be shown both in their natural condition as taken by the trappers and as completed by manufacturers.

FORESTRY.

The Forestry exhibit will cover all the principal woods of the North.

AGRICULTURE.

In the Alaska Building may also be seen the most complete exhibit of Alaskan products in the agricultural line that has ever been brought from the North. There are grains and grasses from the Yukon Valley, within two degrees of the Arctic Circle; wheat, oats and barley both in the head and in the grain; timothy and red top and clover. The vegetables are much like those in other states.

Alaska Arts embracing oil paintings, water colors, crayon, china paintings, wood carving, etc., by both white and native women.

Nuttall Out of Reach of the Law.

Gov. Willson, members of the Board of Control and other State officials interested in the speedy prosecution of Dr. W. H. Nuttall, the deposed Superintendent of Feeble Minded Institute, are greatly worried over the failure to locate him.

A well known Henry county man, declared the belief that Nuttall was thousands of miles beyond reach of the law.

Dr. Nuttall had several days' start of the warrant for his arrest, and he is known to have had considerable available cash. Gov. Willson is anxious to offer a reward for Nuttall's apprehension if the request is made by County Judge Polsgrove. Nuttall has been a fugitive nearly two weeks.

He is accused of improper conduct with a female patient of the institution. If he is innocent, why did he flee?

First Dose Cures.

Hughes Bros., Muir, Ky., says: "Our hogs were sick with cholera and we lost six head the day we began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This remedy immediately checked the disease and we did not have another hog to die after giving them the first dose." Sold by W. S. Lloyd.

CASE AFTER CASE.

Plenty More Like This In Mt. Sterling.

Scores of Mt. Sterling people can tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills. Many a happy citizen makes a public statement of his experience. Here is a case of it. What better proof of merit can be had than such endorsement.

William H. Waller, High and Sycamore Sts., Mt. Sterling, Ky., says: "About six years ago I went to my doctor and asked him if he could do anything for me. I was at the time suffering severely and wished relief in some way. He informed me that I was free from kidney trouble, the fault lying entirely with my bladder. I had taken many proprietary medicines that were brought to my notice without finding relief, but I was so impressed by a testimonial that I read about Doan's Kidney Pills, that I decided to give them a trial. The kidney secretions were so frequent in passage that I was forced to arise many times at night and caused the most intense misery when void. I became so weak that I was scarcely able to get around. My back pained me and I was in a miserable condition. A few boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at F. C. Duerson's drug store made me feel like a different man. I am now eighty-two years old and my kidneys are normal. I cannot say too much in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills, as I know they are a very reliable kidney remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Deserters From American Navy.

During a period of two years detectives have been notified of 3,400 desertions from the army.

Desertions from the navy are not reported to the detectives unless the deserter lives in this vicinity. The Government offers a standing reward of $50 for the capture of a deserter, but the officer must pay his own expenses while taking the prisoner to the nearest army post. The navy offers $20, but will pay the expenses of the capturing officer to Newport News, Va.,

In buying a cough medicine, don't be afraid to get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There is no danger from it, and relief is sure to follow. Especially recommended for coughs colds and whooping cough. Sold by all dealers. 4-4t.
