TO ADVERTISERS.

The FRANKFORT ROUNDABOUT, in its enlarged and improved condition, offers superior advantages to advertisers. The fall trade is just beginning to open and people from all over the county are coming into town to buy their fall goods.

Business men have an idea that because they and a few of the people here in the city know where their places of business are, everybody in the county knows. This is a mistake. There are hundreds of people throughout the country that do not know, and the only way for them to find out is through an advertisement in the paper they read.

The advantage offered by the ROUNDABOUT is its larger circulation. It claims and has a large circulation in this city and county than any other paper published. This is no idle boast but a fact that can be substantiated. This, coupled with its low advertising rates makes it the best advertising medium for Frankfort merchants published.

The most successful firms in the city are the heavy advertisers, and those who do little or no business are the ones whose names you never see in the newspapers.

These facts are offered to our business men for reflection. Judicious advertising is the road to wealth.

Death of Another Old Citizen.

Mr. John Watson, Cashier of the Deposit Bank, was taken Saturday with a severe attack of indigestion, and was confined to bed until Sunday afternoon, when he attempted to vomit in order to relieve himself of his suffering, and in the effort burst a blood vessel in his head, which caused apoplexy, from which he died at 8 o'clock that night.

His wife was in Richmond, Kentucky, visiting her mother, and knew nothing of her husband's illness until the sad intelligence of his death reached her. Three of his children were with him, however, and together with anxious friends used every effort to allay his suffering. The deceased was born in Woodford county, April 1, 1817, and consequently was 65 last April. He came to this city when very young, and after leaving school entered the office of his brother-in-law Mr. Phillip Swigert, who was the Circuit Clerk of this county, where he served as deputy clerk for several years. He afterwards entered into a partnership with Messrs. Jacob and Phillip Swigert, under the firm name of John Watson & Co., which firm for twenty-five years owned, built and ran a line of steamboats upon the Kentucky river, among which were the Bob Letcher, Blue Wing, Nos. 1 and 2, Ago, Oliver Anderson, Sylph, and Tom Metcalfe. He afterwards became the agent of the Frankfort Woolen and Cotton Mills Company, and managed the business of those institutions until 1862, when Gen. Kirby Smith's Division of the Confederate Army took possession of this city and confiscated $85,000 worth of jeans and linsey which was stored in the warehouse of the Company, which so crippled it financially that the mills were never run again by them. In 1868, when the Deposit Bank of Frankfort was organized, he was elected Cashier, and continued in the position till the day of his death.

He was a just and correct man in all his dealings, a true friend, a kind and affectionate husband and father, and a good citizen. His loss will be greatly felt in this community. His funeral took place Tuesday morning from his late residence, the services being conducted by Rev. J. W.

Pugh, of the Presbyterian Church, of which he had been a member for a number of years.

He leaves a wife and six children—Mrs. Robert Christie, of Louisville, Mr. W. R. Watson, of Indianapolis, Indiana, Mrs. Knox Brown, of Owen county, and Messrs. H. Howe, Dudley, and Miss Lizzie Watson, of this city—to mourn his loss, who have the sympathy of the entire community in their sudden bereavement.

There was an effort made last Sunday to enforce the Sunday law, and as a consequence there were four parties before the police court, the first of the week, to answer for violating the same, but the warrants were dismissed for insufficiency of notice. If the law is a good one, why not enforce it all the time and not make spasmodic efforts at it. The abolitionists and others who sell on Sunday should be given to understand that they will be punished for every infraction of it, whether the Legislature is in session or not, and not make a farce of it by paying no attention to it for months, and then suddenly order the police to report all violations of it for a week or two after some one is shot down in a drunken row on Sunday. Either enforce it all the time or repeal it.

Sunday's Shooting.

About five o'clock Sunday afternoon, Kit Willis, a stonemason, being under the influence of liquor, was standing on the pavement at the railroad depot cursing and abusing Pat. Noonan, who was not present, for having made him pull down a portion of a wall at the "O. F. C." Distillery, which he had not put up properly, John Noonan (Fox), who was passing at the time, heard Willis' remarks and told him that if he had anything to say about Pat, he should go and say it to his face, and not talk behind his back. Without further provocation Willis struck at Noonan, when he was knocked down by that young man, and as he got on his feet again drew a pistol and began shooting at his assailant, who jumped out in the street and picked up a rock. The first shot went wide of the mark, and as he was firing the second time Noonan struck him with a rock, again knocking him down, and saving himself from receiving the bullet, as it also missed him and inflicting a slight flesh wound in the arm of a colored man from Woodford county, who was standing across the street. Officer Hyde here appeared on the scene and stopped further proceedings by taking Willis to jail. He waived an examining trial Monday, and was held in $50 bond to appear before Circuit Court, in default of which he was returned to jail.

Mrs. Johanna Burns, widow of the late Edward Burns, died at her residence on Broadway Tuesday night, at 10 o'clock, aged 85 years. The deceased was born in Ireland but had been a resident of this city for many years. Her funeral took place from the Catholic Church, of which she had long been a devoted member, Thursday afternoon, and her remains were followed to their last resting place by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends. She was twice married and leaves two children by the first, Mrs. Dan. Mengler, sr., of this city, and Mr. Con. Ryan, of Dubuque, Iowa, and one by the second, Mrs. A. Fahay, of this city.

The Lexington trotting races begin Tuesday, October 10th, and continue four days. Railroad rates have been reduced to two and a half cents per mile on all the roads running into Lexington, and an extra train will leave Lexington for Louisville on Friday evening, October 13th, after the races are over, thus giving persons from this city an opportunity to go up in the morning, attend the races and return at night. Col. R. P. Pepper's Catchfly and Code, and Maj. H. C. McDowell's Farce and Fugate are all entered in the different events of the meeting.

Dr. Sam'l Ayres, who has succeeded Mr. B. F. Meek in the watch repairing and jewelry business, advertises in this issue that he is ready for business and invites our citizens to call and see him. He is a gentleman of long experience in the business and is highly recommended both in Danville, where he has lived the greater portion of his life, and by Mr. Meek, who has known him for years. Call and see him.

The meeting at the Baptist Church is still in progress and Rev. J. M. Weaver will remain until next week and assist the pastor, Rev. J. M. Lewis. So far there have been nineteen additions to the Church, seventeen by confession and three by letter. The congregations which attend nightly are very large and attentive.
