

A DEAD CINCH.

JUDGE LINDSAY THE NEXT SENATOR.

Gov. McCreary and Capt. Stone Withdrawn From the Race.

Yesterday, Gov. Joe. B. McCreary notified his friends that he had withdrawn from the race and later Capt. Stone made a similar announcement, which gives the Democratic nomination to Judge Lindsay, who is every inch a gentleman and a Senator worthy the great honor which his party will unanimously tender to him next Thursday night.

Hon. A. E. Willson, of Louisville, has been nominated by the Republican members of the Legislature as the nominee of their party to oppose Judge Lindsay, but of course they are so much in the minority the nomination is nothing more than a compliment to an able, enthusiastic and hard working member of the party.

A PUBLIC LIBRARY.

A Great Need for Want of Which Ladies Will Organize a Private Circulating Library That May Yet Take Wider Steps.

This city, the Capital of the State, a center of refinement and culture, has no public library, from which those who are too poor to buy good reading matter, can obtain the loan of books or the use of a chair in a room with fire and light to read by in peace and comfort, away from the cares and sorrows of life and out of sight and hearing of loafers, gossips or other enfeebling or vicious influences, to which, without counter attraction, they might readily succumb. Poor people have no means by which they can provide their children, aside from school text books, with such reading as their tastes may lead them to select, and, in consequence, such children grow up in comparative ignorance of history, biography, poetry, science and general literature, which often give the mind direction and power. The ladies of Midway and Owensboro and other towns in this State a few months ago successfully established a public library from the proceeds of entertainments and the co-operation of those who were disposed to aid the cause by the contribution of books or money, and now the citizens of those towns refer to their institutions with pride as a place of great resort and public necessity. The sum of one hundred dollars, judiciously expended, would buy at the present low prices of books, at least one hundred and fifty well bound volumes, which, if supplemented by a small contribution from the many private selections in the city of such works as the owners may not care to preserve any longer, or may have in later or more complete editions, duplicated copies, would give the movement a start that would not cease until the public library of Frankfort was established on a secure and permanent basis, wide reaching in the scope of its influence and furnishing the strangers the evidence of general culture in the city that a private library reflects upon the individual in his home.

As a public library appears to be one of the unattainable things for Frankfort, a number of ladies in the city have conceived the plan of organizing a private circulating library, with the ultimate purpose in view that if it should prove agreeable to the club the books might be retained as a nucleus for a public library, to which they would be donated whenever the number would justify the opening of such an institution, or the people of the city would show a disposition to take hold of the matter and inaugurate a movement to that end. At present, however, it is purely a private club that a number of ladies on the South Side intend to form, at a meeting to be held for that purpose next Wednesday afternoon, at the residence of Mrs. Kate Mauer, on Shelby street. Already twenty ladies have signified their intention of becoming members, and by the time of the first meeting it is believed that as many as forty will have subscribed to the movement. The initiation fee will be one dollar, and dues ten or fifteen cents a month. With this money such books will be bought as each member may indicate, and at stated periods a general exchange will take place until the round of the club has been made with the copies purchased. There will be no duplicate copies, and each book will be numbered, and at the end of the season, if it is desired, the books will be drawn for by lot or, as announced before, be turned over to the cause of a public library.

THE KENTUCKY PARLOR

And Spanish Entertainment at Judge Wm. Lindsay's.

The Spanish entertainment at the residence of Mrs. Wm. Lindsay, on Wapping street, Tuesday night, was attended by a large number of people, many of whom were visitors from other cities. The rooms were beautifully decorated, the royal colors of Spain predominating, with fancy little Spanish ornaments to heighten the effect. The ladies were attired in Spanish costumes and the gentlemen in full dress suits, Prof. Wolfe's orchestra, varied by the guitar club, as Spanish students, discoursed the music for the evening. A regular Spanish lunch was served, Mrs. Cowan and Misses Mary Page and Jennie Gaines presiding over the tables. About $100 was realized from the entertainment, which the ladies of the Columbian Club of this city intend to donate towards the furnishing of the Kentucky parlor at the World's Fair.

A Minister's Good Fortune.

Rev. J. R. Miller, pastor of the First M. E. Church, of Big Run, Pa., writes the Lafayette, Ind., ECHO as follows: "Overwork in the ministry last winter caused me to break down completely. I treated with several physicians without relief, and finally gave up and traveled eight weeks, doctoring all the time and came home no better. I then began the use of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. Four bottles of which cured me, and I am now as well as ever in my life."

State Board of Equalization.

Gov. Brown on Tuesday appointed the following gentlemen members of the State Board of Equalization, viz.: B. H. Vansant, of Sandy Hook; J. S. Phelps, of Fayette county; Joseph J. Murray, of Louisville, and Edward Starks, of Fulton county. The three secretaries of the former boards have been Mr. John W. Payne, Mr. W. H. Posey and Mr. John Harrod, all of this city. As the two latter gentlemen are experienced in the business—a matter most essential to the proper performance of the work of the board—it is probable they will be re-elected by the new board, if they desire to apply for the place. The first named secretary being dead will require the selection of a new man. The board, however, will not meet and organize for a number of months yet, as the new revenue law does not provide for the return of the assessment rolls until next June, but in the meanwhile the Auditor is authorized to call the board whenever there are enough returns to begin the annual labor of equalizing as between the counties.

A GREAT STATESMAN.

James Gillespie Blaine, Writer, Congressman and Presidential Candidate, Dead.

Though Hon. James G. Blaine has been very ill for a number of months, the announcement of his death yesterday was a sad surprise, and immediately upon receipt of the information the Legislature adjourned out of respect to his memory.

Mr. Blaine was one of the few great statesmen whose ability was recognized by both political parties, and whose influence as a leader of one of the parties has left its impress on the legislation of the country.

He was born at West Brownsville, Washington county, Pennsylvania, January 31, 1830, and educated in that county and at Lancaster, Ohio, where he lived for a time in the family of Hon. Thomas Ewing, then Secretary of the United States Treasury. About 1848 he became a professor in the Western Military Institute, at Georgetown, Ky., and after a labor here of two years returned home to Pennsylvania to practice law. In 1853 he removed to Augusta, Maine, to take charge of the Kennebec Journal and joined the Republican party on its formation, and in 1858 became noted as one of the great political speakers and was made chairman of the State Committee of that party. He was successively a member of the State Legislature, member of Congress, first in 1862, the leader of the Republican party on the death of Hon. Thaddeus Stevens, Speaker of the National House in 1869, a number of times since then the foremost candidate for President not to succeed in obtaining the office, and Secretary of State under President Garfield and also President Harrison, until he resigned about a year ago to retire to private life and wait the end which he then felt was approaching.

His "Twenty Years of Congress," published in 1883, and his speeches and addresses before the House, particularly the eulogy pronounced on President Garfield, are regarded as superior, dignified and eloquent rhetoric.
