[Harrisburg (Pa.) Independent.] They Were Not Disappointed.

Many people, especially those of credulous nature, seemed doomed to experience many and bitter disappointments. The clouds lower and the tempest roar, especially to defeat some pet plan or object of theirs; or the sun shines too hotly or the winds blow too harshly, just to interfere with their anticipated pleasure. Friends desert them and prove false when friendship is most needed, and business vanishes, leaving nothing but loss. In fact, whatever they touch turns to ashes. Disappointment seems to meet them at every step unless it be that sickness is abroad, and then they are sure of something. If it be rheumatism or other painful ailment that seizes them, some friend or other mentions St. Jacobs Oil, using which they cannot experience disappointment, for the Great German Remedy will cure all maladies of a painful nature. The following experience bears upon this point:

Mr. E. L. Russ, living on the corner of Broad and Cowden streets, says his business keeps him on his feet a great deal. Sometimes his feet get so sore and inflamed that he endures great agony. He has found much comfort and relief. however, from the Great German Remedy. Previous to using St. Jacobs Oil he never found anything to give him relief save perfect rest. The Oil relieves and enables him to work all the time.

He praises it highly. Miss Mary C. Bruner, residing at 411 Market street, is subject to neuralgia. Sometime ago while suffering great pain from an attack she was induced, happily, to use St. Jacobs Oil, and it relieved her immediately. She has tried many remedies, but gives the Oil the praise over all others, and says she can recommend it as the greatest healer of pain she has ever seen.

Mrs. Amos B. Ripper, No. 123 South Third street, uses the St. Jacobs Oil with the happiest effect when attacked with rheumatism, with which disease she is to some extent, a chronic sufferer. Her son and daughter have also employed the Great German Remedy in rheumatism, and the whole family are loud in the praise of the the great curative powers of the remedy.

Mr. D. Bensinger, with Mr. Wm. Cruikshanks, jeweler, No. 4 Market square, says he regards St. Jacobs Oil as a wonderful cure for rheumatism. He woke up one morning and found one of his feet very much swollen and paining him sharply. He put on his shoes, but found he could not bear it; soon he had to take his stocking off, and very soon the pain was so great he could not walk. He began to apply the St. Jacobs Oil, one bottle of which was sufficient to give him entire relief. He says he never saw any remedy act so quickly and happily in subduing pain. Of this nature is the testimony coming from all parts of the Whoever uses the Great German Remedy once, keeps it convenient thereafter as a household panacea. St. Jacobs Oil differs from all other articles claiming the same power, in that it does keep its promises.

Anti-Liquor

To come before the public with an absolute cure for drunkenness, or a specific to remove the desire for alcoholic stimulants, seems to many, we have no doubt, an absurdity; such is the case, nevertheless, and before offering our medicine to the public we thoroughly convinced ourselves by actual experiment that it would do all we claim for it.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, a complete non-alcoholic tonic, will not only remove all the nervous disorders and weakness remaining after excessive indulgence caused by liquor, but will absolutely kill that desire for artificial stimulants that every intemperate man feels driving him to ruin.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is also a remarkable and trustworthy remedy (having the confidence of the medical profession) for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, and all disorders of the nerves, muscles, and digestive organs. As a spring tonic for ladies, children, and all that need new life and rich blood, it is without an equal. Price $1.00 a bottle. Get the genuine.

ABOUT TEA-TASTING.

The tea-brokerage business was begun in a small way forty years ago, and has been constantly increasing until it has become an immense specialty. The commission is a half cent a pound, and the smallest amount that a broker will sell is five packages. He obtains samples from the importer and gives his customers an opportunity of carefully testing the article. Hence in a tea broker's office the kettle is always boiling, and the center-table has its extended array of teacups. The drawing is carefully weighed, and for one must turn a silver half dime, this being the usual weight. Generally a score of samples are tested at the same time, in order to make comparison. The tea-traders first try the aroma and then sip it in order to get the flavor. What nicety of taste must be required to fix values in this rapid manner! An expert tea-taster, however, will not only designate the price, but often specify the part of China in which the crop was grown. Teatasting is said to be a gift, and some can never succeed while others all at once display skill. A good taster must be of rather nervous temperament, because tea appeals to the nervous system, and the business is, therefore, one in which the latter is severely tried and sometimes is shattered. Tea brokers are sometimes obliged to taste 300 samples in a day, and during the business season 200 is an average. One reason for this excess is found in the fact that a broker may be employed to buy the entire stock for some important house. Hence he must exercise great care; but, while he makes great profits, his health suffers to a corresponding degree. The constant effect of such a stimulant indeed cannot be escaped. Tea enters the system by inhaling, and also through the muceus membrane, and lastly by the stomach, The result, as has been stated, is distressing to the nervous system, the consequences being varied according to personal idiosyncrasies. They are, however, of sufficient importance to have a place in the medical record. The tea broker must also resign the social nature of tea drinking, and when he comes home at night with a mouth irritated with professional tasting how annoying must be the announcement that "tea is ready." . The leading tea brokers are rich men, but, as in many other specialties, they have to pay for their success. -Troy Times.

THE AMERICAN LEXICOGRAPHER.

Dr. Webster was a true scion of the old New England stock. Upon his mother's side he was a descendant of William Bradford, the Plymouth Governor. The clever boys of New England families were then sent to college, and Noah Webster naturally entered Yale College in 1774. His studies were somewhat interrupted by the Revolution; but he succeeded in graduating. Afterward he taught school and studied law, being admitted to the bar in 1781. In 1782 he kept a classical school at Goshen, N. Y., and there "compiled two small elementary books for teaching the English language." In 1783 he published his "First Part of a Grammatical Institute of the English Language," followed in the course of the next two years by the second and third parts. The first part was the basis of the spelling-books which he afterward published. He had an idea that Americans should have school-books of their own, and he based his compilations upon this. He adhered to this when he published his reader, and many of the selections are from American writers and orators. His books were popular enough to make him feel the need of a copyright law, and to secure this by the legislation of the several States he studied assiduously, Congress under the Confederation having no power to protect literary property. It did not enact a copyright law until 1790. The spelling-book, as everybody knows, was enormously successful. In 1847 24,000,000 copies of the book had been published, the sale averaging 1,000,000 per annum. Upon this Dr. Webster received a premium of copyright of 5 mills a copy, and it was the profits arising from this book which, during the twenty years in which Dr. Webster was engaged upon the "American Dictionary," supported him and his family.-New York Tribune.

HORACE GREELEY AS A PRINTER BOY.

Here in Poultney the New York Tribune was founded. Here its founder washed the forms, and carried water, if a man, is only suffering from the and built the fires, and didn't sweep out the news room, and didn't carry out the ashes, and forgot what he was sent after and let the paste sour, and lost the letters he was given to mail, and upset the lye, and tried the usual experiments with the fancy job type and the finest colored inks in the way of fearful and wonderful visiting cards, and in all ways conducted himself even as the devil always does about a print shop. Here Greeley passed some years of his boyhood. I wander about the village thinking about the good old man, and trying to think of the young printer, dusting out his cases with a pair of leaky bellows, or "soldiering" for a big pick-up that was the next to the last fat thing on the hook, just under a long take of solid has tried this new remedy we would say stick nonpareil,-Burlington Hawkeye,

THE DIFFERENCE IN HUGGING.

An Eastern paper, to encourage hugging in the locality in which it is published, says: "A Wisconsin man, while augging his girl of an evening, received a telegram stating that he had fallen heir to a fortune." The Eastern paper is right in its efforts to stimulate a healthy sentiment in favor of hugging, but it does wrong to hold out such inducements, as it will not be one time in 10,000 that a man, while hugging a girl, will receive such a dispatch. He will oftener receive a dispatch bound in leather from the girl's father, which will inform him that he has fallen over a fence, and is heir to a lame back. There should be no money consideration in a case of hugging, and no hope of falling heir to anything. It is fortune enough to a man to have a girl to hug. Hugging can never become what it should be, our great national recreation and enjoyment, our picnic, as it were, until all thought of outside matters is eliminated from it, and the hugging is simply done for instance, because there is a good opportunity, and no one to say nay. The difference in hugging can readily be seen by those who have done a little of it themselves, if they go to a theater and watch the actors and actresses. It is not once in a hundred times that hugging on the stage is done because both parties like it, but is always done for money, at so much a week and wardrobe furnished.

The actor comes up to the scratch like a hired man, and puts his arm around the actress as though he was holding up a tobacco sign, and the actress smiles a two-for-a-quarter smile and looks as though she was taking pills. We have often seen a couple of lovers in the audience, who probably know scientific hugging when they see it, look at this stage hugging and curl up their lips with scorn, and look at each other as much as to say, "If it was us on the stage playing that scene, we would just break the audience all up." Occasionally a couple of stage lovers do unbend themselves and get in a hug or two that break a corset string, but in those cases one or the other blushes and looks around at the wings to see whether the actor's wife or the actress' husband is looking.

There has got to be a certain amount of fellow feeling between the hugger and the huggee or it is a mere matter of form, and not worth the price of admission. Sometimes we think we would like to go on the stage and give some of those actors a few points that would be of great benefit to them in their business, but if we should offer to do so they would probably impute cannister motives to us, and hit us with a stuffed club. It is not that we would care for the hugging, but the advancement of art .- · Peck's Sun.

Uncle Sam's Men. Uncle Sam's letter-carriers are a hardworking set of men, and are liable to contract rheumatism because of the constant exposure to which they are subjected. Calling at the postoffice the reporter had a pleasant conversation with Mr. J. H. Mattern, one of the most popular and clever letter-carriers in Indianapolis. Mr. Mattern said that, while in the army during the civil war, he sprained one of his ankles, which was always worse in the spring during the period of the rapid changes in the weather. He did not find much relief from the several remedies he applied. But two years ago he hit upon St. Jacobs Oil, and experienced wonderful relief from its use. Several applications of the Great German Remedy relieved him entirely. The reporter talked with others among the letter-carriers and found that the Great German Remedy was popular in the postoffice. They use it for sore feet, rheumatism, etc., and praise it highly.-Indianapolis (Ind.) News.

STATISTICS show that the direct loss to Germany by its emigration in sixty years has amounted to ten milliards of marks, or about two and a half milliards of dollars-more than twice the enormous sum of the war indemnity which Germany required of France at the conclusion of the late Franco-Prussian war, and the United States has been the gainer by what has been Germany's loss.

A DRUGGIST'S ADVENTURE.

Mr. Smith stood behind the counter of his drug store and gazed complacently at his clerk. It was about 9 o'clock at night, and the little store, which was established at Cherry and Roosevelt streets, A. D. 1795, was wrapped in silence. The door opened, and a young man with an ingenuous face came in and smiled, and said : " Mrs. Kinney wants a bottle of cod-liver oil, an' I'm to take it to once."

"Who's Mrs. Kinney, and where's the money?" asked Mr. Smith, rolling up the bottle.

"Why, don't you know Mrs. Kinney? She lives down on the corner below. She'll pay you to-morrow," remarked the young man. "That's all right,"

"Oh, no, it ain't," said the druggist. "My clerk will deliver the bottle, and you can show the way."

The young man said he was agreeable, and the two set out into the night.

Mr. Smith stood at ease behind the counter and looked at the eight-day clock. The door opened, and another young man came in and smiled. Mr. Smith looked at him inquiringly. The young man waltzed around the stove whistling "The Sweet Sixteen." Then he picked up a chair, and, clasping it in his arms as he would his partner, waltzed around the stove again, and then out into the chilly night.

"Police!" said Mr. Smith, vaulting over the counter. He chased the young man through the dark and chilly night, and laid hold of the chair. The young man held on, still smiling and waltzing.

At this moment a lithe young man without a smile slid into the store, emptied the money-drawer, and slid out again. The smiling young man surrendered the chair to Mr. Smith, who entered the store just as his clerk returned. Then he found that his money had taken wing, and said to the clerk:

"Did you find Mrs, Kinney?" "There isn't any," was the reply,

"Have you got the bottle?" "Yes. Have you got the chair?" "Yes. Let's shut up for the night!"

ENGLISH AND AMERICAN JOURNAL-

-New York Sun.

"Do you know how the growth of the press in England compares with that of America?"

"Well," said Mr. North, smiling, "without entering into many particulars, I can tell you that we have far outstripped our mother country in journalism. I believe there never has been any comprehensive history of the English newspaper press written, but we have a sufficient number of facts to enable us to form a comparison. For example, in 1846 only fourteen daily journals were published in the United Kingdom, while as far back as 1810, thirtysix years previous, we had 359, including twenty-seven dailies, with a total annual issue of 22,331,000 copies. In 1828 we had 852 newspapers; in 1830, 1,000; in 1840, 1,931, and in 1850, 2,800, with a circulation of 426, 409, 978."

"What is the number of English publications at present?"

"Since 1846 the number has increased slowly, and in 1880 the London Quarterly Review says only 157 daily newspapers were published in the United Kingdom, to our 987, showing a difference of 805 in our favor."-Interview with a census expert,

The small boy's idea of genuine comfort and happiness was to be pitched into a pond of ice cream whose shores were made of sponge cake. His misery was the absence of these pleasant substances. That boy simply pleasant substances. That boy simply represents humanity. Comfort is appreciated by contrast—we enjoy a thing in proportion to our conception of the disadvantages of our deprivation thereof. This applies to material things as well as to immaterial considerations. The icicle, whose appearance in the wintry cold and bleakness sends the shiver of discomfort through the observer, would suggest notions of the ecolest comfort in that and sultry days of the summer and in the one wherein its absence is completions, that most uncomfortable and torturing disease, rheumatism, plentifully abounds, causing pain and agony to myriads of people.
