A CARD.

RICHARD REID, of Montgomery county, is a candidate for Judge of the Superior Court of the Third District of Kentucky, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

In Iowa the sweet May flowers are smothered in snow.

THERE's a bare spot on the World at Louisville—Polk Johnson's head.

PHISTER will not be a candidate for re-election to Congress, in the Ninth District.

THE Barnes converts over at Richmond, will build a church. Now the sects will howl for all's out.

THE British authorities have abandoned all hope of capturing the assassins of Cavendish and Burke.

FROM general appearances, the ethereal sweet Jerusalem mildness of Spring, will not arrive here before the 4th of July.

THERE is some talk of Blaine martyring his carcass in behalf of the independent republicans of Pennsylvania, on the stump.

NEXT TUESDAY is decoration day. Somebody should gather a bundle of dog fennel and lay on the grave of the late lamented Legislature.

THERE's a place down in Lewis county, called "Wilson's Bottom." Comment tied up in a rag for sale at the Vanceburg Courier office.

ALEX. STEPHENS will not accept any other nomination than that of the straight Democracy, for Governor of Georgia. Aleck is not such a bad old cuss after all.

Two pretty and fancy-dressed shop-lifters have been sent to the penitentiary from Covington. They ought to have tackled something lighter to lift than a shop.

CRITICS are requested to suspend their opinion on President Arthur attending the races at Washington, until Buford's book can be more more thoroughly consulted.

It is perfectly cruel and heartless for the United States to combine all their venom on the Hon. Mr. C. Jules Guiteau, and cut off his existence just four days before the fourth of July. What an admirable speech he could unbottle for that memorable occasion.

It is about time that Tom Stuart, the insurmountable, indisputable, never-dying secretary of the Kentucky State Buzzardatorial Cake-Destroying Ass-association, was calling his fossilated assemblage of overwrought veterans together. Craddock smells fried chicken the air, and won't be comforted.

A CHICAGO preacher who lately lapsed in orthodoxy has made a trial appearance as "Hamlet" with the view of entering into the theatrical profession. He is pronounced deficient in the dramatic talent, though he holds a tolerable fair fist as a pianist, and there's a hope that he'll stumble into a position as "German professor" in a fourth-rate female robbery dive.

We are made nauseous forty times a week, by country exchanges bringing us the remarkable intelligence that the highly accomplished, beautiful, double-back-acting Miss T. Umble Bug is visiting Miss G. Hopper, and the queenly little Miss Jerusha Spots was the pleasant guest of Mrs. Cruikshanks yesterday for dinner. This is no news, and such darned nonsense is not appreciated by those who pay for papers. The public is not so chuckle-headed in many communities as the sap-headed editors presume. It is high time for all respectable papers to let up on this class of country cross roads juvenile gush.

APOSTROPHE.

Addressed to an Indian Maiden at a Distance of Two Hundred and Fifty Yards.

Thou still and senseless gob of bronzed and dazzling worth; we hail thee a comfortable distance and thrill to thee our little song.

Who taught thee such untutored grace of limb, such cross-eyed footsteps and such simple trust?

Who taught thee thus to overtake the angle worm and nail the locust in his rapid flight? Who skilled thee how to weave the gaudy bead upon the yellow moccasin in wild, fantastic figures of rude, impossible things?

Idly thou leanest gainst the cottonwood, scratching thy back ferriest its rough yet kindly trunk, while in thy dark, mysterious eye there lurks a hidden joy, a joy perchance like his who, yielding to the buckwheat cake's seductive power, hath found the hat rack in the hall and worked it on his shoulder blade.

Fair Alfarita! child of the dusky night, we greet thee 'cross the purple hills like the other poets who have written of thy grace. Thy child-like face hath won the poet to thy side and (in his mind) he tunes his lyre to thee.

Some day the warrior of the mountain clime will come and woo thee in the gutteral, melancholy style thy people love, and in the twilights glow, when nature and the bullfrog sinks to rest, with coy reluctance, like the man who meets his mother-in-law, thou, Alfarita, daughter of the malarious night, wilt yield thy future to the knock-kneed brave.—Boomerang.

Millersburg Items.

James Batterton, of Cincinnati, has come home to recreate and see the June races.

Our new station agent assumed control the 15th inst. He brought with him a beautiful wife and babe.

We are looking forward for a lively time during the commencement; already some prominent persons from West Va., and Texas, have arrived.

The three-to-two arrangement between Jno. Mack and E. C. Foster was quite a surprise to a great many, they thinking he would get some damages.

A great many walnut logs are coming here now. Jas. Collier will move his mill here just as soon as enough arrive to justify him in starting to saw.

A Mr. Blake from Cincinnati, O., has been here with a photographic car. He has done some very nice work on dwellings, and also takes scenery, stock, &c.

Hog thieves are getting in their work very successfully here. Several of our townsmen have lost their hogs; among them are W. H. H. Johnson, Dr Hurst, and others.

The trustees met in solemn session a night or two ago, and resolved that no one could retail liquor in the corporation for less than $200 a year. If our town makes many more jumps it will certainly be in fine financial condition.

Dr. G. D. Judy and wife have moved into our midst, taking rooms at Mrs. J. T. Taylor's. The Dr. has quite a handsome drug store, two doors above J. W. Boulden & Co's grocery. A. J. Hitt is with him in capacity of clerk.

We have eight large tobacco barns in sight of town, and more being built. Two buyers are located here, and at least four times the acreage being put in that was ever before. Millersburg promises to be a large shipper of the weed in the near future.

W. D. McClintock, from the Johns Hopkins University, arrived home Wednesday. He will make a short stay with us, after which he will attend to some collegiate business in Cincinnati, and will resume his position as professor of Natural Sciences in the Lake Chataqua Summer School.

Miss Anna Lard, of St. Joseph, Mo., is the guest of her sister Mrs. Dr. Judy. She is one of those rare vivacious blondes, with piercing raven-tinted eyes and flaxen hair, which break all the girls up with grief, and lend a far-distant and enchanted look to their eyes—and makes the boys forget that there are others to whom they have pledged their loves and lavished their fond smiles and castled-in-the-air their hope dreams of the sweet, sweet future.

On Tuesday last, two young colored boys aged respectively eight and nine years, while scuffling near the bank of Hinkston just under the railroad bridge, one pushed the other in the creek, and in a manly attempt to get his comrade out, they were both drowned. Quite a number of people visited the place—all exhibiting a great deal of sympathy for the bereaved parents, who are Geo. Mark and Jim Turney. After about two hours of diligent search, the bodies of the little fellows were found. Dan James, a small lad, and Ike Gorham, a colored man over forty years of age, were witnesses to the fatal affair. Dan was too small to render any assistance, while Ike couldn't swim, and was afraid to venture in the swift water, which was about twelve feet deep. Their bodies were recovered about fifty feet from where they fell in.

Mrs. Jutkins, wife of Dr. Jutkins, pastor of Centenary church at Lexington delivered an address in the Presbyterian church Tuesday evening and organized an auxiliary Womens' Christian Temperance Association with the following officers: President, Mrs. Mary Baxter; Vice Presidents, Mrs. John Purnell, Mrs. Julian Allen, Mrs. G. W. Judy, and Mrs. Dr. Best; Recording Secretary, Mrs. G. S. Allen; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Virginia Bent; Treasurer, Mrs. John G. Smedley. Twenty-three names for membership were secured and at a meeting Wednesday afternoon twenty-one additional names were reported. Some of these are gentlemen who are admitted only to honorary membership upon taking the pledge and paying dues. Mrs. Jutkins only remained one night. She is president of the Womens' Christian Temperance Union for Kentucky. She is a cultivated, elegant, christian woman and understands her work thoroughly. There will be a mass meeting at the Methodist church Monday evening next at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the new Association. It will be addressed by gentlemen.

JUST GOT OUT OF HELL!

My christian friends will perhaps think this blasphemy, and wonder how so good a man got into this horrible place, and especially wonder how we got out? The way we got there, happened in this way: About the 25th of January, a smooth and smiling devil came booming along, and sailed into the PARIS FLOURING MILLS, and represented that he was putting a "new dress on mill stones," claiming he was using Tom "Jones' Patent Gradual Reduction Dress," arguing that it greatly improved the quality of flour, reduced the friction in grinding, and consequently, required less power. (About two years ago, Mr. Jones called on me in person, and exhibited some beautiful samples of flour, claiming it was the result of his Patent Dress.) Whilst I had my doubts and misgivings about the subject, our smooth and smiling devil insisted on me to let him change the dress on my mill burrs, and, like a grassy "greener," I assented—a terrible mistake for me; but such is life.

"Reasoning at every step he takes, man yet mistakes his way." It required nearly a month to make this change, and then I found too late this dress would not do. The sudden reduction of wheat into flour in process of grinding, darkened the quality of the flour, and we had numerous complaints, (something so unusual.) Here was he "for sartin;" but I was determined to get out—here, I would not stay, so I went to counsel with my old sailing friends of the Limestone Mills, of Maysville; they very sympathetically informed me that they had been in the same horrible hell themselves about twelve months previously—they had adopted the same dress, and found it would not do, and at a heavy expense, they had to change back to the old dress, and then all was right again. This was comforting information to me, so I posted off to Cincinnati, and employed mill-stone dressers and mill-wright to return with me and change the mill-stones to the old dress; precisely equivalent to putting in new stones. This covered a space of six weeks. In changing the burrs back to the old dress, we got beautiful new faces and furrows in the mill burrs, pecked and diamond dressed them to perfection. This, together with some improved machinery I have just placed in the mill, with the largest and most select stock of wheat of any miller in Kentucky, I feel warranted in saying our Parisian Flour will equal, if not surpass its former reputation.

Thus it will be seen that the way we got out of "hell," we "scaled the battlements" and boomed out; and, fate favouring intend to stay out—"Praise the Lord!" Truly Yours as Ever: BILLY SHAW. Paris Mills, May 3, 1882.
