SECTION 9 of the Tariff act changes the manner of ascertaining the value of merchandise consigned by manufacturers in foreign countries to agents in the United States, and for which there is no foreign market value for the reason that the goods are specially manufactured for sale in the United States only.

SECTION 7 of the new Tariff bill directs that all duties on imported goods, except duties on all other actual or usual charges for putting up, preparing and packing for transportation or shipment. All charges of a general character incurred in the purchase of a general invoice shall be distributed pro rata among all parts of such invoice; and every part thereof charged with duties based on value shall be advanced accordingly to its property and all other actual or usual charges for putting up, preparing and packing for transportation or shipment.

SECTION 2, 013 requires that "all additions made to the entered value of merchandise for charges shall be regarded as part of the actual value of such merchandise, and if such addition shall exceed by ten per cent. the value declared in the entry in addition to the duties imposed by law there shall be collected a duty of twenty per cent. on such value."

SECTION 14 of the Revenue act of June 22, 1874, makes these provisions still more strict by authorizing the collector when charges are omitted in the invoice, to make his own estimate of them and then collect the duty on twice that estimated amount.

The negro steered him to an unused building, and after robbing him attempted to throw him into an old well. But in the struggle both fell in. The noise attracted several men from an adjoining building, who rescued the negro first, and he immediately ran off. The lad told his story, and search was made for the would-be murderer, and he was shortly afterward found, and narrowly escaped lynching. He was placed in jail, but the angry citizens talked of making another attempt, and the chances are that the State will be spared the expense of a trial. Killough formerly lived near Nebo, a small village in Hopkins County, where he committed a most atrocious murder January 23, 1882, for which he was jailed without an offer of bail. The vote was six against five in his favor, one Alderman being absent through illness. The law requires a two-thirds vote of all members of the Board to sustain articles. Hinkle was yesterday put on trial in the Circuit Court on an indictment charging him with forging a writing for the purpose of depriving another of money. He thus occupied the strange position of being on trial before two tribunals for the same offense, but the verdict of the Board of Aldermen, it is thought, will add to his chances for a favorable verdict before the court. The cases against ex-Tax Collector David Ferguson are postponed one week, owing to the absence of his principal counsel. The case against Capt. George W. Levi, ex-Chief of the Fire Department, an also alleged City Hall conspirator, has not been called. Cope Snapp, Ferguson's clerk, has applied for a change of venue, but the court withholds its decision until the next calling of the case. Great interest is manifested in the trials owing to the former prominence of the accused."
