His written resignation, with a letter giving his reasons for wishing to give up his office, will reach Washington by the first mail from this port.

GEN. FITZHUGH LEE.

I understand that the secretary of state is ready to accept Gen. Lee's resignation at once, but that President Cleveland is unwilling to have the consul general leave Havana now.

The resignation was tendered because the administration did not see fit to endorse the consul general's recommendations for what he believed necessary to be done to properly protect American citizens in Cuba.

No instructions have been received by Gen. Lee from the state department since his resignation was cabled.

THE FLOOD

Has Entailed a Loss of About Two Million Dollars—Twenty-Three Lives Reported Lost.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 25.—"The Ohio will continue rising Wednesday and Thursday," said Observer Bassler, Wednesday morning.

The lower portion of Newport is being gradually submerged by the waters from the Ohio and Licking rivers. Travel over the lower Covington and Newport bridge has been suspended.

The loss of life in the flood in the Ohio valley has reached a store and three. The loss of property is tremendous.

Those reported burned to death in the fire are: Stella Woods, of Pittsburgh. Anna Johnson, of Columbus. John Jackson, of Pennsylvania. Frank Stewart, of Indiana.

Total. $1,925,000. Pittsburgh, Pa. $500,000. Other Pennsylvania points 75,000. West Virginia 600,000.

Late Wednesday night, the river was rising at the rate of one and one-half inch an hour, and it is expected to reach, but not pass, the 60-foot stage by Thursday night.

The limit of the flood is placed at 60 feet by river men, and they believe that the rise from Pittsburgh will not have much effect when it reaches here.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., Feb. 25.—Tuesday night was one of anxiety in Lawrenceburg. Of all towns along the Ohio a big flood causes the greatest apprehension in this place.

The fearful loss in 1884 caused the government to build a levee here, running back to the foothills, and completely protecting the town from the joint floods of the Miami river and the Ohio.

A fierce wind lashed the waves against this levee Tuesday night, and many people did not sleep.

The levee will stand a stage of 65 to 68 feet. After that the floodgates must be opened and the town left to the river's mercy.

A break in the levee would mean that the waters would rush into the houses of at least 3,000 people out of the city's 5,500.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 25.—The Ohio is rising two inches an hour. At 2 o'clock it had registered 26 feet 8 inches, two and a half feet above the danger line.

Two-thirds of the town of Corbin is under water. The damage is estimated at $25,000.

The damage from the flood in Southeastern Kentucky is estimated at $200,000. The Kentucky river rose 40 feet in two hours, and in the mountain country swept everything before it.

At 12 o'clock there was 26 feet of water on the falls, two feet over the danger line. The river has reached the opera house and Falls View hotel on Fourth street and the lower portion of Shippohort is under water.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 25.—The worst is over. The great flood tide has begun to recede. The river at 8 o'clock stood 27 feet 10 inches and is falling.

Both the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers are falling. The former now is showing a depth of about twenty-nine feet. The absence of heavy ice and driftwood makes the loss to shipping less than it might have been.

At Bristol, Tenn., Tuesday morning a flood poured down the valley and for the blowing of alarm whistles several families would have perished.
