Proceedings Of The Teachers' Institute.

As the Institute progresses it grows in interest and is conceded to be the most interesting ever held in Bourbon.

The session was opened Wednesday morning by Dr. Ely, President of Caldwell College, at Danville, who followed with a talk, earnestly impressing upon the minds of the teachers the importance of their profession and the great responsibility of their positions in the formation of character.

The Institute was opened yesterday morning by devotional exercises led by Dr. Varden.

Prof. Byron King, conductor of the Institute, has occupied most of the time. His methods of teaching are concise, simple and attractive. He holds the attention of old and young without difficulty.

After the usual drill on physical and voice culture, an interesting paper was read by Miss Powers on "Teaching Geography." Her ideas were practical and most efficient.

The afternoon session was opened by a talk on the "True Teacher and her Profession," showing the broad field and channel in which to wield the influence of home, duty and life in its highest beauty. Mr. Wilson gave a very fine paper on "Physiology."

The day's program was concluded by a very thorough and encouraging talk to the teacher on his career.
