A Modern Tragedy.

[Walter Champ in Judge.]

CHAPTER I.

Ill-concealed anguish was visible on the face of Mrs. Brocade as she waited in vain for a down-town car.

At last she succeeded in hailing a passing cab. A sigh of satisfaction escaped her as she seated herself in the vehicle. Her two-dollar fare would make the driver hasten. She must reach her destination before twelve o'clock.

CHAPTER II.

"Geet up!" snarled the driver. With leathern lash he viciously urged the horse to greater speed. The vehicle bounced over the car-tracks and the determined passenger shut her lips resolutely and held tightly to the seat. The hands of her watch pointed to eleven fifty-seven. The horse was covered with foam and he breathed like a roarer. Mrs. Brocade's destination was yet four blocks distant. Silently she murmured a prayer. Relentlessly her watch ticked off the seconds. She must not be too late.

CHAPTER III.

It was eleven-fifty-nine, but the splendid building was a block away. The sight of an extra dollar spurred the caddy to make a supreme effort. As the cab stopped the horse staggered and fell dead. Mrs. Brocade pushed her way through the throng and entered the building as the clock sounded the last stroke of twelve. She was everlastingly too late. Before her eyes swam a pile of rich fabrics. A minute ago they were four dollars and ninety-eight cents. Now they were five dollars.

The disappointment was more than Mrs. Brocade could stand. She sat down and wept.

A Much Mourned Mother.

When Shafter was senior colonel of the army, he was temporarily in charge of some western post and numbered in his command an exceedingly bright, capable fellow whose cleverness was continually getting him the noncommission stripes and whose escapades were just as frequently getting him reduced to the ranks. One day this soldier turned up at Shafter's quarters with a long face and applied for leave to attend the funeral of his mother, who had died the previous night, he said, in the town. The request was granted, but later on, in looking over the same records, the colonel discovered that the same man had been granted leave the month before on the identical pretext. Shafter said nothing, but a couple of days afterward encountered the bereaved warrior on parade ground. "Look here, my man," said Pecos Bill solemnly, "I want to ask you a question. Were you good to that mother of yours while she was alive?"

"Well, sir—yes, sir—that is, I hope so," stammered the culprit, not knowing what was coming. "I hope so, too," replied the colonel. "I've heard of mothers dying for their sons, but never of one dying twice in 30 days for one. You may go in mourning for a month—at the guardhouse." —New Orleans Times-Democrat.

His Last Chance.

"Did you ever notice," said Mrs. N. Peck, "that about half of the pictures in the photographers' windows are of bridal couples? I wonder why they always rush off to a photographer as soon as the knot is tied?"

"I fancy the husband is responsible for it," said Mr. Peck. "He realizes that it is about his last chance to ever look pleasant." —Pearson's Weekly.

Twenty-nine sheep introduced into the Australian colonies in 1788 are now represented by 126,000,000 of the finest wool sheep in the world.

THERE are eggs and eggs. The egg of yesterday looks, feels, measures and weighs like the egg of last month, but there's a difference in another respect, and that difference is worth money. Its just so with laundry. The difference between good work and poor is slight to the unpracticed discernment, but it's a difference that counts every time. It's a difference that changes your laundry bill from an expense to an investment. We do good work—it will cost no more than poor work but its worth double the difference. BOUBRON STEAM LAUNDRY.

We keep up with the times and you will find large selected line of Reefers and Boys overcoats at Price & Co's, and at the right price.
