ANDREWS OPERA COMPANY.

The Lexington Herald Tuesday printed the following comment on the Andrews Opera Company in that city Monday night:

The Andrews Opera Company began a three-nights' engagement at the opera house last night. "Martha" was the opening bill and the result was an excellent and finished production of this well-known musical success. The Andrews Company is composed of artists of talent, thoroughly capable of giving a most satisfactory rendition of all the operas in their repertoire, not only so as to win applause from the most critical of musical students, but also from those whose musical tastes lack cultivation but not an appreciation of the good.

Miss Myrta French sings the leading roles and possesses a soprano voice of great scope and expression and unusual sweetness. The audience last night was enthusiastic when she sang "The Last Rose of Summer" in the second act. Mr. F. W. Walters, the tenor, Mr. W. H. West, the basso, and Miss Pearl Nighter, together with Miss French, took the principal parts and formed a quartet of vocalists whose equals are very seldom heard on the local stage.

Their engagement at the Grand in this city will open to-night with "Martha," to-morrow afternoon "Pirates of Penzance," and to-morrow night "Carmen." The advance sale is the largest of the season, and those wishing seats for either of the night performances had better secure them at once.

A POOR RELATION.

The present tour of Sol Smith Russell's idyllic play "A Poor Relation," made possible by the enforced abandonment of the eminent comedian's season, owing to ill health, is the first opportunity many of the smaller cities have had of seeing this delightful play. The performance itself will be of an exceptionally high order, as Manager Fred Berger has retained the company he had engaged to support Mr. Russell, and has secured Frank J. Keenan, the capable young actor, who resembles in person and methods the great comedian himself more nearly than any actor in America, to play the part of "Noah Vale, a character picture so life-like that the audience immediately enters with complete sympathy into the story of his trials, reverses and successes. Mr. Keenan played the part of "Brother Paul" in "The Christian," and has been a member of James Herne's Company and the Pike Stock Company in Cincinnati.

This performance next Tuesday night will be the dramatic event of the season, and the audience is sure to be a large and fashionable one.

Miss Mand Daniel and A. S. Wilbur, of the W. J. Opera Company, were married in New York last Sunday. Miss Daniel will continue with the company.

The Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune says: The most favorable reports as to Mr. Frank J. Keenan's success in "A Poor Relation" come from all of the cities so far visited. Mr. Keenan's ability is so well known to all Cincinnatians that it is not surprising to many of them to be told that many cities declare he plays the part of Noah Vale quite as well as ever did Mr. Russell. Mr. Keenan will be seen in Chillicothe, January 26; Middletown, January 27; Maysville, January 29; Paris, January 30; Frankfort, January 31; Owensboro, February 1; Evansville, February 2, and Cairo, February 5.

On motion of Commonwealths Attorney Franklin the indictment against John Whallen, of Louisville, has been quashed.

During a matinee at a Cumberland Md., theatre Miss Lizzie Shoebright, who was standing up behind Chas. Ridgely, couldn't resist the temptation to tickle the latter's bald head with her handkerchief. Ridgely became angry and had the girl and her escort ejected from the theatre. The young lady afterwards apologized to Ridgely and said she was ashamed, but she just couldn't resist the temptation. Ridgely says she is a mighty sweet girl if she did make him feel cheap.
