Address To Colored People.

Elder J. C. Graves, principal of our Colored Schools, has secured Bishop Arnet to deliver an address to the colored people on the evening of his school closing June 7th. This is a wise selection, and shows the deep interest Eld. Graves is taking in the people of his race.

Bishop Arnet has no equal as an orator in his race, and our colored people should begin now to give the noted orator such a hearing as has never been given a colored speaker in Paris.

Bishop Arnet ranks first in his church for his general intelligence, honesty of purpose and love for his race. His subject will be, "The Bright Side of a Dark Subject." Other announcements will be made later on.

Thought Mrs. Nation Had Come.

Friday afternoon several of the employees of the new telephone company were bringing an unusually long pole down Tenth street to Main on one of their transfer wagons. When they arrived at the corner of Tenth and Pleasant, the driver attempted to turn into Pleasant. The pole was too long to permit the turn, and as it swung around it demolished every pane of glass in the front of the saloon of Coughlin Bros., on the corner.

"Peacock" Coughlin was behind the counter at the time, reading the Bourbon News, account of Mrs. Nation's former visit here. When the crash of glass came, he jumped at the conclusion that Mrs. Nation had arrived, and seizing a shotgun in one hand and a bag-starter in the other, he prepared to meet the enemy. Just then a female denizen of the "Bowery" came in to get a "growler" of beer, and was frightened almost out of her wits by an order to "hold up your hands and drop that hatchet!"

After explanations had been made and all damages settled by the telephone people, the pole prodded by the corner of Tenth and Main, where it pulled up by the roots the entire iron fence enclosing the yard of Mr. Buckner Woodford.

A Plea for Paris.

It will be an impossibility for the managers of the Opera House in this city to secure first class attractions for next season, unless those they are furnishing this season are better patronized. There has never been a better play given to the American public than that of "Arizona," which is to be given at the Opera House to-night. It was written by Mr. Augustus Thomas, the foremost American dramatist. The scenery for every act was painted by the leading scene painters of the country, and the decorations, costumes and accoutrements were designed by the master hand of Frederic Remington.

As the name implies, "Arizona" has its scenes, characters and incidents located in the picturesque far west. It has a love story of tender and almost as tragic as that of "Romeo and Juliet," and it has a relief work of humor as ripe and unctious as that which Mr. Thomas has previously shown us in "Alabama" and "In Missouri."

To those persons who rush to Lexington at every opportunity to witness a performance a little above the average, we would say patronize your home place of amusement, and in a short while it will not be necessary for you to go to Lexington.

STORIES OF THE STAGE.

Coming Attractions, Gossip in the Lobby and Boxes

"ARIZONA."

"Augustus Thomas' play, "Arizona," to be presented at the Opera House to-night is a conspicuous novelty in the way of stage literature, not that the constructing or animating motives of the characters are any different from those which have become familiar to the student of the drama in Shakespeare's time down to the present, but by reason of the unfamiliar field of action and the characters entirely strange to most theatre-goers. Thomas has taken the ranch people of the Southwest, Uncle Sam's cavalrymen, the neighboring and erratic Mexican and the bland silent-fisted Chinese seivior, for the folks who unwind the skein of as pretty and dainty a romance as has ever been written by an American author. In selecting the artists who are to impersonate these peculiar characters, Mr. Thomas has chosen individuals especially adapted for the portrayal of the roles which they are to enact.

John W. Cope, who is playing Canby the Ranchman, in "Arizona," has been retained by Kirke LaSelle to play that part in the revival at the Academy of Music in New York.
