DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

FOR CONGRESS:

SOUTH TRIMBLE, of Franklin. FOR CIRCUIT JUDGE

JAS. B. CANTRILL, of Scott. FOR COMMONWEALTH'S ATTORNEY, R. B. FRANKLIN, of Franklin.

The polls open at 6 a. m. and close at 4 p. m. to-day.

PIFF PUFF is a new game, and its name sounds like a Republican editorial on prosperity.—Commoner.

Over a thousand waitresses in Chicago restaurants threaten to strike if demands for higher wages are refused.

A WISCONSIN woman has sued for divorce because her husband tied her pet poodle to a pole and used it as a chimney sweep.

A BUTTE, Mont., editor has fatally shot a physician. Perhaps the physician didn't take his paper. Now is the time to subscribe.

The democracy stands on the tariff and trust questions where it has always stood, namely, "Equal rights to all and special privileges to none."

AMONG the voters who registered in Covington, Ky., is Mr. Justus Goebel, Mr. Justus Goebel, like Mr. Harvey Irwin, was formerly a citizen of Ohio.

JOHN A. MORGAN, a prominent politician of Norfolk, Va., killed himself for harmony's sake. It had come to his ears that his death would smooth out matters in his county.

If every voter in America goes to the polls to-day and votes each in his own interests, the Republican vote will just about equal the number of men holding fat government jobs.

Of course, if Mr. Foraker and Mr. Hanna should hear of a wicked trust that is really supported by the tariff, they would be horrified by the discovery.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Republicans are so busy rejoicing over the "settlement" of the coal strike that they will not have time to talk trusts for some time—and yet the trust question is still unsettled.

"Vote as my hired man shot," writes Taylor to Tanner, "straight from the shoulder." And he should have added, "then shoot as I scooted, straight for Indiana."—Louisville Times.

The broad rimmed hats for ladies is all the style just now, but let us stop to remind our feminine friends that it is certainly out of style and not in good taste to wear them at the theatre.

The homeopathic doctors have opened a crusade against kissing, claiming that it is a prolific source of disease. Homeopathy will be a few years science long before kissing begins to wane.

A VOTE for the Democratic ticket is a vote for the supremacy of the constitution, equality before the law, the truths of the Declaration of Independence and the destruction of private monopolies.

A BITTER Republican fight in the Somerset judicial district has been settled by the withdrawal of Judge T. Z. Morrow and G. N. Shadoan from the race for Circuit Judge, both agreeing to support O. H. Wade, a former Democrat, for the nomination.

JUDGE FAULKNER, of the City Circuit Court, instructs his grand jury that "the assassin has no place in this country." However, if the present Republican composition of the Kentucky Court of Appeals is reaffirmed at the polls to-day, Judge Faulkner's finding in this matter will be promptly reversed.—Louisville Times.

THOSE of our Democratic fellow citizens who expect to be candidates for county offices in the future can show their devotion to the interest of their party by seeing that the Democratic voters in their respective localities go to the polls to-day. A material falling off in the Democratic majority would give the Republicans confidence to make a fight on the next local ticket.

That Indianapolis suicide who willed his body to a medical college merely made a virtue of necessity. Recent statistics show that traffic in human "stiffs" is the leading business of the Hoosier capital, no dead man, woman child being permitted to escape "the invidious activity" of captains of industry.—Louisville Times.

You want high meats in the market and low prices on the farm just place yourselves in the hands of the trusts. The Republicans have planted, and cultivated them, and if the people do not speak now the time will soon be when everything will go as Mark and his may direct. The hope of the people is through the Democratic party.—Mt. Sterling Advocate.

The largest single business in the world is providing the people with meat to eat, and in that line Chicago is the largest market in the world. In the stockyards and associate occupations there are employed in the Windy City 45,000 persons and more millions of dollars than the human mind can comprehend and they are all being merged into one mammoth combine, with branches throughout all the great Western stock-raising region.

Every crook has his own peculiar bent.

Two heads are better than one—except in the family.

Love may have wings, but riches get there with both feet.

The homesick man isn't always the one who is away from home.

Few men die from overwork. Work is almost as harmless as a French duel.

Happy is the man who can forget all the mean things he knows about himself.

It isn't at all likely that the "armless wonder" can play the piano by ear.

It's no sign a newspaper is crippled because it can't get along without a staff.

A minister ought not to be called "doctor" unless he both practices and preaches.

"Money is the root of all evil," said the sexton as he made a grave, "and that's what I'm digging for."

When a fellow gets the reputation of being a mad wag he should look out for the dog catcher.

A good hope is better than a bad possession.

No, Maude, dear, we have never heard that the female elephant requires a larger trunk than the male.

The fellow who doesn't know enough to come in out of the rain, may still be slick enough to carry a borrowed umbrella.

To the sick man, hope is the best medicine the doctor can dispense.

It is not procrastination to put off your clothes till to-morrow.
