

Bad Stomach Makes Bad Blood.

You can not make sweet butter in a foul, unclean churn. The stomach serves as a churn in which to agitate, work up and disintegrate our food as it is being digested.

The ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery are just such as best serve to correct and cure all such derangements. It is made up without a drop of alcohol in its composition; chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead of the commonly employed alcohol.

When combined, in just the right proportions, with Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherry bark, Queen's root, Blood-root and Mandrake root, or the extracts of these, as in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, there can be no doubt of its great efficacy in the cure of all stomach, liver and intestinal disorders and derangements.

Who can doubt the curative virtues of a medicine the ingredients of which have such a professional endorsement? Constipation cured by Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One or two a dose.

An American Provisional Government assumed possession of Cuba Saturday, when War Secretary Taft's proclamation declaring himself Provisional Governor of the island was formally issued. The proclamation was published in the official gazette, and thousands of printed copies of the document were distributed in Havana and elsewhere. The terms of the proclamation caused general satisfaction, especially on account of the moderate terms in which it is phrased, its statement of Cuba is undertaken only on account of the necessity of the situation, and its promise that the provisional government will be maintained purely for the purpose of restoring peace, order and public confidence until a permanent government is established.

Crosdale's Cafe.

The above concern, formerly known as the Elks Cafe, has now established itself in its new, commodious and convenient quarters in the Odd Fellows' Hall, where first-class regular meals, short orders, lunches, banquets, or any special spread that may be desired, will be served.

Arrangements can be made for dances or receptions by giving us due notice. We desire to make this resort the best we have ever had and wish it understood that we are not conducting a boarding house, but an up-to-date, high-toned cafe, where people of refinement can retire in seclusion and comfort, free from the vulgar stare and petty annoyances of strangers and loungers and secure that they desire, from a cup of coffee to any elaborate dish they may prefer.

Our motto has ever been 'quality, not quantity.' The dining room is easily reached on the second floor and we would here remind the public that it is not a question of the upstairs, or down stairs, outside or inside, with the right thinking class, as to your accommodation, but the character and tone of the inducements you have to offer them, and the man behind the gun.

We are not in competition, therefore do not consider it, but come before the public on our merits and not on a dollar and cent basis, and ask our friends and the trade to be governed and actuated accordingly.

Respectfully, GEO. CROSDALE, Proprietor. Both phones.

Shooting Affray.

Chas. W. Penn and Walker Muir, two prominent farmers of the Clintonville precinct, and who are near neighbors, met yesterday afternoon and renewed an old grudge each held against the other and Muir came near losing his life by a ball from Penn's pistol.

It seems the two met in front of Flanagan's saloon, on Main street, and began talking of their old trouble. Muir, as we are informed, offered to shake hands and bury the hatchet, when some one stepped between them and pushed Penn off the sidewalk, when he drew his gun and fired three times at Muir. One of the shots pierced Muir's hat band and grazed the top of his head; one hit a negro in the heel, the other shot was not accounted for.

Muir advanced on Penn and grabbed him, throwing him down and taking his pistol from him. Chief of Police Hill arrested Penn and placed him in jail, he afterwards being released on a $500 bond.

NO SENTIMENT IN SIGHS.

They Are Simply Caused by a Desire For More Breath.

The sigh, which from time immemorial and by all the poets who ever sung has been regarded as a matter of sentiment and connected with the emotions, is declared by physicians to be as purely a physical phenomenon as is the sneeze or cough. A well known Philadelphia doctor, speaking of this the other day, explained that the sigh is nature's method of making one take a deep breath. When the lungs have been getting insufficient air a sigh is the means by which they are replenished, or when the air has been impure the sigh which one often takes in stepping out into the open air is from the same cause.

The doctor admitted that people sometimes sigh from sorrow or other mental ill, but maintained that this is partly because it has been accepted as the expression of grief through ages as long as kissing and handshaking have been accepted as signs of affection or friendship. Another reason why a sigh follows a sorrowful thought is that such thoughts are often concentrated and intense enough to cause insufficient breathing. When the lungs suffer for a certain time from this insufficiency the sigh follows. Sighs are often caused, too, says the same authority, by certain sorts of indigestion.—Philadelphia Record.

The Critical Ages.

It is calculated that the amount of heat given off by the human body within twenty-four hours would be sufficient, if concentrated, to bring a nine inch cube of steel to a white heat. It is this heat which literally burns up the body, and the very first day that a man ceases to renew the tissues by taking food he loses about half a pound or a pound in weight. Brain workers give off a greater amount of heat than physical workers; hence they are more liable to collapse. After overwork they are obliged to lie up till they can obtain more capital—in other words, they have been consumed by the fire of the body at a quicker rate than it takes nature to supply a quantity of fresh tissue and muscle. The ages of twenty-one, twenty-eight, thirty-five and forty-two are the most critical periods of a person's lifetime, for at about these ages nature will have fitted the body out with new raw materials, which may or may not stand the test of the person's ever changing habits of life.

THE PEOPLE OF PARIS.

Their First Movements in Revolutions Are Usually Generous.

I know the men of the people in Paris too well not to know that their first movements in times of revolution are usually generous and that they are best pleased to spend the days immediately following their triumph in boasting of their victory, laying down the law and playing at being great men. During that time it generally happens that some government or other is set up, the police return to their posts and the judge to his bench, and when at last our great men consent to step down to the better known and more vulgar ground of petty and malicious human passions they are no longer able to do so and are reduced to live simply like honest men. Besides, we have spent so many years in insurrections that there has arisen among us a kind of morality peculiar to times of disorder and a special code for days of rebellion. According to these exceptional laws, murder is tolerated and have permitted, but theft is strenuously forbidden, although this, whatever one may say, does not prevent a good deal of robbery from occurring upon those days for the simple reason that society in a state of rebellion cannot be different from that at any other time, and it will always contain a number of rascals who as far as they are concerned scorn the morality of the main body and despise its point of honor when they are unobserved.—'Recollections of De Tocqueville.'

TIDAL FLUX AND REFLUX.

Complicated Movements of the Billows of the Oceans.

Those who see the rise and fall of the tides in our Atlantic harbors seldom think of the wonderful course of the ocean waves which cause the tidal flux and reflux. Such billows not only cross the sea, but flow from ocean to ocean, and in this way complicated movements are set going.

Thus, for instance, once in every twelve hours the moon raises a tide billow in the southern Indian ocean. When this billow passes the Cape of Good Hope at noon its successor is already born, and by the time the first billow has reached the Azores islands at midnight the second is rounding the cape, and a third has come into existence in the southern ocean. By 4 o'clock in the morning following its passage of the cape the tide billow reaches the English channel, and there the shallow waters delay it so much that it does not arrive at the strait of Dover until 10 a. m. Here the narrowing channel causes the tide to rise very high and almost puts an end to the wave.

In the meantime another branch of the billow runs around the western side of the British islands, rounds the north point of Scotland and moves slowly down the eastern coast of England until it finally flows up the Thames and laps the wharfs of London.—Philadelphia Record.

The Fallsades.

This uplift of volcanic matter, resting on baked sandstone and inclining westward at a gentle slope, presents in its riverward aspect the columnar or palisaded appearance that so impressed the early voyagers—a gray wall befitting from 300 to 500 feet above the tide, shagged with trees at the summit, half buried behind a scrap of talus, that is also verdurous. At Nyack it bends into the amphitheater where that pretty town has nestled, surges riverward again to form Pointo-Point and, still ascending behind Haverstraw, reaches in High Tor a lift of 820 feet. As the dike extends southward also to Bayonne, its total length is forty miles, but the Palisades proper form the river for half that distance.—Charles M. Skinner in Century.
