Bryan's Tariff Views.

Recently Mr. Bryan delivered an address at Carnegie Hall, in New York on "Thou Shalt Not Steal." At the conclusion of the speech a number of questions were asked from the audience and Mr. Bryan answered them. He was asked this question:

"Do you stand for immediate and radical tariff revision and do you represent the Democratic party in so standing?" This was his answer:

"I will answer the last part first. I am not prepared to say for a few months yet whether I stand for the Democratic party or not. I am proud to say that I do not stand for some people who call themselves Democrats. Whether the revision that I stand for is considered radical or not is a question of opinion. I stand for immediate revision, I will have it tomorrow if I can't get it today. I would rather have had it yesterday than to-day. Now as to that word radical, it is a matter of opinion. I used to be radical. Now I am very conservative. What people thought was radical a few years ago is now regarded as not only conservative but necessary. And many who thought that I was dangerously rapid a few years ago now think that I am inexcusably slow. I believe in the immediate revision of the tariff downwards not upwards, and I would commence by putting upon the free list the articles that come into direct competition with the articles controlled by the Trusts. I would give these men a certain length of time—not too long,—say, a few months, and I would say to them: "If you don't stop conspiring behind this tariff wall we will take the wall away and make you compete with the world." I would then proceed to make material reductions in the necessities of life, and I would go through the tariff and I would pick out the fraudulent paragraphs that were put in by stealth for the purpose of securing advantages that even the farmers of them did not understand, and one of them would be the duty of 150 per cent that was put in for the protection of oil, after it had been put upon the free list. If you read the statute, you will find it says that if oil comes from a country that puts tariff on oil, then we shall put a similar tariff on oil from that country, and it happens that our only competitor in oil is Russia; she puts a tariff on oil, and therefore while on its face we have a free trade in oil, yet really we have not got it at all. I could then proceed to make such other reductions as were possible—and when I say possible, I mean that the laws are made by the representatives of the entire country, and in the making of the law you have to consult the opinions of these people who represent all sections of the country—and I would proceed as rapidly as possible to make such reductions as would be necessary to put our tariff upon a revenue basis, so that our tax laws would be made for the purpose of securing revenue for the Government and not for the purpose of enabling a few people to get rich at the expense of the rest of the people.

(Great laughter and applause throughout.)

Deserved Criticism.

The frequent absence of Governor Willson at Frankfort while the Legislature is in session, with matters of vital importance engaging public attention, and the storm clouds of discontent lowering in more than one locality, and anarchy asserting itself is the subject of adverse criticism on the part of the press and people, and it seems to be deserved. He seems too fond of making after dinner speeches.

Has Not Made Good.

Up to the present time, Governor Willson has not met public expectation in meeting and settling certain questions that vitally concern the welfare of the State and the safety of the people. And he started out with such good promises and under favorable conditions. Nearly everybody, without regard to politics, wished him well in his public service, and stood ready to applaud every good act that he might do in the way of putting down lawlessness and making more secure the rights of property.

Will You Listen.

The negroes of Ohio are standing pat as to the Republican nomination for President. Harry C. Smith, a Cleveland, Ohio, editor and former legislator, says "if the Republican National Convention nominates Taft 95 per cent of the colored voters of Ohio will vote the Democratic ticket." He gives the further information that "there are nearly 50,000 negro voters in Ohio, enough to swing the State." Now, what do you think of that?

A Glance Ahead.

If Taft were elected President, he would probably have the appointment of three or four justices of the United States Supreme Court. It is not hard to guess how such appointees would stand on the question of government by injunction. With Federal courts packed by Taft, and a big army and a big navy controlled by Taft, there would be no use for a Congress to make laws, or even for the blessed initiative and referendum; since the courts and the army and the navy, both directed by Roosevelt per Big Bill would really govern the country without regard to laws. This seems to be the true inwardness of the Roosevelt policies, so warmly endorsed by some Democrats whose sight is better than their foresight.
