Bourbon Farm.

For purpose of division, I will offer for sale at public auction, at the court house door, in Paris, Ky., at 11 o'clock, a. m., on the farm owned by and known as the Edwin Bedford farm, consisting of 400 Acres of Rich Farming Land.

Saturday, Sept. 25, 1909

The tract fronts on the west side of the Maysville & Lexington turnpike, and lies immediately on the Interurban railway from Paris to Lexington, and is situated about five miles from Paris and twelve miles from Lexington. It is well watered, and has 180 acres of splendid tobacco land. It is one of the most productive farms in the Blue Grass region.

The improvements consist of a house of six rooms and two tenement houses, two large tobacco barns, and all necessary farm buildings, such as stock barns, corn cribs, etc.

TERMS.—One-third cash, balance in one and two years, equal payments, negotiable notes, bearing interest at six per cent. per annum until paid.

The Boy and the Book.
"The late Edward Everett Hale," said a Boston magazine editor, "was a great student of child life."
"Dr. Hale once dilated to me on the incorrigibly bad taste in books that children have. He instanced the case of his own son, now a famous architect, whose taste he had a hard time forming."
"The little boy, it seemed, cared only for the sensational in literature. Jack Harkaway and Deadwood Dick seemed to him the very topmost pinnacle of literary excellence. He yawned over the splendid historical works his father read to him."
"One day, however, Dr. Hale had a gleam of hope. The little boy brought him a volume of English history and said:
"Will you read me some more out of this, please?"
"Why, certainly, my boy," the father answered cordially. "What part would you like to have?"
"Read me," said the little boy, "about Mary, queen of Scots, getting her head cut off and the blood all running down her back."

Division.
The new teacher glanced smilingly over the school and was delighted to see so many bright young faces among her new charges.
"Now, children," she said, "so that I may find out what you know I will test you on arithmetic. Maggie Wilkins, if I were to divide three bananas among seventeen boys what would be the result?"
"A riot," said Maggie, speaking up like a little drum major.
"Possibly," said the teacher, "but that is not what I mean. Tommy, you may take the question. Three bananas among three boys—that would be one banana apiece for each boy. Now, three bananas among seventeen boys would be what?"
"Three bananas, m'm," answered Tommy.
"I know, but three into seventeen is—said the teacher.
"Three bananas would go into seventeen boys once and none over," said Tommy confidently.
It was then that the new teacher resigned.—Harper's Weekly.

The Wilderness.
This theater of bloody conflicts is a vast sea, so to speak, of a dense forest—a second growth more than a century old. It is made up chiefly of scrubby, low limbed, stubborn oaks and disordered, haggard pines, for the soil is cold and thin, with here and there scattering clumps of alien cedars. Some of the oaks are large enough to cut two railroad ties, and every once and awhile you come across an acre or two of pines ten to twelve inches in diameter, tall and tapering, true to the soaring propensities of their kind. But generally, and above all where the battle was fought, the trees are noticeably stunted and so close together and thick lower limbs so intermingled with a thick underbrush that it is very difficult indeed to make one's way through them.—Atlantic Monthly.

Meredith's Advice to Stead.
W. T. Stead tells a characteristic story of George Meredith, which is all the more appreciable as it is told against himself.
"He was a true friend," says Mr. Stead, "not less faithful in criticism than he was cordial in his appreciation. Of the former I remember well the neat way in which he put me out of conceit with my first attempt to write a story. I sent him my little effort with fear and trembling. My trepidation was not without warrant. I have read 'From the Old World to the New,' he wrote. 'Some of the characters are interesting and well drawn. One of them especially reminds me of Cecil Rhodes. But if any one of your friends tells you that he likes the story as a story don't believe him.'"

Swiss Flags.
The Swiss flag is red, and it bears a Greek cross in its center. The Switzers declared their independence in 1307, and at the battle of Morgarten, 1315, where the Austrians were defeated, they carried a plain red flag without any device. During the seventeenth century a white cross was added, though it is said that the cross appeared on some Swiss flags as early as 1339. The different cantons of Switzerland have different coats of arms and different flags.

Verdi's Secrecy.
Verdi observed great secrecy concerning his operas, even to his business associates, and it is said that the first intimation his business managers, the Ricordis, received of the composition of "Falstaff" was a toast offered by Bolto, who at supper one night, when the publisher and his wife were present, slyly glanced at Verdi and proposed a health to the "fat knight," at which it seemed Verdi and Bolto had been working for months.

An Aspersion Suspected.
"That is quite a remarkable Rembrandt," said the connoisseur.
"Sir," rejoined Mrs. Cumrox.
"Yes, Rembrandt, you know, the great painter."
"Oh! I thought you said 'remnant,'"—Washington Star.

The Fraction.
"Humble as I am," said a loud voiced orator at a meeting, "I still remember that I am a fraction of this magnificent empire."
"You are, indeed," said a bystander, "and a vulgar one at that."—London Express.

Curious.
If a man is bettered his condition is improved; if he is "bested" he is really "worsted."
