Arctic Ice. Cold water thrown on the ice of the arctic regions will crack it, just as boiling water will crack a piece of glass. This is because the ice is so much colder than water.

All Around Town.

The first ring of the door bell brings a gentleman to the front.

"Good evening, sir."

"My name is Whitley. (Wade Hampton.) Came over for Scheneberg's suit."

"For Scheneberg's suit? Holy Moses, and you will get lost in his suit; you men Scottie's."

"No! You see it's this way. I'm allowing for an outage of three pounds dirt, and shrinkage of foot or so all round. This stuff's got to be washed."

"What did you say the name was please?"

"Wade Hampton Whitley, sir, and by permission I refer you to any lawyer or banker in town, (Thomas, Talbott, Dickson, McClure, myall, etc.) and I want the suit, sir."

"My name is Haynie, sir; Tom Haynie, and you can't get the suit on such references. You haven't any of them in sight I see. Better hike away and get somebody, just anybody I know if you want that suit. Your references may be o. k. but, oh, that 'physiog.'"

"Stung!"

"Stung's right!"

"Can't climb the ladder of fame whether it be base ball or law without an occasional rap from the bee."

Sore was he. Don't know. Sore he will be after the game. Yes he might score one, two, three in a lame man's race, when there were not more entries. Here's to you Whit.

Next morning (Wednesday)

"Say, Doc, what's good for a fellow who thinks he has been in the game right along and really has been out for many years?"

"Be seated Whit, let's talk it over."

"No, if you can't prescribe for me while I'm standing I'll just go over to the office and make one seating do for two. So here's wishing Doc, the hospital was here now. In the distance I seem to hear the noise of the ambulance. Ah, me! how soothing the thought," and the doctor crossed over to the other side (Good Samaritan like) and poured oil, (sweet oil and ammonia) over the troubled spots of his anatomy.

And say did it take all and then some.

"Massage, did you say? Go slow, Doc; be easy there, touch lightly; I'm all in. Say Doc, what's the matter, I'm as crazy as a bat? Is my type-writer running? Mr. Ump, how many strikes? Two?" "Whiff, you're out Whit."

"Back to the pine hills of North Carolina for me. Never ought to have mixed up with such a bunch."

The colloquy between Whitley and Haynie was the climax of the ridiculous to an onlooker.

One of the best known members of the Paris bar, who has a large and lucrative practice is one of the best storytellers of his profession, and enjoys a good joke as well as anyone. He tells this one on himself:

"During one of the hot nights we had not long ago my wife and boy being away from home, I decided to try the out door sleep plan, and after a good deal of maneuvering got my bed out on the porch where the cool night winds might sob and sigh across my manly form and cool my fevered brow. I retired late and soon was taken a sixteen row hike through dreamland. I am a very sound sleeper and seldom move out of one position.

"At daylight, some sixth sense, that subtle feeling that appraises one of another's presence, woke me suddenly.

"As soon as I could dig the slumber misters from the other and inner recess of my optics I spied on the other side of my comfortable bed, calmly snoozing away as if he was in a hotel bed, a genuine specimen of the genus hobo—dirty, unwashed, redolent and generally unmentionable. The fellow felt my gaze of astonishment and springing up he called out cheerily: 'Come on 'boy,' it's time for us to skeedaddle.' Seeing me speechless he hurriedly decamped leaving me gasping in wonder and dismay. The explanation? Oh, yes, simple. Why the cor-founded tramp seeing the bed and its occupant out there thought it was a fellow hobo who had found a good thing and he unceremoniously tumbled in. Well I guess I slept in the house the next night with mosquitoes and general discomfort galore. Oh, yes!"

TUESDAY.

The Bourbonites went to Frankfort Tuesday and were defeated by the Lawmakers, the game resulting in a shutout for the locals. Lester Cornell won his fifteenth consecutive victory and so complete did he have the Paris club at his mercy that only one clean drive was made off of him during the nine sessions and only one of the Bourbonites reached the third station, which was the result of a base on balls.

Pool held the Lawmakers to seven hits, only about three of which could be counted as clean safeties, and fanned seven of the men who faced him. The score:

WEDNESDAY.

Following the two defeats for the Bourbonites on Monday and Tuesday Kuhn & Company came over from Shelbyville on the afternoon of Wednesday and essayed to check the upward stride of the Bourbonites toward Penntsville.

The effort was far-fetched, inasmuch as the confidence which the locals played revealed their opponents, and after the nine sessions had been traversed, came out with the largest amount of tallies five the best in number, while a bobble in the sixth inning saved the Shelby aggregation from a complete blanking.

Winchell was chosen to twirl the McKernan tribe to victory and his assortment of deceptive benders were entirely too much for his opponents, with the result that fourteen were retired via the strikeout route and safe drives were so few that the affair was tame from the onset.

The Bourbonites started well in the opening session after Kuhn had gone out on an early grounder. McKernan followed with a hot one that bounded off Gisler's shins and the runner reached the first station in safety. Kaiser followed with astinger to the right garden that sent McKernan to third and a moment later pilfered second. Goodman looked over four bad ones and was given a pass. Scott followed with a safe one that scored Kaiser and McKernan. With third and second occupied Barnett sent a high one to Hogan and on the out Goodman crossed the pan. Chapman grounded to Badger for the third out.

Winchell opened the sixth session by giving both Long and Badger a base on balls. The runners were advanced a peg on Kuhn's sacrifice. Miller whiffed the wind and Stengall lifted one to Chapman that should have retired the side but the ball was misjudged and both men scored. Gisler fanned for the last out.

The entire Bourbonite aggregation faced Harrell in the seventh. Kuhlman led off with a hit to left and went all the way to third when McKernan sent the ball into right territory. McKernan stole second and Kaiser fanned. Goodman punked a slow one to Harrell that struck the twirler in the breast on the bound and could not be recovered before Kuhlman had crossed the rubber and Goodman had reached first. Scott followed with a high one to Long and on the out McKernan scored. Barnett drew a pass and Goodman scored when Chapman hit to right. Barnett and Chapman scored when Thau drove the ball to the fence for three bases. Winchell hit to Kuhn for the third out. Score: Paris, 3 0 0 0 0 5 0 x—8

THURSDAY.

Paris took the second game of the present series from Shelbyville yesterday by a score of 2 to 1. Anton Kuhn, who administered a shutout to the Bourbonites in a brilliant game on the Shelbyville grounds recently was sent in to duplicate his performance, but failed. However he kept the Paris batters guessing and they were only able to drive the ball in to safe territory five times during the contest.

Several times the visitors had men on base and the situation looked anything but pleasing but by snappy playing they pulled out of the holes and only in the first inning were the Millers able to get a man all the way around.

Today the Bourbonites and Millers will try conclusions at White Park and on Saturday afternoon the Lawmakers will furnish the entertainment. Sun-day afternoon the Millers and Bourbonites will meet at White Park in a double header. Paris, 0 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 0—2

Child Attacked by Vicious Dog.

Samuel, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Margolen, was attacked and severely injured by a bull dog with which it was playing in the ayrd of Mr. J. L. Earlywine on Henderson street, Wednesday morning.

The dog, which is the property of Mr. Earlywine, was in the yard with the child which is next door to the home of his parents, and it is supposed in some manner he struck the dog angering him, and leaping upon the little fellow no doubt would have killed him had not the members of his family, attracted by the cries for help, rushed to his assistance succeeded in fighting the brute off.

The child's face and head was terribly lacerated and twenty-eight stitches were required to close the wounds. Drs. Fithian & Daugherty and Kenney & Dudley attended his injuries. The dog will be killed.

Assassin's Bullet Wounds New York Mayor. Mayor William J. Gaynor was shot and dangerously wounded at 9:45 o'clock Tuesday morning as he stood on the deck of the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, at the steamship pier in Hoboken, N. J., about to start on a month's vacation in Europe.

The shooting was done by a man who gave his name as Jules James Gallagher, living at 44 1/2 Third avenue, New York. He was later identified as a former city employe who had recently been discharged.

Three shots were fired at the Mayor. Two of them missed, and the third lodged in the fleshy portion of the left side of the neck. Blood gushed from the wound and the first hasty examinations led to the belief of serious and perhaps fatal consequences.

The Mayor retained consciousness, and later examination by the physicians, when the Mayor was taken to the hospital, gave a more hopeful outlook.
