Passed Up to Attorney General.

Whether the Democratic officials who were in office at the time the Legislature made the appropriation of $20,000 for the erection of a statue of William Goebel continue to manage and conduct the business connected with that act, is a question that the Attorney General is trying to decide. There is no doubt whether the old officials of the State, who were placed on the Goebel Monument Commission by the act, or the new officials, shall complete the work of erecting the statue.

The act, which appropriated $20,000, created a commission composed of the Governor, Attorney General, Treasurer, Auditor and Lieutenant Governor, and imposed on his commission the duty of having made and put up the statue of Goebel. The old commission, created by this act, was composed of members of the last Democratic State administration. This commission did not complete the statue. It entered into a contract with Charles H. Niehaus to make the statue of Goebel, but the statue was not completed before the old commissioners went out of office.

The question now arises whether or not it was the intention of the Legislature to compose the commission of the officials, no matter who they might be, or the men themselves who held office at the time. It is said to be doubtful whether the present officials named in the act have authority to act. Some hold that the old commission, created by the act, alone has the power to complete the erection of the statue, and if that construction is demanded upon then the old commission now scattered over the State, will have to be gathered together and the question of completing the statue taken up.

A claim of $7,000 for preliminary work done by Mr. Niehaus has been presented to the Auditor for payment and this brought up the question of authority to act. The matter was referred to the Attorney General for his opinion and he is looking into the law.

WALTER A. WOOD MOWERS

Are Different From All Others

When the late Walter A. Wood built his first mower in 1832 it was upon a principle entirely different from any other. That same principle today distinguishes our mowers from all others. It is the "floating frame" described so fully in our catalog. All manufacturers of mowers admit that the "direct under-draft" principle is the correct one—but they can't use it because genuine under-draft is possible only with the "floating frame" construction which is exclusive to Walter A. Wood Mowers. We feel justified in asserting that our mowers are: the easiest running; lightest draft; handiest to operate; least expensive to keep in repair and longest lived. The mower that leads on these points is the mower it will pay the farmer to buy. There are many other good points fully illustrated and described in our Catalog. Write for it today.
