"The Only Thing That Will Relieve Neuralgia."

The piercing pains of Neuralgia, which often follows a bad cold or La Grippe, are frequently almost unbearable and few medicines afford any relief to the sufferer.

"I am a rural mail carrier and have been a user of the Dr. Miles' medicines for years.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills can't be beaten. They are the only thing I have found that will relieve my neuralgia and I have tried most everything, besides medicine from the doctor. I am willing to tell anyone what the Anti-Pain Pills did for me."

CHARLES HILDERBRANDT,
Box 205 Woodville, Ohio

If you, like Mr. Hilderbrandt, "have tried most everything" in vain, why not do as he did, fight your aches and pains with Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. Let the pills bear the brunt of the battle. No matter how stubborn the contest, they will come out victorious.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills stand on their record, which is a long list of cures extending back a generation.

Fighting the Farmer for His Own Good.

"Uncle Sam" is carrying the crusade of better crop methods into the places that are being devastated by the boll-weevil and other enemies of agricultural prosperity, including the dry rot of one-crop farming says Forrest Crissey in "Success Magazine." This crusade aims at the agricultural salvation of half a continent and is one of the greatest home missionary projects in operation anywhere in the world. More than $350,000 was spent in this work in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910. To be exact, the United States Government furnished $207,000; the General Education Board of New York gave $102,000 and about $50,000 came from public-spirited men and organizations in the states where the work is being done. Counties, cities, boards of trade and private individuals have come forward with contributions sufficient to pay in part or in full the expense of maintaining an agent in order to get the services of one of these farm missionaries in their immediate localities and to get him without waiting.

This principle of local supports is encouraged not only because the demands upon the farm missionary department are greater than the funds at its command, but also because of the fact that men and institutions which put money into this enterprise feel the solid personal interest in the work which comes from putting a cash investment into it. They get behind it with a moral support and stimulus which helps to keep the wheels moving. But, no matter where the money comes from, the men employed are under direct and exclusive control of "The Farmers' Cooperative Demonstration Work" of the United States Government.

AN AERIAL ENTHUSIAST

By LUCY K. WYNKOOP
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Having been left a fortune very much larger than I had any use for—I was a young girl then or I would have known that no fortune is quite large enough—I determined to endow some institution. A member of the board of directors of an insane asylum, a lady, persuaded me to give her pet project $100,000.

I drove one afternoon to the asylum with a check for the amount I was to give. The lady I have mentioned went with me and had arranged for her attorney to be there with the necessary legal papers.

When we arrived we found a telegram from the attorney saying that he would be delayed. Learning that the patients were to have a dance the same evening, we decided to remain and have a look at the dancers. No patients were received in the institution except those who were considered harmless. Indeed, most of them were unbalanced on but one subject. We were given tea in the apartments of the medical director, and his wife made us at home till the ball opened, which was very early in the evening, for it must end at 10 o'clock.

I and my gift were known, and nothing would do but that I should take part in the festivities. I danced several times, when a young man of very prepossessing appearance came up to me and asked if I would be his partner. There are occasions when a girl will meet a man to whom she is especially drawn. I had not been in company with this young fellow long before I felt a pang that he should be insane. He charmed me at once.

Naturally I wished to discover his weak point. I tried him on several subjects, but saw nothing abnormal until I struck aviation. Then he began to talk wild. He said that he had some views about flying machines he hoped to work out which would bring aeroplanes nearer to the construction of birds. A bird's wings were not rigid. Why should those of an aeroplane be rigid? He had in mind a plan by which the wings of the machine should flap like those of the bird.

"True," he said, "birds often soar without using their pinions, but since they flap them at all it indicates that flapping is necessary."

"Why do you wish to go up in the air?" I asked. "I am quite content on the earth."

"I only know that I would love to sail up in the clouds, to pass over the tops of high mountains. I would love!"

I shut him off. I was quite satisfied with having discovered his weakness. I had no mind to get him to raving. I excused myself and joined some one else. But later, shortly before the close of the entertainment, he joined me again and asked for a last dance.

I declined. His personality had thrown a spell over me which I thought if yielded to would grow upon me. In other words, I felt that I had met my fate in one of unsound mind and it would be dangerous to my comfort to yield to what might soon become a serious infatuation. He gave me a half reproachful glance—a glance suggesting to me that he had been impressed by me as I had been impressed by him—and left me.

When the evening's amusement was ended my friend the directress told me that we would proceed to the superintendent's room, where the attorney was waiting for us to transact our business, and then go home. I went with her, and, on opening the door of the office, there, sitting at a table looking over some papers, was the young man who had gone daft on aviation. I stopped short, paralyzed with astonishment. He arose and gave me one of those pleasant smiles that had helped to charm me.

"Why," I said, "I—I didn't expect to find you here."

It was his turn to look surprised. "I supposed you knew who I was," he said.

"I did not. I thought"—I stopped. He looked very much amused. "I see," he said. "You mistook me for one of the patients. I'm not sure but some of them might change places with me to my advantage." Then, turning to the work before him, he read me several legal documents, now and then stopping to explain something. I knowing not half as much of what he was talking as when he was discoursing on aviation. When he had finished he gave me a lot of papers and took my check, which I had made payable to the trustees.

The lawyer or lunatic—I was so confused that I was not yet certain in my mind which he was—rode in the same carriage with us to a railroad station, where we dropped him, he taking a passing train, while we drove on to my home.

I went to bed with my mind in a good deal of a whirl, but above it all was a feeling of thankfulness that the man I had met was not a lunatic, for it was possible his mental condition might make a great deal of difference to me.

It was not long before he expressed through my friend the directress a desire to continue our acquaintance, and I sent him an invitation to call on me. At his first visit I drew him on to aviation, and I learned that he made it his hobby, having an inventive taste, but had never been up in an aeroplane in his life.

I married the supposed lunatic, and, strange to say, though I can give him all the funds he needs to prosecute his aerial tastes, he prefers his uninteresting law cases.

MILD, GENTLE LAXATIVE FOR WOMEN GIVEN FREE

So many of the ills of women are due to habitual constipation, probably because of their false modesty on the subject, that their attention cannot be too strongly called to the importance of keeping the bowels open. It is always important to do that, regardless of the sex, but it is especially important in women.

From the time the girl begins to menstruate until mensturation ceases she has always vastly better prospects of coming through healthy if she watches her bowel movements. If you find yourself constipated, with bad breath, pimply complexion, headaches, belching gas and other symptoms of indigestion and constipation, take a small dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup

Pepsin. It is woman's favorite laxative. You will find that you can do away with salts, strong cathartics, etc., which are entirely unsuited to woman's requirements.

Mrs. Katherine Haberstroh of McKees Rocks, Pa., and Mrs. A. E. Herrick of Wheeler, Mich., who was almost paralyzed in her stomach and bowels, are now cured by the use of this remedy. A free sample bottle can be obtained by addressing Dr. Caldwell, and after you are convinced of its merits buy it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 402 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.
