 Misses Florence and Laura Glenn, of Cincinnati, Miss Mary Shannon, of Carlisle, and Miss Margaret Minogue, of Paris, spent the week with Mrs. Jas. Connell.
 Among those from a distance who attended the funeral of Mrs. I. F. Chanslor were: Mrs. Abel Reese, Mr. Abe Reese, Miss Jennie Reese, Mr. Chas. Reese, Mr. Henry Reese, Mrs. Henry M. Pyles and Mr. Henry M. Pyles, of Helena Station, and Mr. Chas. Jefferson, of Maysville.
 Mrs. I. F. Chanslor, of Millersburg, died at the Good Samaritan Hospital.

Lexington, Thursday morning at 11 o'clock at the age of 70 years. She was taken to the hospital in a critical condition, but it was hoped that an operation would save her life. The operation failed to bring relief.
 She is survived by her husband and eight children as follows: Mrs. Frank Armstrong, Maysville; Mrs. Berry Bedford, Lexington; Mrs. Tom Wilson, this place; W. T. Chanslor, Little Rock; Misses Anna, Florence and Lillian, living at home and Mr. I. F. Chanslor, Jr., of Maysville. The remains were brought here Thursday night and taken to her late home where the funeral services were held Friday afternoon. Burial in Shannon cemetery Saturday morning. Mrs. Chanslor was a Miss Reese, of Mason county before her marriage to Mr. I. F. Chanslor. The family have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community in this, their hour of trouble.

Mrs. Dr. Deans is able to be out after being confined to the house for several weeks.

Mrs. J. W. Mock and children have returned after a two weeks' visit to relatives at Carrs Landing.

Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Proctor entertained with a dining Wednesday at their country home a short distance from town.

Messrs. Mack Grimes, Alex Miller, Alex Hawes, J. H. Barnes and Garland Fisher attended the Germantown fair last week.

Master Ellis Troy, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Troy, Jr., entertained a number of his little friends with a birthday dinner Friday evening.

Misses Mattie McIntyre and little niece have returned after a visit to Lexington. They were accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Chas. Howard, of Lexington.

Cost of Living.
 The award of six cents to a Brooklyn woman, kissed without her consent, shows that in some respects the cost of living in that borough is not unreasonably high.—New York World.

Whistling Kettle.
 A new whistling kettle has a long, narrow neck at the top, by which it is both filled and emptied. This is covered by a cap the length of the neck, and at the top of this is a whistle which acts directly the kettle boils by reason of the steam passing through it.

Properly Applied.
 "This paper," remarked an Irish woman to her husband as they sat at tea, "says that some feller declares there be sermons in stones. Phwat q'yez think av that?" "O! dunno about the sermons," replied the good man, "but many a good ar-gument has come out ov a brick. O!m thinkin'."

Amateur Aeroplanes.
 Very small boys of the East side have solved unconsciously the principles of the box kite and the aeroplane. They take an ordinary paper bag, cut the end out of it so that it remains merely a cylinder of paper, tie a short bit of string to the end where the bottom used to be for a tail, then attach the end of a spool of thread to the opposite end of the bag. The improvised kite flies easily and steadily as high as the roofs of the tallest tenements.—New York Sun.

Good Market for Planos.
 There is probably no country in the world where planos are more used in proportion to population, and considered more necessary as features of home life, than in Australia. No matter how humble the home or how remote it may be from large cities, a piano is usually a leading feature of it. About 15,000 planos are sold every year in the country.

Woman's Reason.
 Elliott R. Hooten of Indianapolis was questioning a woman who was a reluctant witness, and he inquired: "Why did you leave that hotel?" "I object," shouted her attorney. Then began a wrangle concerning the admissibility of the question, which the court finally decided to be perfectly proper. Mr. Hooten then said: "Now, madam, please tell us why you left that hotel." "Well," she said, "just because."

SURF RIDING IS FINE

KANAKA STANDS AMIDST THE SWIFT RUNNING WAVES.

Jack London's Vivid Description of This South Sea Amusement as Practiced at Waikiki Beach.

Much has been written about the native sport of surfing in the South seas, but the following description from London's "Cruise of the Snark," is novel and very vivid. The locality referred to is Waikiki beach, near Honolulu:

The trees grow right down to the salty edges of things, and one sits in their shade and looks seaward at a majestic surf thundering in on the beach to one's very feet. Half a mile out, where is the reef, the white heading combers thrust suddenly skyward out of the placid turquoise blue and come rolling in to shore.

And suddenly, out there where a big smoker lifts skyward, rising like a seagull from out of the welter of spume and churning white, on the giddy, toppling, overhanging and downfaling, precarious crest appears the dark head of a man. Swiftly he rises through the rushing white. His black shoulders, his chest, his loins, his limbs—all is abruptly projected on one's vision. Where but the moment before was only the wide desolation and invincible roar, is now a man, erect, full statured, not struggling frantically in that wild movement, not buried and crushed and buffeted by those mighty monsters, but standing above them all, calm and superb, poised on the giddy summit, his feet buried in the churning foam, the salt smoke rising to his knees, and all the rest of him in the free air and flashing sunlight, and he is flying through the air, flying forward, flying fast as the surge on which he stands. He is a Mercury—a brown Mercury. His heels are winged, and in them is the swiftness of the sea. In truth, from out of the sea he has leaped upon the back of the sea, and he is riding the sea that roars and bellows and cannot shake him from its back. But no frantic outreaching and balancing is his. He is impassive, motionless as a statue carved suddenly by some miracle out of the sea's depths from which he rose. And straight on toward shore he flies on his winged heels and the white crest of the breaker. There is a wild burst of foam, a long multitudinous rushing sound as the breaker falls futile and spent at your feet; and there, at your feet steps calmly ashore a Kanaka.

Green Turtles of Indian Ocean.

Concerning the great turtles of the Southwest Indian ocean a traveler says: "The chelonian, or green turtle (Chelone mydas), is an animal of considerable economic importance to the atoll, for it still occurs in the vast herds which are so often described by early voyagers in the tropics. There appear to be two distinct groups—one resident and small in numbers, the other migratory and visiting the atoll to breed in numbers impossible to estimate.

"The latter arrives in December, and from then to April the sea seems alive with turtle. The females seek the small sand beaches and then ascend them with the rising tide, pushing themselves laboriously above high tide mark. Holes are then dug in the sand by means of the fore flippers until a satisfactory one is obtained, and the eggs, 200 in number, are buried, the turtle returning to sea immediately.

"After forty days the eggs hatch, almost simultaneously, and the young turtles dig their way up out of the sand and go down to the sea in a long procession in the course of which they offer an easy prey to their enemies, the frigate birds and herons. Once in the sea sharks and other large fish eat them, and only 10 per cent. reach maturity."

Smoke Dissipated.

The practical way to obviate the annoyance of smoke is to dissipate it before it leaves the chimney top in a gaseous volume. A German professor believes he has found a way to secure this result without chemical or mechanical aid.

Described in Die Umschau, the professor's chimney is perforated on all sides by what might be called little horizontal windows. As the furnace smoke and gases rise they are mixed with air, both before and after emergence, by the eddy forming action of the wind passing through the openings.

From the time the smoke enters the chimney and reaches the height of the lower openings, which receive the wind from any quarter, the intermingling begins, and in each stage of its upward movement the volume becomes less and less. At the mouth of the chimney the outpour is comparatively small and so diluted with air that only a sheet of dark blue smoke waving like a flag to the leeward is seen, where, under other conditions, there would be a cloudlike column of dense black smoke a mile long.

Chimneys constructed on the professor's plan look not unlike windowed towers.

A Cool Costume.

Rather startling is the announcement in a seaside paper that "tan shoes are very much worn this summer. Hundreds of the cottages wear nothing else." A pair of tan shoes certainly makes a very cool costume.
