

Instant Relief from Eczema

You can stop that awful itch from eczema and other skin troubles in two seconds. Seems too good to be true—but it is true, and we vouch for it. Just a few drops of the simple, cooling wash, the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema, and the itch stops instantly. We give you enough to prove it for 50 cents. Now, if you have tried a great many cures for eczema and have been disappointed, do not make the mistake of refusing to try this soothing wash. All other druggists keep this D.D.D. Prescription—go to them if you can't come to us—but if you come to our store we will give you the first dollar bottle on our positive no pay guarantee, that D.D.D. will stop the itch at once. D.D.D. Soap keeps the pores healthy; ask us about it.

CHAUTAUQUA CALLS US

Southern People by the Thousand Drawn Every Year for Rest, Sport, Intellectual Entertainment or Formal Study to Famous Resort in Western New York.

At this season of the year the heads of households begin to think of vacation for the whole family, and places like Chautauqua, New York, contend with other quite unlike places for their vacation choice. About 50,000 people visit Chautauqua each year for periods ranging from an hour to several months. Perhaps 10,000 is the average summer population, in which every state in the Union and a number of foreign countries are represented. The Southern contingent is particularly strong.

"Chautauqua" is the name of five towns in the states of Illinois, Kansas, New York, Texas and Washington. In two instances the county bears the same name. About five hundred communities in cottages or tents are called "Chautauqua," besides the altogether improper use of the word as applied to series of indoor meetings. The name is derived from an Indian phrase, the latest interpretation of which is that it refers to the muscallonge, for which the lake to the southwest of Buffalo, New York, is still famous, and that it means "the place where the fish was taken out." However that may be, the name would have been as local as Mankato had it not been for the activities set going in 1874 by Lewis Miller and Bishop John H. Vincent. But the fame of this place has encircled the world.
Two Southern states, Kentucky and Texas, send more than a thousand persons each to Chautauqua every summer. Six Southern states contribute more than 500 persons each to the summer population of this unique community in western New York. Barring one-day visitors, there are as many Southerners as New Yorkers at Chautauqua every year.

What is the force that draws so large a number from this distance to a single locality? The cosmopolitan character of the attendance may have some influence. There are about as many Canadians as Virginians at Chautauqua, and always a sprinkling of foreigners from abroad, some of them distinguished persons. Southerners are not insensible of the mutual advantages of such association. The tendency of birds of a feather to "flock together," also, may be effective to some degree. Many Southerners doubtless go because so many others go. Another attraction is the delightful climate and scenic charm of the Chautauqua region, with its lake over 20 miles in length, at an altitude of 1,400 feet above sea level, its exemption from heat, malaria, mosquitoes, and other things that do annoy, and its comparatively easy access from Southern points. After all, however, these advantages might conceivably unite elsewhere and the Chautauqua enthusiast will tell you that any other place where they should all be found would still not be Chautauqua. Chautauqua is not merely a community, it is an institution, and pervading the institution is a moral and intellectual force. A kindly trickster who diverts you with chaff and then when you aren't looking slips good things into your pockets, is the figure by which a well known speaker at Chautauqua illustrated the character of that institution. Then, if you don't appreciate the good things after all, in any case they need not detract from your enjoyment of the trifles by which you were first allured. Many go on enjoying these for a whole summer and never give a great deal of thought to other matters. Some are content with harmless nothings for themselves, yet take satisfaction in seeing the treasures of knowledge or moral benefit quietly introduced into the possession of their wives and young people. This is as one's mind and circumstances may determine.

There is, after all, nothing occult or even obscure in the working of the Chautauqua influence. It is what you take it to be. If you see in Chautauqua merely a pretty, pleasant and healthful place for outdoor life, where sailing, launching, boating, fishing, bathing, baseball, tennis and roque are popular and where those of sedentary inclination read, smoke, or play checkers at the hotel or the club, then you have seen rightly as far as you have gone. As a compromise midway between Newport and the north woods, you will find Chautauqua satisfactory. Hundreds do.
If along with an innocent and wholesome outdoor life in a delightful climate you expect musical, literary and dramatic entertainers of a clean, unobjectionable and more than usually talented order for the relaxation of evening hours; if you seek variety of amusement for the children at all times under proper safeguards of direction and restraint, you will not be disappointed.

Perhaps you crave, together with the ease of do nothing days, opportunity for not too serious attention to the discussion of present matters of national or world-wide interest. A more direct, vivid impression of the men and women who are grappling Health a Factor in Success.

The largest factor contributing to a man's success is undoubtedly health. It has been observed that a man is seldom sick when his bowels are regular. He is never well when he is constipated. For constipation will find nothing quite so good as Chamberlain's Tablets. They not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion. They are sold by all dealers.

Unique Symbol on Gravestone.
The gravestone between Kennebunkport and Cape Porpoise of one Tristram Tapley exhibits an uncommon and yet most sensible idea. Affixed to the stone in a silver case is inclosed an old-fashioned daguerreotype of the young man, protected from the elements by a cover. One with such a name ought certainly to have been a lover of books.

Historic Relic in English Church.
The church of the little village of Iken, Suffolk, England, possesses what is probably the rarest alms dish to be found in England. Inlaid in the center of the woodwork is a piece of the bell metal which was saved from the great fire at York Minster, when the famous bell there was entirely destroyed some years ago.

Practical Boy.
Little Harold, aged five years, was visiting his aunt. While at dinner the grown-ups were talking and paying little or no attention to little Harold. He was ready and waiting for his desert, and to attract the others' attention he said: "Please, Aunt Mame, is that pie an ornament?"

Genius.
Something immortal happens, when man brings love to a thirsting woman. * * * The children of women who hunger after spiritual things—these are the children of genius and dreams. These who go out alone and full of yearning to find "the white presences among the hills."—Will Levington Comfort.

Flagged Train With Shirt.
Tearing his shirt from his back an Ohio man flagged a train and saved it from a wreck, but H. T. Alston, Raleigh, N. C., once prevented a wreck with Electric Bitters. "I was in a terrible plight when I began to use them and my stomach, head, back and kidneys," he writes, "were all badly affected and my liver was in bad condition but four bottles Electric Bitters made me feel like a new man." A trial will convince you of its matchless merit for the stomach, liver or kidney trouble. Price 50 cents at Oberdorfer's.
