EDITORIAL MUSINGS.

Popular Prejudices About Food.

A great deal of comment was caused by a recent order permitting the sale of the flesh of horses for meat in New York City, which apparently will also be allowed in many other places. Horse meat is used as food all over Europe. In time it will probably be so used in this country.

This use of equine flesh runs up against a certain popular repugnance that is not quite easy to account for. There always are many prejudices in the choice of food not wholly based on reason. Certain kinds of fish are always rejected by anglers, as worthless for food, on account of some local tradition against them. One generation after another of boys will throw these fish away, in accordance with custom. The trouble may simply be that the fish is not quite as well flavored as other kinds. But as the years go by and fish become scarce, even the less savory varieties may be seen to have good value.

The feeling against horseflesh can hardly be based on any sanitary grounds. A horse seems just as clean, an animal as a cow, perhaps more so. Probably the reason is that a horse is a working animal. He would naturally have tougher and more stringy muscles than a cow, which spends its life in idleness in pastures and barns.

Good cookery and skillful seasoning can do a great deal to improve the flavor of foods, also to render palatable the tougher portions of flesh. When one considers the amount of mastication needed to consume an ordinary beefsteak to-day, it is a question if horse flesh would be any worse.

In the earlier days of the country when all kinds of meat were abundant and cheap, the people could pick and choose and rejoice many nutritious forms of food. Times have changed now. Before many years old Dobbin's flesh, reduced to tenderness in the stew pot, may be a common article of diet.

The Bookworm Habit.

One of the prominent ideas of modern school life is to interest the pupils in good books and help them acquire the reading habit. The dog-eared old reading books of former years, with their hifalutin selections of poetry, philosophy and oratory, have disappeared. In many schools the reading books consist of high-class standard works of fiction and other classics that young folks should enjoy.

With the majority of children this creates a familiarity with the printed page that otherwise they might not acquire. But there is always a certain proportion of children who need no incitement to books. You take them visiting, and instead of joining in other children's plays, they burrow in bookshelves. They waste their eyesight in poor light, and their cheeks fade in the in-door life.

Such children live in a dream world. They walk, talk and think in the book atmosphere. Their heroes are creatures of fiction. They are so busy seeing what other imaginary characters have done, that they have no power left to start things of their own. Turn such children out-doors for some fresh air, and they dawdle around and soon come in and ask their mothers what they should do.

This is not meant as an argument against the cultivation of the reading habit in schools. For every one book-worm, there are half a dozen to whom any book seems like a school task, formidable and repelling. They need all possible encouragement to find the pleasures and inspirations of bookland.

The little bookworm is a separate problem. Teachers should see to it that they join with their comrades in the sports around the school grounds. Such children should be given baseballs and footballs for Christmas instead of books. Every time they can be forced into active play with other children, their power for action in the world has been assisted.

GIRLS! HAVE WAVY, THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Save Your Hair! Double Its Beauty In a Few Moments—Try This!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now? (adv)

The so-called guaranty legend on packages of foods and drugs does not mean that the United States Government has passed on the quality of the product.

INACTIVITY CAUSES CONSTIPATION.

ENDORSED AT HOME.

Such Proof at This Should Convince Any Paris Citizen.

The public endorsement of a local citizen is the best proof that can be produced. None better, none stronger can be had. When a man comes forward and testifies to his fellow-citizens, addresses his friends and neighbors, you may be sure he is thoroughly convinced or he would not do so. Telling one's experience when it is for the public good is an act of kindness that should be appreciated. The following statement given by a resident of Paris adds one more to the many cases of Home Endorsement which are being published about Doan's Kidney Pills. Read it.

H. C. Hutchcraft, 1115 Main street, Paris, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for a great many years and with good results. Whenever I have suffered from weakness or lameness across my back, I have always found Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from the Ardrey Drug Co., never fail to relieve me of the complaint."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Hutchcraft had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. (adv)
