THE BLUE GRASS FAIR.

The opening of the Blue Grass Fair at Lexington brought the usual result, rain, but it also brought a great deal of pleasure to Central Kentucky people, who have been waiting for a real, sure-enough fair for their vacation.
Lovers of horses and live stock have been given a good run for their money. The big event of Tuesday, a $250 stake for suckling mules, foals of 1917, either sex, was won by a mule owned by James T. Jefferson, of Paris. In accordance with the conditions of the event, the winner became the property of the Association, and was auctioned to the exhibitor for $165. McCray Bros., and W. M. Jones & Son, of North Middletown, were among the principal winners in the horse show events, while John Marr and James T. Jefferson divided honors as winners in the mule rings.

HOW THE ETERNAL FEMININE FISHES.

It doesn't serve to mellow a man's disposition to take a woman or two into the boate when he goes bass fishing. For women always want to fish, yet they never could or would they stick those horrid, nasty wriggling angleworms on the hook. So, between bating their hooks and removing the perch and pumpkin seeds and straining your spine to keep the boat from turning turtle and the lines from getting snarled up, you have a most enjoyable day's outing, do you not? Yes, you do not! I'll run the risk of answering that question for you. And then, when you finally hook a five-pound bass weighing at least three pounds and eight ounces by his own standard scales, and play him for twenty minutes against their earnest entreaties not to bring that big, ugly thing into the boat or else they'd jump out—you calmly ease up on the line and give him slack, also his freedom, do you not? Yes, you do not! And when the day is spent, they tell you what a gorgeous time they have had and make you promise to fetch them again, and you promise, of course, do you not? You do like—Heaven! BISHOP WOODCOCK SAYS WORRY IS CRIMINAL.

"Don't Worry" that is a leading plank in the creed of the Right Rev. Charles E. Woodcock, Episcopal bishop of Kentucky. Even if milk is going up one cent a quart every where next winter's coal is coming from, the Bishop believes worry is an evil. He made this declaration in a sermon at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, in New York last Sunday.
"Worry is an evil," said the Bishop. "It destroys more than rum or vice. It is as sinful as drinking or gambling. It is a guilty, sinful and cowardly thing. It is always a personal weakness.
"The absolute cure for worry is to be as the bird who flies above the wind-blown dust, and is therefore not sullied. So we must fly high above the worries of the earth."
Bishop Woodcock said it was no more sinful to drink yourself into the gutter than to worry yourself into the grave.
"The people are getting life badly mixed up," said the Bishop. "They are shortening their lives by ten years through senseless worry. Worry weakens the heart and hardens the arteries. People are carried away by the mistake; idea that one can't live without worry. Men and women doing anything on God's earth should have no time to weaken their soul by senseless worry."

Taylor, of Kiser-ton; one son, Mr. James Gunsaulus, of Hamilton, O., and three brothers, Robert Atkins, of Robertson county, and William and Thomas Atkinson, of Louisville.

WOODS.

Mrs. Woods had been ill but a few days, and her condition was not such as to cause any serious apprehension among her family and friends. For two days before her death she suffered from heart trouble, which finally caused her death, at the family home, corner of Henderson street and Lillenton avenue.
Besides her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Misses Nellie and Frances Woods, and four sons, Thomas, Ned, William and Lawrence Woods, and by two brothers, John Cain, Sr., and W. F. Cain.

ASA MARTIN FORECASTS "POOR MAN'S WINTER."

While suffering humanity is sweltering under a torrid sun, with the mercury sizzling around 90, Colonel Asa K. Martin, widely known local weather prognosticator, comes to the rescue and offers some comfort in his bulletin, just issued, forecasting the weather for the next winter, in which he states there will be fifteen snows in Kentucky, the first falling on November 11, 1917, and the last on May 1, 1918. A May day snow is of course a rarity for this latitude, but Colonel Martin says we will have it—and that should settle it.
There will be no ice-gathering season before Christmas, he says, but we are to have a sharp cold snap about Thanksgiving. Mild weather is predicted during Christmas week—in fact he says that overcoats can be dispensed with on Christmas Day, as it will be warm and pleasant. The coldest weather of the winter will be in January, when, he says there will be two days when the mercury will drop to zero. A big sleet is scheduled for some time in February, exact date not stated. There will also be one ice spell in this month, but he says he will have to wait until Ground Hog day to determine when this will be.
On the whole, Colonel Martin says that the coming winter is to be one of the mildest that has been experienced in Kentucky in the last twenty-five years and adds in his characteristic vein: "It will be a poor man's winter all through—the first winter in years that the coal man will suffer."

ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVES SHIPPED IN BOXES.

Three large electric locomotives, weighing 120 tons each, were shipped recently from Erie, Pa., to Chile, South America, in knock-down form, being boxed for convenience of shipment, according to the Popular Mechanics Magazine. They are intended for use in transporting iron ore from the mines of an American steel company at Tofo, Chile, 2,200 feet above the sea level, to Cruze Grande, the nearest shipping port. For a while the problem of getting the engines to Chile baffled the traffic men, as they were too big and too heavy to be taken aboard ship intact. The only alternative was to take them apart for shipment. When this was done and the parts were boxed it was found that each of the locomotives occupied eight freight cars and weighed 290,000 pounds. There were sixty-two separate boxes, ranging in size from over fifty feet to only a few inches in length, the largest weighing more than a ton before being packed.

BOY DISAPPEARS.

The police and county authorities have been asked to keep a lookout for a boy named Willie Addams, who has been mysteriously missing from his home near Nicholasville for five weeks. A reward of $10 has been offered for any information that will lead to his recovery.
Young Addams is described as being about fourteen years old, but small for his age, is rather dark complexioned, and has dark hair. He has been living for the last four years with William Traylor, of Nicholasville, by whom he was adopted from the Feeble-Minded Institute at Frankfort.
No information has been received from him since his disappearance, information of any kind that would give the least hint as to his whereabouts, and his foster-father and relatives have become very anxious about him.

W. H. M. S. MEETING.
The W. H. M. S. of the Lexington District Lexington Conference convened at St. Paul's M. E. Church, in this city on Aug. 3. The meeting was well attended and reports of the delegates showed an increase of the work along all lines. The temperance hour led by Mrs. M. E. Randolph, assisted by Rev. J. B. Redmond, of Paris, was especially interesting. A splendid program was rendered during the evening session. Mrs. J. B. Redmond was re-elected president.

CONFEDERATE VETERAN MAKES A FEW CORRECTIONS.

THE NEWS is in receipt of the following letter from Mr. John W. Boulden, of Maysville, formerly of Millersburg, a well-known Confederate veteran, who makes the subjoined additions to an article that appeared in the Kentuckian-Citizen a few weeks ago:
"Maysville, Ky., Aug. 7.
"ED. THE NEWS, Paris, Ky.
"Dear Sir:—
"Several weeks ago I read an article in a Paris paper in regard to the soldiers from Bourbon county in the war of 1861-1865.
"The writer failed to mention a number of prominent Bourbon county soldiers, so I take the liberty of mentioning a number of men, or the 'boys' rather from Bourbon. In the Federal service I recall the following: Lieut-Col. Thos. J. Vimont, killed in action at the battle of Sweetwater, Tenn.; Thomas Jeff and Jo. D. Vimont, Augustus Trotter, John Isabell. Thos. Jeff Vimont, an old schoolmate, was wounded at the battle of Cynthiana, on July 17, 1862. I was with him all night after the battle, and furnished an affidavit to assist him in securing an increase in pension a few years ago, before he died at Paxton, Ill.
"I recall the names of the following, who were killed in the Confederate service: Julius Purnell, at Ft. Donelson; James Gregory, at Dallas, Ga.; Clifton Mann, in Ohio; Willie Talbott, at Cynthiana, the day after he joined, and Will Trotter. Some of the officers in the Confederate service were Capt. Dan Turney, J. Lawrence Jones, Ed. Taylor, Adj. Jos. M. Jones, Lieuts. R. L. Bowles, Jos. E. Hedges, George Redmon, John Ashbrook. I have a list of over fifty privates from Millersburg precinct, who were in the Confederate service.
"When the Confederates evacuated Kentucky in the fall of 1862, after capturing a Federal cavalry regiment at Lexington, as Morgan's command left the State, Duke's Regiment crossed Green River at Woodbury, and Breckinridge's battalion at Morgantown. The next morning I was sent with a detail to Woodbury to get a load of flour, and was given an order for Gen. Duke to send a detail to a tan yard to get some leather. We met Duke's command coming toward Morgantown. I gave him the order, and leaving a man named Webster, of Lexington, at a house to save our breakfast, went on to Woodbury. A boy drove in with two oxen in a wagon, and we loaded it with flour and came out of the mill to find the town full of Federal cavalry. They had all of Duke's detail, and out of the fifteen men captured six were from Millersburg, Ben Ashbrook, Henry Doty and Harrison Piper, from Duke's regiment, and Jos. Wallace, James E. Kerns and myself from Breckinridge's battalion. I also recall the names of Will Spencer and George Beatty, of Lexington, in our detail.

"Very truly,
"JOHN W. BOULDEN,
"Co. C., Ninth Ky. Cav., C. S. A."

WHAT TO DO WITH GERMANY'S "CRAZY WAR LORD."

We have just heard of an ideal place to intern the Kaiser when the war is over. It is the Queenstown cemetery, where more than 1,000 bodies of Lusitania victims lie buried. The Town Hall, which was used as a morgue, has been practically deserted ever since. It could be moved to the cemetery and used as a permanent home for the Kaiser. There, among the sepulchral shades of a thousand of his innocent victims, William the Last should be made to spend his remaining years of life. There is just one flaw in such a punishment. His presence among the graves of men, women and children who were sacrificed to his cruel ambition might seem a desecration of the dead.
