

R. R. CONDUCTOR WELL SATISFIED

Jackson Says He'll Guarantee Trutona to Relieve Run Down Condition.

LOUISVILLE, KY., June 30.—A. Jackson, passenger conductor in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad for many years, who lives at 220 North Eighteenth street, Louisville, enthusiastically tells how he gained relief after eleven years' suffering. He said recently:

"I desire to express my appreciation of the wonderful merit of your medicine, Trutona. After taking Trutona for two weeks, I feel like a new man. I had been suffering from neuritis and general debility for eleven years. I eat heartily now, and sleep, which for several years was virtually a stranger to me, comes easy now.

"I can recommend Trutona to anyone suffering from a run down system and I would not hesitate to guarantee it to restore them to their health."

Mr. Jackson's case is not an exceptional one, but is typical of the remarkable work Trutona is doing in thousands of cases throughout Kentucky. The perfect tonic has proven to be unsurpassed in the treatment of stomach, bowel and liver troubles, nervousness and the like.

Trutona is now being introduced and explained in Paris at the drug store of G. S. Varden & Son.

A PARADOX OF FLYING.

Captain Jack Alcock, speaking of the experiences of himself and his navigator, Lieutenant Arthur W. Brown, in their non-stop flight from St. Johns, Newfoundland, to Clifden, Galway, told how the crew of the biplane were surprised to find that part of the time they had been going along upside down at a clip of 120 miles an hour.

This detail of new travel is almost as fantastic as the story of adventure, involving anthropophagi and men whose heads do grow beneath their shoulders, that caught the fancy of one of Shakespeare's most interesting heroines.

It is an upside-down world that the airman works in. While he is aloft the aviator is in a little universe of his own, in which the law of gravitation, while not eliminated, is at least suspended more or less.

The flyer, though his machine may be pointing one wing straight at the ground, or while its tail or nose may be in that direction, or while he is looping the loop, always has the sensation of being on a level keel, as seafaring men would say. If he is able to see the ground, spread below like a drawing by Mr. Nevinson, he gets the impression that the good old solid earth is performing all sorts of tricks and altering its position toward him, now swinging to port or starboard and now actually getting above his head and looking down upon him in a perfect ridiculous way.

Captain Alcock and his companion before hopping on land again must have sighted the Arran Islands, in Galway Bay, where the inhabitants use the old corrach, a wicker boat covered with skin and dating from the dawn of history. Thus the machine up above and the crude craft below on the water illustrated the beginning and the last word of man's struggle with the elements.

Not a Modern Gun.

"What were you going to do with this revolver?" asked Walter Pritchard, judge of city court.

"Shoot rabbits," replied Abe McMurray, colored, age seventeen, 356 Fayette street, who was on trial charged with carrying concealed weapons.

The judge examined the weapon, which was a small one, and noticed that the barrel would not revolve automatically. He called the defendant's attention to this fact, and was told that it would revolve if turned by hand.

The judge still appeared undecided, then finally remarked: "If this was a real gun I would fine you $100 and costs, but since it is only about half a gun I will make the fine just half the usual amount." Then he wrote $50 and costs across the face of the affidavit.—Indianapolis News.

Missouri Mule Always There.

The Missouri mule was in the war long before the Missouri soldier entered it. The declaration of war was made for him in 1914, two years and a half before Pershing and the thousands of other Missourians got their orders to wheel into line. He had made a brilliant record there before their appearance. But, according to the London advices, he seems to have felt the impulse of Missouri behind him at the last, for it is written: "The mule shared in the big British advances on the western front this fall and proved his grit and worth by keeping right-up with the rapidly advancing artillery." That is a Missouri characteristic.
