

Chinese Water Chestnuts.
Water chestnut is a name given many times to the edible tubers, grown in great quantities in China, that are properly called the pi-tai, and may be eaten either raw or boiled. The real water chestnut in China has the name of lag-ko and is one of the five food grains grown there.

Antwerp was a small republic in the eleventh century.

BRIGHTER EVENINGS

In '76
The Colonial Dame
Spun her cloth
By Candle flame.

In 1860
In Crinoline bright,
She greeted her guests
By Coal Oil light.

And later on,
How time does pass
Her home was lit
By flickering Gas.

But the girl of to-day
Who wants her home bright,
Just presses a button
And has Electric Light.

"Yankee Doodle."
The authorship of "Yankee Doodle" is generally ascribed to Dr. Richard Shuckburg, a British surgeon and wit. Dr. Edward Everett Hale has attributed the present version of "Yankee Doodle" to Edward Harvard Bangs, who graduated from Harvard in 1777. The tune has been attributed to various countries and even carried back to the church of the middle ages, but most likely it had its origin in England. It is found in an opera by Samuel Arnold, "Two to One," produced in London in 1784.

It has been reckoned that a single pair of sparrows and a nest of young ones consume about 3,000 insects a week.

EDITORIAL FLINGS OF THIS, THAT 'EN 'TOTHER

I've figured up my income tax. Yet trouble fills my dreams at night; In spite of all the hours I've spent Accounting for each single cent.

The season of the year is fast approaching when the song of the reed will be far sweeter music to the ears of the fisherman than any grand opera ever composed.

You can't very well afford to be without THE BOURBON NEWS, but you will be obliged to do so if you do not keep your subscription paid up.

There's a "movement on foot" down at Paducah to "reclaim wet lands," and a disposition at our seaports to book passage to them. But what we want here is to have the "dry" lands reclaimed.

Columbus discovered America all right, but with all these reform laws in operation, we doubt if he'd recognize it if he were to pay us a visit from the spirit land.

Girls' ears are beginning to appear with the approach of Easter. At least they are beginning to pop out from the mass of hair that has heretofore been combed over them.

A normal Paris man's "expectancy" nowadays after he passes thirty-five, is that he is going to catch h—l most of the time, and he seldom fails to realize his "expectancy."

We are glad to know that the comet which is headed toward the earth is not due to hit us until June. By that time the fishing season will be almost over, so what will it matter?

Having ruled that beer may be prescribed as medicine, it is strange the Department of Justice doesn't enumerate the maladies for which it may be prescribed, so that the people can contract them.

Old human nature is a buzz saw and some local reformers would be wise to remember that because they do not see the awful teeth it is no sign they do not exist. Don't ignore the "Handle With Care" sign.

Should someone, induced by Gov. Morrow's reward of $500 for each conviction, "reach" upon the members of the Woodford county mob, the service to the State would be paid for at rates no civilized taxpayer would resent.

The Cumberland Hotel, which, squatted in the dusty valley near the railroad station near Middleboro, has gone up in smoke. Now for a modern hotel upon the mountain side to make a profit for the proprietor and a reputation for Middleboro as a mountain resort.

The recent death of a Kentucky girl from blood poison caused by a bruise would be a tragedy attracting no great amount of attention had not the bruise been suffered in an athletic contest. Basketball for girls cannot be reasonably condemned because the fatality occurred.

A Cuban lieutenant who undertook to chastise a Cuban editor in the latter's office was killed. Somehow, it seems that the general public won't believe that an editor can have the courage to defend himself. Being human they have the human instinct to protect themselves.

Frank P. Kiser indignantly denies the remark made by a Paris wag to the effect that "The employes in Spears & Son's front offices don't want a building built on the old Ficklin lot, as it would cut off their view of the court house clock." Frank says they don't work that way—as they can hear the clock strike.

Speedomaniacs continue to nourish on the streets of Paris, despite the city ordinances made and provided in such cases and the well-meant intentions of the police to stop it. The work of the police might be simplified if some one would apply to the automobile the apparatus recently invented whereby the speed of a locomotive at each point of the run is duly recorded.

An indignant Paris business man, whose house and pavement had been splattered with mud from the street, demands to know why the city does not try to do something to remedy the dust-and-mud situation. "When it isn't dust, it's mud," he says. "The city ought to have the streets sprinkled before the street sweeper gets at them early in the morning. Showers of dust cloud my place every morning—when it isn't mud." What say the city dads?

There is sound, common sense in the proposal made by Rabbi Phillipson, of Cincinnati, to eliminate eulogies at funerals, and limiting the services. Rabbi Phillipson suggests services he held later to honor the memory of any unusual man who has contributed markedly to the sum total of human endeavor and achievement. "But the funeral service itself should be the same for great and small, for rich and poor, for known and unknown," he adds, "since, however, unequal men may be in life, they are equal in the common mortality whereof death is the sign and symbol, and the same funeral service for all would be the most striking expression of this equality."

Nature's Ready-Made Cement.
In some parts of the United States natural cement rocks are found which contain nearly the proper proportions of materials to produce Portland cement; but even in these localities it is generally necessary to add either limestone or shale in order to get the proper mixture.

Business is Good

Our January and February business was good. In fact, it practically equaled our best January and February in the last four years.

Ford prices are low—the big price reductions have been made in anticipation of continuous maximum factory production and increases may be necessary if a large volume of new business is not obtained. Therefore, present prices of Ford products cannot be guaranteed against possible INCREASES.

On account of recent curtailment in production we anticipate a shortage of Ford cars in a few weeks. This shortage has already developed in certain models.

So if you contemplate the purchase of a Ford—BUY NOW. Satisfactory terms can be arranged.
