THE following is the score of the late four days walking match at Petrolia: Chamberlain's 309 Miles. Lark's 290 Miles. Spillaker's 285 Miles. Cox's 275 Miles. Kinney's 265 Miles. Chamberlain was the successful contestant, averaged 92 1/2 miles a day, and Spillaker, 91 1/2 miles. If either of them can do that rate for two days more, he should enter for the coming international contest at New York.

ALL the testimony goes to show that the boy Willie Anderson, who murdered his three relatives at Waynesville, Ohio, was in a semi-dazed state of mind from the reading of blood-and-liquor literature. All his most admired heroes were infamous scoundrels and criminals, for whom the assassination of a few people would be only an exhilarating recreation. He had some evidence, although by no means conclusive, that he must have been under the influence of some other lunatic like himself, as there can be conceived no possible cause or motive for the deed.

DR. WALKER'S Abdominal Corsets, at Ritter & Ralston's. The Pittsburgh Telegraph tells how a restaurant keeper got rid of the flies that infested his place. The doors and windows were closed and a train of very fine gauze, made of fine muslin, was stretched across the spaces between the stripes were carefully painted with molasses. In an incredible short time the flies were all dead, and the place was again open for business. The flies were so numerous that they were a great annoyance to the proprietor, and he was obliged to keep the doors and windows closed, and a train of very fine gauze, made of fine muslin, was stretched across the spaces between the stripes were carefully painted with molasses. In an incredible short time the flies were all dead, and the place was again open for business.

WHEN our buying Gents' Furnishing Goods drop in at Charles R. Grieb's. In Pennsylvania, before the adoption of the new Constitution, which was accomplished against the most strenuous opposition of the Rings and the monopolists, the scheme of a regular business, the Legislature passed them in, making them, for four terms, as corporations, and granting privileges and powers to almost every description of business, and all of them, as "chartered corporations." It was a perfectly well known that from certain persons at Harrisburg and Philadelphia a charter could be bought for a large sum of money, and that the charter would be used for the purpose of incorporating a railroad to the moon. From this source came the "Credit Construction Company," which was incorporated in California and Texas, and in California they have the "California Pacific," a gigantic corporation with immense capital, and arms reaching to the Pacific coast from Oregon to Arizona. It has not only a monopoly of the through trade from the East, but the local trade of all the Territories; and, as usual, it has seized nearly all the facilities of business, including wharves, ferries, and all other facilities. It began under a local charter granted by the State to four or five men, who were willing to be partners in this corporation, and in return for certain enumerated privileges, but, like the giant unworked from the bottle, it grew so large that it was necessary to enlarge its charter, and it is now the property of the five kings of to-day, with the Pacific coast under their feet.

Centreville Items. —Ford Peters contemplates reading law in Butler. —Quite a number of our farmers have their corn cut. —Mac Gill returned home from the West last week. —The Presbyterian Sunday School enjoys a celebration this week. —Mr. Frank Clifton and Miss Lola Riddle were married on the 11th. —There will be communion in the U. P. church on the coming Sabbath. —There will be a religious conference in our village with music for the past two weeks. —Len. McQuiston puts a new roof on his house, in connection with other improvements. —The school in Centreville will certainly be the handsomest one in town. —It now seems certain that Franklin street will be sufficiently wide to allow of the rapidly increasing trade to and from the station. —Bert Baker is preparing for the construction of a new house on Water street. It will be the first residence ever built on that street. —A large party of our young girls picked at Mabley's Falls last Friday. This is the first party of the kind that has visited the falls in the past month. —Mr. Henry Wick will presently remove from the farm to a new residence here, and then again take up his residence with us on the Wick farm, which he has purchased. —The citizens of Centreville are much interested in the matter of the proposed extension of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and we believe incapable of a mean or unfair action. We were not for the fact that one of our countrymen is a member of the most honorable body in the State, and we believe it to be a patriotic duty to support the extension of the road. We say again that the gentlemen connected with the management are gentlemen of honor, and we have the most confidence in their integrity and in their intention to carry out to the letter the good faith all that they advertise to us.

Latest Spinning Dodge. The Girard (Pa.) Cosmopolitan gives the following particulars of an interesting swindling case. On the 24th of July a stranger who gave his name as Johnson Miller was arrested at the instance of a Mr. Wiswald, of McKean township, and brought before Squire Ball for trial for swindling. Mr. Wiswald was approached some weeks ago by a stranger named Hall, who solicited to be made a subscriber for a book entitled "Secret of Wealth," or something of the sort, and succeeded in obtaining his order and his signature to some paper. A few weeks flew by and the above mentioned Miller appeared and demanded of Mr. Wiswald pay for three dozen copies of the book at the rate of $2.00 per copy, or $120 in all. Mr. Wiswald, of course, protested against paying for what he never had any idea of ordering, but Miller presented an order for three dozen books with Wiswald's signature attached to it, and demanded the money on receipt of which he would give him an order to have the books delivered to him at the railroad freight office. Wiswald still demurring, Miller threatened to sue him in the Supreme Court, and with other dire consequences. Still Wiswald would not shell out, but came to Girard and consulted Hon. George H. Cutler in the matter. The latter promptly advised him to swear out a warrant for Miller's arrest, which he did, and the sharper was arrested and brought before Squire Ball for a hearing. The evidence in the case warranted the binding over of Miller in the sum of $200, but finding no one that would go his bail he made overtures to Wiswald to settle, which the latter, rather than have anything more to do with the matter, at last consented to. Miller giving up all the papers against Wiswald, paying him $20 and all costs and attorneys' fees, and then he was released. So in this case, at least, the dodge proved a losing speculation.
