WANTED! EVERY ONE TO KNOW THAT B. L. FAHRENBERG'S is the most efficient remedy for the public for the cure of Coughs, Colds, &c.

It is from slight colds, which most people deem of but little importance, and neglect, that many serious diseases arise. Neglected colds soon pass into the acute stage, and if prompt and efficient remedies are not used, in many cases become chronic or confirmed Bronchitis.

It is especially adapted in the cure of children, on account of its mild effect, and it contains nothing that would injure the most delicate child.

But a single trial will convince you, and by all dealers. Trial Size 25 cts. Large bottle $1.00.

HAYES TO CONGRESS.

THE MESSAGE.

The President's message is a long document, much of which is of no particular public interest. The principal topics treated by the President are the financial operations of the fiscal year, the reform of the civil service, the suppression of polygamy, the fisheries and the Indian policy of Secretary Schurz.

The President congratulates Congress on the successful execution of the resumption act. Since the 1st of January, United States notes have been redeemed in coin, but the demand has been comparatively small, and the voluntary deposit of coin and silver in exchange for notes has been very large.

The excess of the precious metals deposited or exchanged for United States notes over the amount of United States notes redeemed is about $40,000,000. The resumption of specie payments has been followed by a very great revival of business. With a currency equivalent in value to the money of the commercial world we are enabled to enter upon an equal competition with other nations in trade and production.

The increasing foreign demand for our manufactures and agricultural products has caused a large balance of trade in our favor, which has been paid in gold from the 1st of July last to November 15th, to the amount of $53,000,000. Since the resumption of specie payments there has also been a great and gratifying improvement of the public credit.

The subject of civil service reform is next discussed, but the President has nothing new to say. He speaks of the grave evils which result from the present system, and goes over the same ground as in his message last year. He also recommends that Congress make the necessary appropriation for the resumption of the work of the Civil Service Commission.

Our relations with foreign countries have continued peaceful. With Great Britain there are still unsettled questions growing out of the local laws of the maritime provinces and the action of provincial authorities, deemed to be in derogation of rights secured by treaty to American fishermen.

The coinage of gold by the Mints of the United States during the last fiscal year was $40,956,912. The coinage of silver dollars since the passage of the act for that purpose, up to November 1st, 1879, was $45,000,850, of which $12,700,344 have been issued.

THE SUPPRESSION OF POLYGAMY.

The President calls attention to polygamy in Utah, and says the law for its suppression has been decided by the Supreme Court to be within the legislative power of Congress, and binding as a rule of action, for all who resided within the Territories.

There is no longer any reason for delay or hesitation in its enforcement. It shall be firmly and effectively executed. If not sufficiently stringent in its provisions it should be amended. In aid of the purpose in view, I recommend that more prompt and more searching methods be prevented, as well as punishing, this crime be provided.

The President says that the elections of the past year, though occupied only with State offices, have not failed to elicit, in the political discussions which attended them all over the country, new and decisive evidence of the deep interest which the great body of citizens take in the progress of the country towards a more general and complete establishment, at whatever cost, of universal security and freedom in the exercise of the elective franchise.

He appeals to the intelligence and patriotism of the citizens of every part of the country, however much they may be divided in opinion on other political subjects, to unite in compelling obedience to existing laws aimed at the protection of the right of suffrage. He urges Congress to supply any defects in these laws which he deems it wise to remedy, and which it is within its power to remedy, and which it is within the co-operation of the Executive and legislative authorities of the States in this great purpose.

The subject of civil service reform is next discussed, but the President has nothing new to say. He speaks of the grave evils which result from the present system, and goes over the same ground as in his message last year. He also recommends that Congress make the necessary appropriation for the resumption of the work of the Civil Service Commission.

HOW THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD IS INSPECTED.

The annual inspection of the Pennsylvania railroad by the executive officers of the company began October 22nd, the inspectors traveling in four special trains. The observations made consist of an engine drawing a hotel and dining room car, pushing a "gondola," that is, a low, open platform car, with seats raised in tiers, the superintendents occupying the first train, the civil engineers the second, the road supervisors the third, and the general foreman the fourth.

The message concludes with urging a generous policy toward the District of Columbia.

Our method of treating the Indian tribes seems to be compounded of all other methods. Like the Quakers we treat them; and unlike the Quakers we never observe the treaties. Like Spaniards we put them to the sword as rapidly as we can out of greed for their lands and the minerals they are supposed to contain; but unlike the Spaniards we do it by human authority under the flag of the United States, and not in the name of God and under the flaming cross.
