That "Medal of Honor."

The Pittsburgh Times with great zeal and heat protests against this paper's belittling Mr. Quay's services during the war.

The Times has made no effort and has not the least disposition to detract from the glory, military and otherwise, which justly belongs to Senator Quay.

On the contrary, the eulogium which the Quay Press is pronouncing upon the military services of the services and sacrifices in the war of the rebellion met our hearty concurrence, so far as they are not exaggerated, silly or absolutely false.

Mr. Quay's military career is disclosed in the official reports in Washington. The Times has made no effort and has not the least disposition to detract from the glory, military and otherwise, which justly belongs to Senator Quay.

Mr. Quay has chosen to pose as the soldier candidate. One of the documents issued by his literary bureau is devoted entirely to the glorification of the military career.

It claims in its behalf that the "soldiers of the Keystone State should have at least one of their number in the United States Senate." His "medal of honor," procured from General Meade, is prominently featured in the Senate and able to procure favors, is paraded in this pamphlet as proof that his services in the Union cause in the war of the rebellion were specially distinguished and meritorious.

It is not a new question, the spontaneous gift of the Government, made soon after the services were rendered, instead of having only been obtained only as the fruit of special solicitation twenty-five years after the fact.

We have never questioned Mr. Quay's courage. In civil life certainly he has proved that he possesses it in an eminent degree. But Pennsylvania is full of soldiers of the war, but thousands times stronger claim upon the Government than Mr. Quay's medals, and yet have not the smallest prospect of receiving them.

Senator, let him be a real soldier and not one who, for reasons which may be entirely honorable to himself, was obliged to retire to a civil life after doing staff duty in a single battle.

The record shows that Mr. Quay's claims for recognition for distinguished military services are a humbug; that his part in the war was unimportant as it was brief; that getting a medal for those services has been absurdly overpaid, and that he can on the strength of his medals, obtained make no legitimate claim on the support of Union soldiers whose services, sufferings, and battles were protracted through all the years of the war, yet are without the political influence to crowd from a campaign awarded to this side of a single battle—Philadelphia Press.

THE CAMERON—QUAY COMBINE stands in the way of every honest ambitious young Republican in this State. Enter your protest against it to-morrow.

Do you want a political boss or a statesman to represent you in the United States Senate. If you prefer a statesman your first duty is to down the political boss who stands in the way, for you can accomplish nothing now and never will until he is downed.

A POLITICAL BOSS is out of place in a legislative hall; practical politics and statesmanship are opposite mental qualifications.

If the proposition were that "The Moon is made of green cheese," it would not be more absurd than that a man should be elected to represent a man who has shown himself unfit for and indifferent to his duties. We are at present misrepresenting in the U. S. Senate by two giants in practical politics and minor statesmanship.

SCENE—CAPITOL—WASHINGTON. Election Quay—Say? Can you direct me to the Senate Chamber. Hunter Cameron—No, sir; I'm something of a stranger here myself.

While Quay is running over the State setting up his political fences, Dalzell sticks to his seat in the House and reveals on the floor of the House the results of the McKinley tariff law. His speech during the Tariff debate of last Friday was the feature of the day, and was commented upon by every important daily published in the country next day.

The tariff question is one of Governmental policy, a business question which is capable of merit and calm logical discussion. It is not a new question, gentlemen uncovered his ignorance in declaring, "one created by the necessities of war and continued by favoritism," but a system reaching back into the history and capable of being tested and weighed in the light of its experience.

There is no man within the sound of my voice who does not know that a revenue tariff would strike down American manufactures in this country.

Mr. Dalzell followed with a similar array of figures in regard to cotton ties, binding twine, etc., and closed as follows: "Mr. Chairman I have said nothing, except incidentally, against the McKinley tariff, as it is not a tariff, but a system of protection."

Corporations and Candidates.

Mr. Quay's advocates in this region are making a special effort to convince the people that Mr. Dalzell is a corporation candidate because he is practicing his profession in Pittsburgh he was engaged to attend to the law business of some railway corporations.

It is also a fact that in the House of Representatives Mr. Dalzell has been one of the ablest and most efficient opponents of some of the big corporations that have tried to get their hands into the public treasury.

That Threshing Machine.

Butler, Pa., April 5, 1892. To the Republican Voters of Butler Co.—Gentlemen—Some person or persons unknown to me has circulated a report throughout this county that in an attempt in a threshing machine and not on the battlefield, I feel my duty and take this method of contradiction.

I feel my duty and take this method of contradiction. I was wounded at the second battle of Bull Run, Va., on August 29, 1862, in what was known as the railroad cut, and my arm was amputated on the battlefield on August 30, 1862. I herewith most respectfully submit the following report.

The following is the affidavit of Col. Maxwell, STATE OF PENN., J. S. MERCER COUNTY.

Personally appeared before me Norman Maxwell, being by my duly sworn according to law, do depose and say, that I am personally acquainted with Harlan Book, who was a Corporal in Company E, 10th Reg. Pa. Vol. (Round-heads), and that he was wounded by a gun shot wound in the left arm, causing amputation, at the second battle of Bull Run, Va., on August 29, 1862, and that said Harlan Book was a faithful, brave and honorable soldier.
