

GIFT GIVING

Time only a short distance away. It's more satisfactory to buy early, as the assortment is now complete. The tendency toward giving useful presents brings thoughtful buyers to this store.

A COUCH

Adds to the appearance of your room, convenient and comfortable to the user, and most of them have a red or green velvet covering. Prices run up to $85.00 others $25.00, $30.00, $36.00 and $100.00. Have a full size, well made Couch at.....$8.50

Rocking Chairs

One in Golden Oak or Mahogany finish, nicely polished, cobbler seat, full size. Suitable for a woman and nice enough for a parlor. Price.....$4.00

Morris Chairs

For a man this is one of the most comfortable chairs made; but you should get a good quality. Ours are all strong and durable; back can be adjusted to a reclining position. One with a Golden Oak frame, nicely polished, reversible velvet cushions, costs.....$9.75

Writing Desks

In solid Mahogany or Oak. One in Oak, with a French leg and pattern door costs.....$5. Another in Oak or Mahogany finish, suitable for a boy or girl. Price.....$3.50

Campbell & Templeton

Bicke's!

Our stock of winter Boots and Shoes is larger than ever before. Large stock of GOKES' JAMES TOWN SHOES. High cut hand-made Box-toe Boots and Shoes for drivers. Our line of school shoes is complete. Copper toe shoes for the boys and high cut waterproof shoes for the girls. We wish to call your special attention to our extremely large stock of felt and rubber goods which we bought early and are prepared to offer you some great bargains.

DECEMBER PRICE LIST

- ### LEATHER GOODS
- Ladies' good kip shoes.....$8.00
  - Ladies' fine Dongola pat. tip shoes.....$8.00
  - Ladies' genuine kangaroo calf shoes.....$1.25
  - Men's high cut 3 toes box toe shoes.....$1.25
  - Men's good kip boy toe boots.....$2.25
  - Men's waterproof oil grain shoes.....$2.00
  - Children's warm lined shoes.....$1.00
  - Ladies' fur trimmed Juliet slippers.....$2.50
  - Old Ladies' warm lined shoes.....$1.75
  - Boys' good every day shoes.....$1.00

FELT and RUBBER GOODS

- Men's felt boots a nd overs.....$1.75
- Men's German socks and overs.....$1.50
- Men's high cut 3 toes box toe shoes.....$1.25
- Men's good kip boy toe boots.....$2.25
- Men's knit boots and overs.....$2.25
- Men's buckle arctic.....$1.50
- Ladies' croquet rubbers.....$1.50
- Men's croquet rubbers.....$1.50
- Old Ladies' warm lined shoes.....$1.75
- Boys' good every day shoes.....$1.00

TO THE TEACHERS.

We extend a cordial invitation to the teachers to visit our store. Make this your headquarters during your visit in Butler. We take pleasure in getting the best possible results for the money expended. Not cheap goods, but goods as cheap as they can be sold for and made up properly. If you want the correct thing at the correct price, call and examine our large stock of Heavy Weights, Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats, and the latest Styles, Shades and Colors.

JOHN BICKEL

128 SOUTH MAIN STREET, BUTLER, PA.

STRIVING FOR EFFECT!

Men don't buy clothing for the purpose of spending money. They desire to get the best possible results for the money expended. Not cheap goods, but goods as cheap as they can be sold for and made up properly. If you want the correct thing at the correct price, call and examine our large stock of Heavy Weights, Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats, and the latest Styles, Shades and Colors.

G. F. RECK,

142 North Main Street, Butler, Pa.

I Found Just What I Wanted at PAPES, JEWELERS.

The above is what you will say if you come to us to buy a present for Xmas. We have a very large and beautiful stock of all kinds of GOLD, SILVER and EBONY novelties. All the newest designs and best quality at the very lowest prices. If you have any old gold or silver remember we take it just the same as cash.

PAPES' Jewelers.

122 S. Main St.

"DIRT DEFIES THE KING." THEN SAPOLIO IS GREATER THAN ROYALTY ITSELF.

WANTED SEVERAL BRIGHT AND honest persons to represent us as Managers in various sections of the country. $2500 a year and expenses. Straight, bona-fide, no more, no less salary. Position permanent. Our references, any bank in any town. It is entirely office work. Complete stamped envelopes. Enclose self-addressed, Dept. 3, Chicago.

Subscribe for the CITIZEN

FEEL THE CHANGE.

Handreds Voluntarily Endorse a Scientific Product

A Statement by a Well Known Citizen Who has Found Great Relief by Using It.

The great good that Morrow's Kid-ne-oids are doing in Pennsylvania for all forms of kidney and urinary disorders is being daily told by our citizens. All who use these ne-oids contain no disease, dizziness, nervousness and general debility give hearty expression of the quick relief they obtain.

Mr. Wm. M. Valey, Clerk at Masters Robinson & Harley's hardware store, New Kensington, Pa. says: "For years I have suffered with disordered kidneys. I had a dull heavy pain in the small of my back and in stooping or lifting I would have a sharp shooting pain just over the kidneys. I was so nervous I could not sleep. I also had urinary troubles of an alarming nature. Morrow's Kid-ne-oids were recommended to relieve me, so I decided to try them. After using a few boxes for a few days the pain stopped and my nerves are strengthened. I will continue to use Morrow's Kid-ne-oids as long as I live. Yellow Tablets and sell at fifty cents a box at all drug stores and at Kerkel & Grohman's drug store.

Mailed on receipt of price. Manufacturer, Morrow & Co., Chemists, Springfield, Ohio.

Butler Savings Bank

Capital and Profits - $50,000.00
Surplus and Profits - $170,000.00

JOS. L. PURVIS, President
J. HENRY BROWN, Vice-President
W. M. CAMPBELL, Jr., Cashier
LOUIS B. STEIN, Treasurer
DIRECTIONS - Joseph Purvis, J. Henry Brown, W. D. Brandon, W. A. Stein, J. S. Campbell.

The Butler Savings Bank is the Oldest Building and Loan Association in the County. General banking business transacted. Loans, deposits, and all other services. Interest on all deposits. We will receive promptly for any business. Interest paid on time deposits.

THE Butler County National Bank, Butler, Pa.

Capital paid up - $100,000.00
Surplus and Profits - $130,793.95

Jos. Hartman, President; J. W. Ritts, Vice President; C. A. Bailey, Cashier; J. G. McCarlin, Asst. Cashier.

General banking business transacted. Loans, deposits, and all other services. Interest on all deposits. We will receive promptly for any business. Interest paid on time deposits.

Braun's Pharmacy.

Cor. 6th St. and Duquesne Way, Pitsburgh, Pa., L. D. Telephone 2542.

Wholesale and Retail.

Importer and Jobber of Drugs, Chemicals, Perfumes, Soaps, Brushes, Etc.

The only house west of New York carrying a full line of Meyers' Grease, Paints and theatrical goods.

Physicians' Prescriptions

Compounded Day or Night by "Registered Pharmacists" only.

W. F. Braun.

H. O. HAYS. L. H. HAYS.

PUT YOUR RIG UP AT Hays Bros.

Livery and Sale Stable.

Best Accommodations in Town. West Jefferson street, Butler, Pa. People's Phone 109, Bell's Phone 59

L. S. McJUNKIN,

Insurance and Real Estate Agent.

Pearson B. Nace's

Livery Feed and Sale Stable

Wick House, Butler, Penn'a.

The best of horses and first class rigs at low prices. Best accommodations in town for permanent boarding and transient trade. Special Stable Room for 65 Horses.

A good class of horses, both drivers and draft horses available on hand and for sale under a full guarantee. All horses bought on proper authority.

PEARSON B. NACE.

Telephone No. 219.

IN HIS STEPS.

"What Would Jesus Do?"

By Charles M. Sheldon.

CHAPTER I.

For hereto was ye called because Christ, that ye should follow his steps.

It was Friday morning, and the Rev. Henry Maxwell was trying to finish his Sunday morning sermon. He had been interrupted several times and was growing nervous. The words were away and the sermon grew very slowly toward a satisfactory finish.

"Mary," he called to his wife as he went up stairs after the sermon. "If any one comes to this I wish you would say that I am very busy and cannot come down unless it is something very important."

"Yes, Henry. But I am going over to visit the kindergarten, and you will have the house all to yourself."

The minister went to his study, and shut the door. In a few minutes he heard his wife go out.

He settled himself at his desk with a sigh of relief and began to write. His text for Peter II. 21.

"For hereto was ye called, because Christ also called for you, leaving you an example, that ye should follow his steps."

He had emphasized in the first part of his sermon the atonement as a personal sacrifice, calling attention to the fact of Jesus' death for our sins. He had gone on to emphasize the atonement from the side of example, giving illustrations from the life of Jesus. He had done so to show how faith in the Christ helped to save men because of the nature of his sacrifice. He had done so to show that the necessity of following Jesus in his life and example.

He had just put down "43) Example" when he heard a knock. He went to answer them in his usual way, but the bell rang sharply. It was one of those clockwork bells and always went off as a knock might if it tried to strike a nail.

Henry Maxwell sat at his desk and frowned a little. He made no movement to answer the bell. Very soon it rang again. Then it rang a third time. He went to one of his windows, which commanded a view of the front door.

A man was standing on the steps. He was a young man, about twenty years of age, with a very red face. He was looking at his watch. "Looks like a tramp," said the minister. "I suppose I'll have to go down."

He did not finish the sentence, but went down stairs and opened the front door.

There was a moment's pause as the two men looked at each other. Then the shabby looking young man said: "I'm out of a job, sir, and thought maybe you might put me in the way of getting some thing."

"I don't know how to help you, but I can't give you anything. I'm sorry I can't give you something to do here. But I keep only a horse and a cow and do the work myself."

The Rev. Henry Maxwell closed the door and heard the man walk down the steps. As he went up into his study he saw from his hall window the man going slowly down the street. He was holding his hat between his hands. There was something in the figure so dejected, homeless and forsaken that the minister felt a moment's qualm. He looked at his watch and when his wife came in two hours later the sermon was finished, and the loose leaves were gathered up and neatly tied in a bundle, ready for the morning's service.

"A queer thing happened at the kindergarten this morning, Henry," said his wife while they were eating a meal. "You know, I went over with Mrs. Brown to visit the school, and just after the games, while the children were at the tables, the door opened, and a young man came in holding a dirty hat in both hands. He sat down near the door and never said a word, only looked at the children. He was evidently a tramp, and Miss Wren and her assistant, Miss Kyle, were a little frightened at first, but he sat there very quietly, and after a few minutes he went out."

"Perhaps he was tired and wanted to rest somewhere. The same man called here, I think. Did you say he looked like a tramp?"

"Yes, very dusty, shabby and generally tramp-like—not more than 30 or 35 years old, I should say."

"Did you finish your sermon, Henry?" his wife asked after a pause.

"Yes, all done. It was a very busy week with me. The two sermons cost me a good deal of labor."

They will be appreciated by a large audience tomorrow. I hope I'll be able to preach about in the morning."

"Following Christ, I take up the cross and follow him. He has a plan for us, and we must follow his sacrifice and example. He has a plan for us, and we must follow his sacrifice and example. He has a plan for us, and we must follow his sacrifice and example."

IN HIS STEPS.

"What Would Jesus Do?"

By Charles M. Sheldon.

CHAPTER I.

For hereto was ye called because Christ, that ye should follow his steps.

It was Friday morning, and the Rev. Henry Maxwell was trying to finish his Sunday morning sermon. He had been interrupted several times and was growing nervous. The words were away and the sermon grew very slowly toward a satisfactory finish.

"Mary," he called to his wife as he went up stairs after the sermon. "If any one comes to this I wish you would say that I am very busy and cannot come down unless it is something very important."

"Yes, Henry. But I am going over to visit the kindergarten, and you will have the house all to yourself."

The minister went to his study, and shut the door. In a few minutes he heard his wife go out.

He settled himself at his desk with a sigh of relief and began to write. His text for Peter II. 21.

"For hereto was ye called, because Christ also called for you, leaving you an example, that ye should follow his steps."

He had emphasized in the first part of his sermon the atonement as a personal sacrifice, calling attention to the fact of Jesus' death for our sins. He had gone on to emphasize the atonement from the side of example, giving illustrations from the life of Jesus. He had done so to show how faith in the Christ helped to save men because of the nature of his sacrifice. He had done so to show that the necessity of following Jesus in his life and example.

He had just put down "43) Example" when he heard a knock. He went to answer them in his usual way, but the bell rang sharply. It was one of those clockwork bells and always went off as a knock might if it tried to strike a nail.

Henry Maxwell sat at his desk and frowned a little. He made no movement to answer the bell. Very soon it rang again. Then it rang a third time. He went to one of his windows, which commanded a view of the front door.

A man was standing on the steps. He was a young man, about twenty years of age, with a very red face. He was looking at his watch. "Looks like a tramp," said the minister. "I suppose I'll have to go down."

He did not finish the sentence, but went down stairs and opened the front door.

There was a moment's pause as the two men looked at each other. Then the shabby looking young man said: "I'm out of a job, sir, and thought maybe you might put me in the way of getting some thing."

"I don't know how to help you, but I can't give you anything. I'm sorry I can't give you something to do here. But I keep only a horse and a cow and do the work myself."

The Rev. Henry Maxwell closed the door and heard the man walk down the steps. As he went up into his study he saw from his hall window the man going slowly down the street. He was holding his hat between his hands. There was something in the figure so dejected, homeless and forsaken that the minister felt a moment's qualm. He looked at his watch and when his wife came in two hours later the sermon was finished, and the loose leaves were gathered up and neatly tied in a bundle, ready for the morning's service.

"A queer thing happened at the kindergarten this morning, Henry," said his wife while they were eating a meal. "You know, I went over with Mrs. Brown to visit the school, and just after the games, while the children were at the tables, the door opened, and a young man came in holding a dirty hat in both hands. He sat down near the door and never said a word, only looked at the children. He was evidently a tramp, and Miss Wren and her assistant, Miss Kyle, were a little frightened at first, but he sat there very quietly, and after a few minutes he went out."

"Perhaps he was tired and wanted to rest somewhere. The same man called here, I think. Did you say he looked like a tramp?"

"Yes, very dusty, shabby and generally tramp-like—not more than 30 or 35 years old, I should say."

"Did you finish your sermon, Henry?" his wife asked after a pause.

"Yes, all done. It was a very busy week with me. The two sermons cost me a good deal of labor."

They will be appreciated by a large audience tomorrow. I hope I'll be able to preach about in the morning."

"Following Christ, I take up the cross and follow him. He has a plan for us, and we must follow his sacrifice and example. He has a plan for us, and we must follow his sacrifice and example. He has a plan for us, and we must follow his sacrifice and example."

IN HIS STEPS.

"What Would Jesus Do?"

By Charles M. Sheldon.

CHAPTER I.

For hereto was ye called because Christ, that ye should follow his steps.

It was Friday morning, and the Rev. Henry Maxwell was trying to finish his Sunday morning sermon. He had been interrupted several times and was growing nervous. The words were away and the sermon grew very slowly toward a satisfactory finish.

"Mary," he called to his wife as he went up stairs after the sermon. "If any one comes to this I wish you would say that I am very busy and cannot come down unless it is something very important."

"Yes, Henry. But I am going over to visit the kindergarten, and you will have the house all to yourself."

The minister went to his study, and shut the door. In a few minutes he heard his wife go out.

He settled himself at his desk with a sigh of relief and began to write. His text for Peter II. 21.

"For hereto was ye called, because Christ also called for you, leaving you an example, that ye should follow his steps."

He had emphasized in the first part of his sermon the atonement as a personal sacrifice, calling attention to the fact of Jesus' death for our sins. He had gone on to emphasize the atonement from the side of example, giving illustrations from the life of Jesus. He had done so to show how faith in the Christ helped to save men because of the nature of his sacrifice. He had done so to show that the necessity of following Jesus in his life and example.

He had just put down "43) Example" when he heard a knock. He went to answer them in his usual way, but the bell rang sharply. It was one of those clockwork bells and always went off as a knock might if it tried to strike a nail.

Henry Maxwell sat at his desk and frowned a little. He made no movement to answer the bell. Very soon it rang again. Then it rang a third time. He went to one of his windows, which commanded a view of the front door.

A man was standing on the steps. He was a young man, about twenty years of age, with a very red face. He was looking at his watch. "Looks like a tramp," said the minister. "I suppose I'll have to go down."

He did not finish the sentence, but went down stairs and opened the front door.

There was a moment's pause as the two men looked at each other. Then the shabby looking young man said: "I'm out of a job, sir, and thought maybe you might put me in the way of getting some thing."

"I don't know how to help you, but I can't give you anything. I'm sorry I can't give you something to do here. But I keep only a horse and a cow and do the work myself."

The Rev. Henry Maxwell closed the door and heard the man walk down the steps. As he went up into his study he saw from his hall window the man going slowly down the street. He was holding his hat between his hands. There was something in the figure so dejected, homeless and forsaken that the minister felt a moment's qualm. He looked at his watch and when his wife came in two hours later the sermon was finished, and the loose leaves were gathered up and neatly tied in a bundle, ready for the morning's service.

"A queer thing happened at the kindergarten this morning, Henry," said his wife while they were eating a meal. "You know, I went over with Mrs. Brown to visit the school, and just after the games, while the children were at the tables, the door opened, and a young man came in holding a dirty hat in both hands. He sat down near the door and never said a word, only looked at the children. He was evidently a tramp, and Miss Wren and her assistant, Miss Kyle, were a little frightened at first, but he sat there very quietly, and after a few minutes he went out."

"Perhaps he was tired and wanted to rest somewhere. The same man called here, I think. Did you say he looked like a tramp?"

"Yes, very dusty, shabby and generally tramp-like—not more than 30 or 35 years old, I should say."

"Did you finish your sermon, Henry?" his wife asked after a pause.

"Yes, all done. It was a very busy week with me. The two sermons cost me a good deal of labor."

They will be appreciated by a large audience tomorrow. I hope I'll be able to preach about in the morning."

"Following Christ, I take up the cross and follow him. He has a plan for us, and we must follow his sacrifice and example. He has a plan for us, and we must follow his sacrifice and example. He has a plan for us, and we must follow his sacrifice and example."

IN HIS STEPS.

"What Would Jesus Do?"

By Charles M. Sheldon.

CHAPTER I.

For hereto was ye called because Christ, that ye should follow his steps.

It was Friday morning, and the Rev. Henry Maxwell was trying to finish his Sunday morning sermon. He had been interrupted several times and was growing nervous. The words were away and the sermon grew very slowly toward a satisfactory finish.

"Mary," he called to his wife as he went up stairs after the sermon. "If any one comes to this I wish you would say that I am very busy and cannot come down unless it is something very important."

"Yes, Henry. But I am going over to visit the kindergarten, and you will have the house all to yourself."

The minister went to his study, and shut the door. In a few minutes he heard his wife go out.

He settled himself at his desk with a sigh of relief and began to write. His text for Peter II. 21.

"For hereto was ye called, because Christ also called for you, leaving you an example, that ye should follow his steps."

He had emphasized in the first part of his sermon the atonement as a personal sacrifice, calling attention to the fact of Jesus' death for our sins. He had gone on to emphasize the atonement from the side of example, giving illustrations from the life of Jesus. He had done so to show how faith in the Christ helped to save men because of the nature of his sacrifice. He had done so to show that the necessity of following Jesus in his life and example.

He had just put down "43) Example" when he heard a knock. He went to answer them in his usual way, but the bell rang sharply. It was one of those clockwork bells and always went off as a knock might if it tried to strike a nail.

Henry Maxwell sat at his desk and frowned a little. He made no movement to answer the bell. Very soon it rang again. Then it rang a third time. He went to one of his windows, which commanded a view of the front door.

A man was standing on the steps. He was a young man, about twenty years of age, with a very red face. He was looking at his watch. "Looks like a tramp," said the minister. "I suppose I'll have to go down."

He did not finish the sentence, but went down stairs and opened the front door.

There was a moment's pause as the two men looked at each other. Then the shabby looking young man said: "I'm out of a job, sir, and thought maybe you might put me in the way of getting some thing."

"I don't know how to help you, but I can't give you anything. I'm sorry I can't give you something to do here. But I keep only a horse and a cow and do the work myself."

The Rev. Henry Maxwell closed the door and heard the man walk down the steps. As he went up into his study he saw from his hall window the man going slowly down the street. He was holding his hat between his hands. There was something in the figure so dejected, homeless and forsaken that the minister felt a moment's qualm. He looked at his watch and when his wife came in two hours later the sermon was finished, and the loose leaves were gathered up and neatly tied in a bundle, ready for the morning's service.

"A queer thing happened at the kindergarten this morning, Henry," said his wife while they were eating a meal. "You know, I went over with Mrs. Brown to visit the school, and just after the games, while the children were at the tables, the door opened, and a young man came in holding a dirty hat in both hands. He sat down near the door and never said a word, only looked at the children. He was evidently a tramp, and Miss Wren and her assistant, Miss Kyle, were a little frightened at first, but he sat there very quietly, and after a few minutes he went out."

"Perhaps he was tired and wanted to rest somewhere. The same man called here, I think. Did you say he looked like a tramp?"

"Yes, very dusty, shabby and generally tramp-like—not more than 30 or 35 years old, I should say."

"Did you finish your sermon, Henry?" his wife asked after a pause.

"Yes, all done. It was a very busy week with me. The two sermons cost me a good deal of labor."

They will be appreciated by a large audience tomorrow. I hope I'll be able to preach about in the morning."

"Following Christ, I take up the cross and follow him. He has a plan for us, and we must follow his sacrifice and example. He has a plan for us, and we must follow his sacrifice and example. He has a plan for us, and we must follow his sacrifice and example."

IN HIS STEPS.

"What Would Jesus Do?"

By Charles M. Sheldon.

CHAPTER I.

For hereto was ye called because Christ, that ye should follow his steps.

It was Friday morning, and the Rev. Henry Maxwell was trying to finish his Sunday morning sermon. He had been interrupted several times and was growing nervous. The words were away and the sermon grew very slowly toward a satisfactory finish.

"Mary," he called to his wife as he went up stairs after the sermon. "If any one comes to this I wish you would say that I am very busy and cannot come down unless it is something very important."

"Yes, Henry. But I am going over to visit the kindergarten, and you will have the house all to yourself."

The minister went to his study, and shut the door. In a few minutes he heard his wife go out.

He settled himself at his desk with a sigh of relief and began to write. His text for Peter II. 21.

"For hereto was ye called, because Christ also called for you, leaving you an example, that ye should follow his steps."

He had emphasized in the first part of his sermon the atonement as a personal sacrifice, calling attention to the fact of Jesus' death for our sins. He had gone