A CORDIAL RECEPTION.
Two Masked Train Robbers Held Up a Train Near Los Angeles. They Did Damage, but Were Defeated.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 4.—The Los Angeles express was held up by two masked men, five miles south of Modesto, at a quarter to nine o'clock last night. Engineer Noff and Fireman Wallace were compelled to surrender the train, which was then taken to the boiler with engine and boiler. When Conductor Hoche appeared with a lantern the robbers ordered him back and fired a shot at him, which was returned by Hoche. Detectives Len Harris of Los Angeles and Lawson were on the train, and Harris advanced on the robbers, opening fire on them at about two or three miles away. The robbers fired three shots at Harris, wounding him in the neck and over the left eye. A bomb was exploded under the express car, breaking the door, but the shooting by a brakeman frightened them off, and they left without booty. Harris was taken to Merced, where he is lying.

Mrs. Lillie Carouthers Arrested, Charged With Firing the Glenwood Hotel.

She Gives Bond and Denies the Charge. Tried to Shuffe With a Morphine Movement—Court-house Bonds Sold at Par.

Special to the Gazette.
DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 4.—Mrs. Lillie Carouthers has been arrested, charged with the alleged firing of the Glenwood hotel, which burned here last Monday night. The following affidavit is what caused the arrest to be made:
THE STATE OF TEXAS,
COUNTY OF DALLAS, J. W. B. Patton, sewing machine salesman, works for the New Home company, been in Dallas about one month. For the last two weeks I boarded at a house run in the name of Mrs. Lillie Carouthers. Have known her only since I first went to board there. She is not inclined to me in any way in the world. No funds of mine are in her possession. Has not been my intention to leave town. I did not intend to leave Dallas last night. I don't remember to have written or expressed any intention to leave town. I did write a letter to-day expressing an intention to leave town to-night, wrote it to Mrs. Carouthers. She may have thought I was going to leave last night. I wrote the letter about 1 p. m., September 3. I can't remember the contents of the letter. Said something in the letter about Georgia. Don't think there was anything else. I did not forget that I asked her to send me $20. I did do this. I had reason to believe she would send it. She had told me if I was mad up she would let me have money at any time. She may have thought that she may have been suspected of burning her house and she knew I was the first to discover the fire. I thought this would induce her to send me the money. She has since the fire offered me money to leave Dallas. Did not say how much. She told me she thought I might be a witness against her in case the fire was investigated. I told Mrs. Carouthers the next day after the fire that I saw her come out of the room in which the fire originated a few minutes before the fire. It was near 12 o'clock at night, and it was about 10 o'clock when she came back and told me she had a cousin, she said, Ed Hawthorn, who boarded there, on one night of the fire. This conversation about my leaving town occurred at a boarding house on the corner of Main and ... street, to which she was moved on the night of the fire.
W. B. PATTON.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this September 4, 1911.
Ed S. LADEWALLE, J. P.
Mrs. Carouthers gave bond in the sum of $500.

She talks freely about and denies nearly every statement made in Patton's affidavit. Says she never talked to Patton alone over five minutes in her life, and that he never asked her for money in his life until yesterday afternoon, when a man named her a letter from Patton, stating that he was in trouble and wanted $50 from her. The man who brought the letter was Mr. Royce. I refused to give him the money and he left. The whole matter is a mystery, and interesting developments are looked for.

For each of the three nights past there has been in the city hospital a female patient, each who had taken morphine with suicidal intent. All were fallen women, and are alive and well to-day.

The election for chief of the fire department, which was held in the city hall, has had a candidate in the person of P. H. Golden. Mr. Golden has received the endorsement of a number of labor organizations, and will probably make a strong race.

Out of the $200,000 in Dallas county court-house bonds issued some time ago, $175,000 worth have been sold at par, and there is a deal on foot for the remaining $25,000 that will probably be made within the next few days.

TERRITORY COURTS.
Some Suggestions to the Ardmore Bar Association Which Meets Monday.

ARDMORE, I. T., Sept. 3, 1911.
Editor Gazette:
The 'Ardmore bar association' has under consideration a bill to be presented to the next session of the congress of the United States, in which bill it is sought to provide relief for the courts, and a plan of allotment of lands in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes.
The committee appointed for the purpose reported the bill at the last meeting of the association, when after being discussed at some length was passed and set for the next meeting, on the evening of the 7th instant, when it will be more fully discussed and amended if deemed necessary, and if I cannot be present, I desire to submit through your columns, simply, without attempting elaborate argument, the following suggestions:
1. Make a single shot on the subject of increased jurisdiction in the territorial courts. Let the bill for relief of the courts embrace this subject and nothing else, and let it provide for full jurisdiction, an increase in the number of judges and necessary court officers, providing for the location and terms of the courts.
2. The allotment of Indian lands is necessarily attended with many embarrassing complications. But the question of citizenship as affecting the rights of the disfranchised, as well as others claiming citizenship in the several Indian tribes or nations, must be legally determined and settled as a condition precedent to allotment, for the Federal government will scarcely allot and set apart in severalty the lands before determining the legal rights of the people who are to receive them.
3. While the ultimate right of sovereignty over these people (Indians), and over the soil of the Indian nations is with the general government, yet the government should, without doubt, hesitate to undertake the settlement of these questions unless and until the Indians in their national councils ask or indicate what they desire should be done in respect to the citizenship of the great body of the American people, and the march of civilization, enlightenment and national prosperity will not be long held in check. I think, however, in such an element among the Indians they should not be surprised very soon to find themselves under the wheels of the advancing car of progress.
In conclusion I will add that we are now undergoing the formative process of government-making, the embryonic state that should and which I think cannot last long. All legislation at this time looking to the formation of good and permanent government should tend to a system of unification of laws to intimate in a convention for the adoption of a constitution and admission into the Union as a state.
Rather than that the present state of affairs should be continued it is to be hoped, any necessary legislation should be passed in a session of congress will make short work of the whole matter, and by a short and sweeping enactment, in proper terms extend the territorial government of Oklahoma over the entire Indian Territory, making all its inhabitants subject to the same laws alike. Then allotment and all other questions would soon be settled. We have a precedent for this course in the case of Kansas. More than one-third of its territory—the southern border—was occupied by Indians, who claimed the land, but not until territorial government was established over them was the state admitted in the Union and the land matter adjusted with the Indians afterward. Should it please congress to take such steps with the Indian Territory, and in harmony with the spirit of former legislation relating to this subject make it at once a part of Oklahoma, and very soon she would shine forth resplendent among the most beautiful states of the American constellation of states.
Editor, I am respectfully,
WILLIAM H. BRAGAN.
