to Destroy Underbrush.

It is the best time to cut underbrush, &c. In the June number of the FARMER, the above question is proposed by "A Subscriber," to which I propose to give an answer, combining both a little experience and a little theory. Having been brought up on a farm, I used to hear much said by farmers in regard to the "best time" for cutting bushes, &c., and remember well the many uncertainties that existed, and the various opinions given on the subject. Some recommended to cut them at one season, some at another. Some regard the "moon," others the "signs" &c. I also remember that the same kind of underbrush, if cut at one season, would start again and grow luxuriantly; but if cut at another, would be completely "used up." I have also within the last few years, had an opportunity to notice the same facts: and the conclusion to which I have arrived is, that different shrubs or bushes, trees, &c., may be cut at different seasons of the year. Some are killed by cutting as early as the first of July; others by the first of August; and so on till October or even November. The rule is this: "Cut any plant, or shrub, about the time it is done growing for the season, and its destruction is almost certain." If cut before this time, it will generally start again the next year. The exceptions are few. So much for the facts, now for the theory.

1st. In the spring of the year, all roots are vigorous. Hence, if a tree or shrub be cut at this time, or while in full growth the roots will send forth a new set of shoots. The exceptions are—1st. Evergreens, as pine, hemlock, spruce, &c.—2d. Those that have a copious flow of sap in the spring, as maple, birch, &c. Yet even some of these, will start again if cut soon after the buds have opened, i. e., after the spring flow of sap has ceased; except in case of old or large trees, in which the roots appear not sufficiently vigorous or the evaporation from the new stump too rapid to allow the formation of new shoots.

2d. In autumn, when a shrub or tree has done growing for the season, the active energies of the roots cease, being, perhaps, somewhat exhausted by its summer action. If then, the bush or tree be cut after it has done growing, but while the stem and leaves are fresh and full of sap, the vital force of the roots will rarely be found sufficient to cause a new growth; but if left till the foliage is dead or dying, the energies of the roots are restored by the returning of the sap, and are ready for action again as soon as the season of growth shall return. Hence, too early or too late cutting will be equally unsuccessful.

Cut your underbrush, then, at the time above specified, and it will rarely start again. If it does, the growth will appear stunted or sickly, and soon die of its own accord, or a second cutting at a proper time will insure success. The same rule applies to all other plants, as Canada thistle, milk-weed, &c., &c., with greater or less certainty, according to the greater or less vital force, or tenacity of life, peculiar to the roots of each kind of vegetable.

The "proper time" can easily be determined by observing whether new leaves continue to appear at the ends of the prominent branches. When the end leaves are of a certain size, and a bud is seen at the end of the branch, then, soon after, is your time to cut. If deferred long beyond this time, or till the leaves begin to turn yellow, or fall, cutting will be of little use, as the roots will be strong for another start on the opening of a new spring.

Balky Horses.

Balky, or jibbish horses, are not only a source of great annoyance, but too frequently endanger the property and peril the lives of their owners. An East India gentleman one day took his seat in one of the omnibuses, in London, but at the time of starting all the efforts of the driver proved unavailing, owing to a balky horse attached to the vehicle. The poor animal became more restive in proportion to the tortures inflicted upon him by the driver, and several other whip-men who assisted on the occasion. The street became filled with spectators, and the interception of other carriages.—Great danger was to be apprehended. The East India gentleman above referred to, suggested to the driver and his assistants, that if he would apply the East India plan of fastening a cord to the horse's fore-foot, and cause a person to pull forward, the animal would start right away. The suggestion was received with contempt. However, after all other efforts failed, a long cord was attached to the animal's fore-foot, and the moment the man gave a strong pull the horse started off as if nothing was the matter. The philosophy of the case, seems to be that the animal, thrown off the center of gravity by the propulsion forward, is taken by surprise and obliged to start. Try it.—Rural New Yorker.

Saving Seed from Garden Vegetables.

The first vegetable peas or snap beans that appear, save for seed; the first stalks of okra that shows a pod, let it all go to seed; the first cucumber, squash or melon, save for seed. In this way, we may succeed in getting much earlier vegetables than by following the usual method of taking the refuse of all our garden crops for seed. Our egg plants might be brought into bearing much sooner, if we would save the first for seed. Who can stand it, with all the long year's dearth of delicious morsels, to save the first roasting ear of tomato, that may appear for seed? and yet if we would bring forward the whole crop two or three weeks earlier, it must be done. Let it be a settled maxim of the gardener—the first and best of everything for seed.—Soil of the South.

The Mullein Stalk.

It is computed that one full-sized mullein stalk, will produce from four to five hundred thousand seeds! It is also believed that seed of the mullein will remain in the earth for centuries, and still retain all its vegetating qualities—until a favorable exposure, when it will grow. This fact seems proven, in the case of digging a canal, somewhere near Old Chester, where there was found a strata of rich dark loam, many feet below the then surface of the ground—out of this rich vein grew the mullein! Geologists may explain it.—German-town Telegraph.

TO MAKE PRIME VINEGAR.—A correspondent of the Ohio Cultivator vouches for the merit of the following recipe for making vinegar: Take and mix one quart of molasses, three gallons of rain water and one pint of yeast. Let it ferment and stand for four weeks, and then will have the best of vinegar.

PREPARED BY DR. C. M. JACKSON,
120 Arch Street, Philadelphia.
Their power over the above diseases is not equalled by any other preparation in the United States, as the cures attest, in many cases after skillful physicians had failed.
These Bitters are worthy the attention of invalids. Possessing great virtues in the treatment of diseases of the liver and lesser glands, expelling the most searching poisons in weakness and affections of the digestive organs, they are without a peer, certain and pleasant.
That this medicine will cure Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, no one can doubt after using it as stated. It acts specifically upon the stomach and liver; it is preferable to calomel in all bilious diseases—the effect is immediate. They can be administered to female or infant, with safety and reliable benefit at any time.

Look well to the marks of the Genuine. They have the written signature of C. M. JACKSON upon the wrapper, and his name blown in the bottle, without which they are spurious.

STORR'S CHEMICAL HAIR INVIGORATOR.
THIS delightful and popular article is the best ever prepared for the hair which long experience and scientific research has produced, either as a restorative for the hair, or its beneficial effects in all the diseases to which the human hair is liable. It will impart to the roughest and coarsest hair the most beautiful appearance, entirely cleansing it from all impurities.
But while we assert that it is the best article for the toilet of those who wish to retain the hair in all its youthful

LUXURANCE AND BEAUTY.
It must not be forgotten that in all diseases of the hair or scalp, such as the falling of the hair, dandruff, pimples, or sores on the scalp, &c., it is precisely the article which has given decided satisfaction every instance where it has been used.
Its operation in cases of baldness is peculiarly active, so that, in numerous cases, where other remedies have been tried in vain, STORR'S CHEMICAL INVIGORATOR has superseded the ornaments of art, by reinstating, in full plenitude, the permanent gifts and graces of nature. It is possessed of a character wholly differing from the Oils, Unctions, Restoratives, &c., which are now so numerous foisted on the public, for baldness, gray hair, &c.
Storr's Invigorator has now been tested for years, and its efficacy has been proved by thousands. Every year its reputation and sales have increased, until more of it is consumed annually than of any other preparation for the hair ever offered to the American public. It is compounded on strictly scientific principles, and the proprietor will stake his reputation on its efficacy.
Its extraordinary cheapness places it within the reach of the humblest family, and its conceded value insures it a place on the most luxurious toilet.
