

Agricultural.

Late Sown Vegetables.

Some of the latest delicacies for table use may be obtained from quite late sowings. We can speak most positively in regard to turnips. Both the round and the flat turnip may be sown at any time in July or August, and we have known it to come to considerable maturity in a season in which there were no early frosts, when sown in the first week of September. Special pains should be taken to enrich the soil, for in this way we secure two objects—the more rapid growth of the plant, and a sweeter and more tender vegetable. We suppose it is generally well known that the more rapid the growth of this and several other vegetables, the more mild and tender they are to the taste. Cabbages, onions, radishes, spinach, cauliflower, are all much more delicate in flavor, and agreeable to the palate when grown freely and rapidly than when their growth is stunted or slow. Cucumbers and celery may be also sown in the above named, as being much milder when grown rapidly than when of slow growth. Some of these may be raised late in the season, as well as turnips, so as to supply the table with the delicacies of spring and summer until quite late in the fall and winter.

By the end of July and in the course of August, there will be vacant places in garden and field, which will be good economy to sow with turnips. There will be, at all events, the pea and early potato ground; these and such other patches as may be sown with round or flat turnips, and thereby, we will be making provisions both for our family and our stock. What we do not use for the table will be well relished by our cattle, and cows with a tolerable supply, will not dry up so early as cows that have no green feed.

Prospects of the Hog Crop.

To most of our readers the prospect of the crop of hogs at the West is a matter of much interest, as upon that may depend the number fattened by small farmers in New York, and in other grain growing and stock raising States. In a recent issue of the Cincinnati price current, we find the following information with regard to the prospect at and near St. Louis, which is supposed to be reliable: "The farmers are prepared for low prices, for hogs this coming season. The crop will be larger than was ever known through Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri. I have heard of no contracts having been made as yet. Packers are of opinion the market will open here at less than $4. The corn crop is good, and I am told by parties from different sections that hogs will be much cheaper than last year."

How to Dry Peaches.

Do your readers know how to dry peaches?—Take those of the best quality, just as they are ripe enough to eat, have them, remove the stones, and sprinkle over them, in the hollow from which the pit was taken, a little nice sugar; dry them in a brick oven after the bread, &c. is withdrawn. They are far better than if dried in the sun, retaining their aroma and flavor, and besides are totally free from insects. Prepared in this way, from peaches fully ripe, they need no cooking, but are simply soaked out in cold water. All the sugar they require (ranging of course with the variety) is added while drying. Peaches thus dried and prepared, are only inferior to the fresh fruit, of which they retain the flavor in a remarkable degree. If you prefer, take them not quite so ripe, and peel the fruit, but the flavor is not so good as when fully ripe, and is dissipated more in the process of drying.

Duration of Posts.

The result of forty years' experience and observation, with me, is that common fence posts set in the ground green, and butt end downwards will last, in a sandy loam, about ten years. The same set in a like situation, inverted, will last fifteen or eighteen years. The same timber, (and wood of the same quality) will last more or less, according to the nature of the soil. I speak of good white chestnut or white oak. Timber cut in the old of the moon in February, will not be eaten by worms, will not snap in burning, and will last much longer made into posts than when cut at any other time. I have chestnut and white oak posts standing well that were set twenty-eight years ago.—N. E. Farmer.

Rural Axioms.

It is as cheap to raise one ton of grass or clover as a ton of burdock or pig-weed. It costs no more to raise a hundred bushels of cider apples, or ten barrels of Vinous or Bartlett's, than the same quantity of hot water, and to avoid a plank road, toll of sixpence, loses just two and sixpence by the operation.

The laborer who wastes half an hour of time in working all day with a dull saw, because he cannot give a shilling or afford an hour to get it sharpened, will waste at least twenty-five cents per day, or six or seven dollars per month.—Albany Cultivator.

TO MAKE ROSE-WATER.—Take two pounds of rose-leaves, place them on a napkin tied round the edges of a basin filled with hot water, and put a dish of cold water upon the leaves; keep the bottom water hot, and change the water at the top as soon as it begins to grow warm. By this kind of distillation, you will extract a great quantity of the essential oil of the roses by a process which cannot be expensive, and will prove very beneficial.

A SECRET FOR A FARMER'S WIFE.—While the milking of your cows is going on let your pans be placed in a kettle of boiling water. Turn the milk into one of the pans taken from the kettle, and cover the same with another of the hot pans, and proceed in like manner with the whole mass of milk, and you will find that you will have double the quantity of sweet and delicious butter. Try this, dairy woman and write us the result, will you?

SUBSTITUTE FOR CREAM.—Well beat the yolks of two eggs and strain them into a pint of new milk, add two lumps of sugar and place it on a stove, stirring very carefully in one direction until the whole is the consistence of cream. Used for tea, coffee, or fruit.

It is said that chickens fed on onions will never be troubled with the gapes, and a correspondent of the Northern Farmer says that equal parts of lard and cayenne pepper will cure the pipp. These experiments are at least worth trying.

Put a piece of assafetida about the size of a pea in each hill of cucumbers, and they will not be troubled with the striped yellow bug.
