Real "Detektatiff" Arrives.

A real "detektatiff" at work has interested the loungers in the Square the past two days. This "detektatiff" arrived in town Monday and his mission evidently is a secret one, as most cases are, on which sleuths are working. It appeared to be imperative to him that he quietly inform a few men and youths of his occupation, under the promise of secrecy, which he quickly did. Naturally the promises were held sacred and yesterday the disciple of Old King Brady and Old Cap Collier had an interested and admiring audience whenever he appeared on the street. There have been absolutely no crimes committed in town since the "detektatiff's" arrival. The reporter knows he's a sleuth because just 56 seconds after they both leaned against the same soda bar in the corner drug store the stranger confided his profession.

Father George Marshall, rector of St. Peter's Roman Catholic church in North Walpole, Rev. Father Dominick Melmer, curate of the North Walpole parish, and Rev. Father Slatery of Charlestown. Musical numbers were rendered and refreshments were served.

Great Discovery.

"Some of the grandest discoveries of the ages," said the great scientist, sonorously, "have been the result of accidents."

"I can readily believe that," said the fair lady "I once made one that way myself."

The great man blinked his amazement.

"May I ask what it was?"

"Certainly," replied the fair one. "I found that by keeping a bottle of ink handy you can use a fountain pen just like any other pen—without all the trouble of filling it."
