STOLE A HORSE AND BUGGY.

Two Boys Take Possession of Mr. B. P. Cattenhead's Property.

Friday afternoon Mr. B. P. Cattenhead, who resides in the Western Branch Drawbridge, drove to the city to see his wife, who is sick at the home of her brother, Mr. Ambrose Williams, on South Street. On arriving at his destination Mr. Cattenhead alighted and left his horse and buggy standing in front of the residence. Along came two colored men, who saw the vehicle standing unattended, and in they jumped and drove away. They drove a good time at some one else's expense.

When Mr. Cattenhead came out and saw that his property had disappeared he at once set about tracing the men who had appropriated it. His search proved fruitless, and although he gathered information from time to time as to the direction taken by the men, he could not catch up with them.

His horse and buggy, however, was returned to him yesterday morning, the men who had taken it having been at the store of Mr. M. W. Dowdy that night at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Cattenhead succeeded in learning the names of the men, and he is warm on their trail.

COURT STREET SPECIAL MUSIC.

Special music at Court Street Baptist Church to-day: Morning Service—Duet, "The Song the Angels Sang" Mr. W. H. Dashiell and Miss Florian Martin.

Evening Service: Anthem, "The Joyful O Earth," Quartette, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," Solo, "The Lord's Prayer," Ian Martin, H. A. Hutchins, J. A. Duncan.

Tenor Solo, "Dream of Paradise," by James A. Duncan.

SPRING HAS COME.

When we say this we do not mean that the time for the usual warm weather is at hand, but that Mr. W. C. Nash, the wide awake dry goods man, has received a full line of spring goods, such as shirts, collared shirts, light raincoats, plain linen for waists, etc. See a list of his prices and the quality and quality of the goods. Call and see him and you will be convinced of what he says is true.

A SPECIAL SALE.

Under the above head Messrs. L. T. Acaine & Co. tells about their special sale of embroideries, percales, plain, dainties, etc., dress skirts, black and colored, from $1 to $1. They are also agents for McCall's patterns. These gentlemen are well known in the business, having had several years' experience, and try to please all who favor them with a call. Their place of business is 723 High Street, near Ellingham.

Sam Wieg to Annie M. Wieg, lot with buildings and improvements, west side Dinwiddie street, between Glasgow and North; $25.

A NOBLE VIRGINIA WOMAN.

One of the Kind Identified with Virginia's History.

Major J. E. Wright, of this city, returned yesterday morning from Baltimore, whether he would be present at the committal to their last resting place of the remains of his aged and sainted mother, which took place last Wednesday evening, the funeral services being conducted from the residence of his niece, Mrs. O. G. Topping, No. 1807 Covington street. Thus has passed away another of the ancestry of that brave, sturdy, loyal and patriotic race, which aided in laying the foundation for the glory of the Old North State, and for the independence of our nation. Mrs. Wright was the wife of Wesley A. Wright, deceased, who was the originator of the world-famed Durham smoking tobacco, from which has sprung the thrifty town, Durham, N. C., and from which untold wealth has been accumulated by succeeding manufacturers. She was the daughter of Major John M. Holland, of Franklin county, this State, who served his country in the legislative halls for twenty years in succession, and who served on what was known as the Magistrate's Court for thirty years, and rose to the rank of Major in the war of 1812. She was the granddaughter of Capt. O. P. Holland, who commanded a company in the Revolutionary war for independence. She was the mother of three children, seventeen grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren. Her husband and two sons entered the Confederate army and were in almost from start to finish, the only surviving member of her immediate family, Major J. E. Wright, being only 13 years of age at the time of his enlistment for the Southern cause. She was a loving, faithful wife and mother, and a devoted Christian. As she lived so she passed away, in complete faith that on the glorious resurrection morn she will awake in the image of her Redeemer.

CHIEF ENGINEER SMITH MAY STAY

If Naval Personnel Bill Passes He is Ours.

THINGS SAID ABOUT HIM

A Strong Portsmouth Delegation Urges His Retention at This Yard

He Desires to Under a White Longer With Us—What He Has Done For Our People the Subject of High Tributes.

Apropos the transfer of Mr. J. A. B. Smith, the efficient and very worthy chief engineer of the Steam Engineering Department of this navy yard to another post of duty, from the fact that he has reached the limit of time (3 years) of shore duty the following information from Mr. John J. King, president of the City Council, is particularly interesting:

Mr. King, in company with Mr. C. H. Herbert, Hon. Geo. E. Bowden and Mr. L. P. Slater, when in Washington, called on the Secretary of the Navy and very earnestly urged the retention at this yard of Chief Engineer Smith, according in a very impressive manner several very important reasons for the request.

Secretary Long listened to the arguments advanced by his distinguished visitors with close attention, after which he referred them to the Chief of the Bureau of Steam Engineering, which is Chief Engineer Melville.

This gentleman also received the delegation with marked courtesy and after hearing the mission of the gentlemen, said that Chief Engineer Smith, having served out his term of duty as chief of this navy yard, had already been ordered to sea, and that Chief Engineer Milligan, of the Oregon, had been ordered to succeed him here. Chief Melville stated that he could not now countermand these arrangements, and that although he personally desired to retain Mr. Smith at this yard, he could not do so without interrupting the schedule of the service.

MAY YET BE RETAINED.

But, said the head of the bureau, the passage of the naval personnel bill will necessitate a complete change in the schedule of service followed by the Navy Department, and that great measure now being before Congress on its passage, with fair prospects of becoming a law, will make it necessary to transfer and other changes matters of uncertainties. If the bill fails to be endorsed, said he, Mr. Smith will certainly be detached. In fact, to all intents and purposes, has been from the Portsmouth, Va. navy yard and ordered to the ship of his choice, either the New York or the Oregon, that privilege being given him by this department. But Mr. King, however, stated that your gentlemen have expressed their confidence in Mr. J. A. B. Smith will continue on duty at your navy yard at the head of the Steam Engineering Department, where he has done more for the benefit of our navy than any other man who has ever been at the head of its Engineering Department, which, you know, is saying a great deal.

WHAT RICHMOND TIMES SAYS.

The Richmond Times yesterday, in commenting on the efforts of the delegation to have Chief Engineer Smith retained at this yard, said:

"Secretary Long can do no better than comply with their request, for Mr. Smith in the past few years has done much in keeping up the excellent standard of the navy yard as an experienced machinist, and in the years since has proved a valuable man in his branch of the service."

"He has been closely identified with the management of our navy yard, and while at the Cramps' in Philadelphia, and at the Columbian Iron Works of Baltimore, where, under his most competent and constant supervision the machinery of the District and Montgomery was splendidly operated."

"The importance of the Portsmouth yard cannot be overestimated by Secretary Long, and it would be a most appreciable recognition of the efforts of the South in showing that we have no grant to these Virginians their request for the retention of Chief Engineer Smith."

"The exceptional ability of Mr. Smith, combined with his other qualifications as a man and officer, is recognized in Virginia, and we trust Secretary Long will waive any obstacles and permit him to continue his excellent work in the Portsmouth yard."

Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY.

Three meetings will be held at the Y. M. C. A. this afternoon. At 4 o'clock Rev. Nelson P. Dame will speak to men only on an important theme. Mr. Albert G. Gifford, speaker and a large audience is sure to greet him. The song and prayer service, lasting for thirty minutes, will be an interesting and helpful feature.

The meeting for boys will begin at 3 o'clock. The White and Red choirs will sing. This is an enjoyable feature of this service.

The Bible Training Class will meet at 5 o'clock. Subject for the afternoon, "Jesus and the Centurion."

All men, and strangers particularly, are invited to attend these meetings.
