NOT WORK OF DREYFUS.

NOT WORK OF DREYFUS.

Louis Havet, a member of the Institute and the professor of the College of France, furnished further expert evidence. He said the conclusions which he had reached after an examination of the bordereau from a standpoint of grammar, terminology, vocabulary and syntax enabled him to definitely declare that it was absoutely impossible for the bordereau to be the work of Dreyfus, but that it was certainly the work of Esterhazy, who used tracing paper. The letters exchanged between Gen. Gonse and Col. Picquart relative to Esterhazy were read as they were published, Gonse, in these communications, urgod caution, while Picquart repited that unless he acted quickly they would be overwhelmed.

M. Labori pointed out that during Ficquart's interviews while urging caution Gen. Gouse never mentioned the alleged confession of Dreyfus.

GONSE TRIES TO EXPLAIN.

Gonse Tritles TO EXPLAIN.

Gen. Gonse tried to explain this by saying he advised Picquart to separate he two cases, saying Dreyfus had been concluded and they could not reopen the question of his guilt or innocence, but the General said he told Picquart he ought to investigate whether they were other traitors.

Grantinuing, General Gonse said:

"When a man intends to publish and

When a man intends to publish another's letter he asks what the writer's manling was. That is but fair, But, rithouf doing so, Plequart handed my rithouf doing so, Plequart handed my letters to M. Scheurer-Kestner without curious his opened letters afterwards France. The information was accepted as pure gold. When I read the bordereau I was shocked." (Prolonged excitement in court.)

M. Labort: "How does General Delaye explain the words in the bordereau Some interesting information."

Geheral Deloye: "Great heaven! Yes; it was increasing information-information affecting the covering of troops. Why, it was of the greatest possible value."

Counsel asked Major Hartmann to give an opinion on this point, and the Major pointed out that if even the writer of the bordereau was a "master hand" and "Seigneur" he was ignorant of artillery matters.

General Mercler then reappeared in the witness, box and attempted to refute Major Flartmann's arguments. He, accounted for the use of the expression 'hydraulic brakes' in the bordereau by the fact that the Germans used the expression to designate similar brakes.

NOT WORK OF DREYFUS.

General Gonse and Col. Picquart then had an exchange of words concerning M. Bertillon's conclusions.

PICQUART SPEAKS AGAIN,

Col. Jougust: "In what form did M. Bertillon communicate the result of his examinations?"

Col. Picquart: "Verbally on two occasions. As regards General Gonse's letter, I handed them to a lawyer when I understood that I was the object of abominable intrigues, and when I received from my former subordinate, Henry, while in Tunis, a threatening letter which had been forwarded with the assent of Generals Gonse and De Boiselffre. Col. Picquart remarked that he brought the secret dossier to General Gonse ismultaneously with the border-to-the subordinate of the border-to-the probabilities of the innocence of Dreyfus.

GONSE OPENS LETTERS

M. Labori asked if Gen. Gonse knew of the plot hatched against Piequart, and if he knew that letters addressed to Piequart at Tunis were opened at the War Office, and the General admitted that a letter was opened in the Intelligence Department in November. He added that suspicious letters were always handed to him by Lieutenant Colonel Henry, so that he (the witness) might report to the Minister of War on them.

. Labori: "To whom was the letter addressed?

tien. Gonse: "I do not know; no doubt to the chief of some department." Col. Picquart: "It was addressed to me personally. GUIDED BY SUSPICION.

Labori: "Does Gen, Gonse know that the words in the letter in question were used for the purpose of fabricating a telegram intended to destroy the value of the petit bleu?" Gen. Gonse admitted that the expres-

The letters were seized it was be-they were addressed to Picquart head of the department, and it hought they might relate to offi-aties. He added that Picquart's i were only opened when they are suspicious.

He would have prevented it if he had been consulted, but he did not believe there was a plot against Picquart. Henry desired to have fresh proof against Dreyfus, "though fresh proof was not received."

THE COURT SAVES WITNESS. M. Labori protested against such a statement and asked which document of the dossier implicated Dreyfus.
Colonel Jouanst refused to allow the question. Here General Roget reappeared on the scene and amid the keenest alten-tion of all described the forgery pro-ceedings against Picquart, as resulting from his (the witness') "discovery that erasure had been made in the petit bleu."

DREYFUS BORROWED A MANUAL. M. De Fond Lamotte, a former artil-M. De Fond Lamotte, a former artil-lery officer and now an engraver, was the next witness. He testified that he was a probationer simultaneously with Dreyfus. The witness said that in Au-gust, 1894 he borrowed the figure man-ual from Col. Picquart and kept it as long as he liked.

AN IMPOSSIBILITY.

AN IMPOSSIBILITY.

M. De Fond Lamotte also stated that the probationers were informed by a circular dated May 15, 1894, not to attend the manocuvers. The object of antedating the bordereau, the winess added, was to make it a prior date to that of the circular. It had since been attempted to attain the same object by upted to attain the same object by post dating the circular.

Witness also pointed out that for Dreyfus to have been able to write the bordereau it would have been necessary for him to have the figure manual in his possession before the manocuvers, which was impossible. The charge, therefore, collapsed

That Dreyfus did not write the bordereau, the witness was absolutely certain.

The court then adjourned.

LOOK OUT! GENERAL ROGET!
Paris, Sept. 2.—La Lanterne to-day said that Col. Schneider, the Austrian military attache here, has telegraphed to the Austrian Charge d'Affairs to ask General Roget in his reply to Picot's testimony in the Dreyfus courtmartial was intended as an insult. If it was, then the Charge d'Affairs, on behalf of Schneider, was to demand an apolof Schneider, was to demand an apol-ogy from General Roget or satisfaction by arms.

The second day out from San Francisco the soldiers, principally recruits for various regiments in the Philippines, discovered that a considerable portion of the beef aboard for their consumption was the tinned beef which has acquired the name of "embalmed beef," and trouble arose immediately.
