TOOK THEIR PICTURES.

And Lawyer for the Alleged Post Office Robbers Got Angry.

Office Robbers Got Angry. Mr. Miller Asked Judge Waddill to Have Negative Returned—Charged Marshal and Post Office Inspectors With Violating Constitutional Rights of Prisoners—Case on Trial.

The postoffice inspectors who are assisting in prosecuting the alleged Cape Charles postoffice robbers in the United States Court here, and the United States Marshal, were accused of violating Constitutional law by Hugh G. Miller, counsel for the alleged robbers.

It is idle to speculate on possibilities, but we may cite a few facts that speak for themselves. Virginia Beach is easily accessible by rail and water to every section of the country.

TO CLEAR SIDEWALKS. Rough Draft of Ordinance Tentatively Agreed Upon.

All Swinging Signs are to be Torn Down Before the First of Next Year, and Only Suspended Awnings Will be Allowed—No Goods on Sidewalks.

The street committee of the council held a special meeting at noon yesterday to take under consideration the ordinance offered by the finance committee.

WANTED HIM CENSURED. Mr. Miller wanted the court to ensure the Marshal's office, and the court's language not being strong enough to suit the attorney, he made a formal motion that the court order the negatives taken of the prisoners delivered up.

CONTENTION UPHOLD. Judge Waddill delivered a short opinion upholding Mr. Miller's contention, but said that it was manifestly too late for a remedy to be applied.

EVIDENCE AGAINST THEM. One or two witnesses were examined in the case yesterday afternoon. The Government has thirty-two witnesses in all, and District Attorney Allan claims to have positive evidence of the guilt of the three prisoners.

PINKERTONS WERE AFTER THEM. Word was received from Cape Charles yesterday that the Fidelity and Casualty Company, of Baltimore, had employed Pinkerton detectives to investigate bank and postoffice robberies through Virginia and both the Carolinas.

Another Yacht Race. The Virginian-Pilot is very glad to learn there will be another yacht race in Hampton Roads, as the last one was unsatisfactory in many ways.
