The committee also recommended that an expert accountant be appointed by the committee to investigate the office of the late City Collector Aylett R. Woodson. This accountant is to receive $100 per month for six months, or $600.

CHARTER GRANTED.

The Industrial Life and Accident Insurance Company.

A charter was granted yesterday by Judge Wellford, incorporating the "Industrial Life and Accident Insurance Company."

A Recently Outrage.

Last Saturday evening as the Richmond and Albemarle passenger train was being backed down from the shops to the passenger sheds, foot of Eighth street, a number of men jumped on the rear of the train and forcibly pulled off the man in charge of the air brakes and then demolished so that it could not work.

JEFFERSON ON RELIGIOUS LIBERTY.

Autograph Letters From Him Presented to Richmond College.

Yesterday Mr. Charles E. Belvin presented to Richmond college two original letters written by Thomas Jefferson on the subject of Religious Liberty. These letters were written by Jefferson in the early days of the Republic, when the Church of England was predominant in Virginia, and was inclined to persecute the sects who differed from it in religious opinions.

Police Notes.

In the Police Court yesterday, Ryley Brown was charged with stealing one dozen eggs, and with creating a disturbance in the bar-room of R. A. Paul. He was required to give surety in the sum of $200 for twelve months for his good behavior.

Special Meetings in May for Men.

During the month of May, the Sunday afternoon meetings at the Young Men's Christian Association promise to be particularly interesting, worldliness, drink, gambling and licentiousness, representing the chains that bind young men, will be the evils spoken against. Only men will be admitted.

A Large Chorus of Male Voices Will Sing.

A large chorus of male voices will greatly add to the singing which will be given by the choir of the R. S. M. Valentine Rev. William H. Atwell will conduct the meeting on next Sunday, which will be held in the large hall of the association.

Almost a Serious Runaway.

Two driverless horses attached to an "old fashioned" wagon became frightened at the corner of Fifteenth and Main streets yesterday about noon, and rushed madly down Fifteenth to Cary, down Cary to Seventeenth, where they turned to the left, and then up Seventeenth to Broad, where they were halted by one of the cable wire poles used by the electric car running on either side of it. One of the horses was slightly injured in the left foreleg, and the single-tree was broken which was caused by the team running against the pole. Beyond this, strange to say, no other damage was done.

Face Tobacco Company New York, 37 cents and 39 cents; Boykin, Seldon & Co., Richmond, Va., 39 cents and 28 cents; and Thomas E. Hicks & Co., Clarksville, Va., 27 cents.

LOCAL NOTES.

Mr. Maurice B. Flynn was in the city Monday the guest of a number of gentlemen. During the day he was arrested by Sheriff Winston as an absconding debtor at the instance of the Westham Granite Company on a capias. Mr. Flynn promptly gave bail before the United States Commissioner Mr. William S. Dashiell as bondsman, and left the city for New York. He will return in compliance with the terms of his bail bond. Mr. Flynn is understood to be the endorser of a Mr. Matthias Forbus of Cincinnati, and it was on that account, and not from any personal obligation that the capias was served.

Some mischievous boys tied an old tin pan to a dog's tail on Marshall street near the Medical College yesterday. The dog became very much alarmed, so much so that he started down the flight of steps that leads from the Medical College to the city jail, and making a misstep, fell over on one side, the tin pan at the same time catching a strong hold between the steps. The poor animal was thus left swinging clear of the ground by the end of his tail. He was cut down, and after awhile escaped without further injury.

Dr. Jefferson Kinney, one of the graduates of the Medical college last session, left the city yesterday for a trip to the mountains of Virginia to visit his parents and friends. Dr. Kinney will return to the city in a few weeks and will be found at the City Hospital hereafter, where he fills the vacancy occasioned by Dr. Irvine's leaving.

Yesterday was a day to be remembered by those who had to undergo the trouble of moving. In passing up or down the various streets of the city, wagon after wagon loaded with furniture could be seen either backed up to some one's door or moving slowly along. It's being first of the month no doubt caused all this moving.

Rev. H. M. Wharton of Baltimore, will address a temperance meeting at Old Market Hall next Tuesday night under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and the Good Templars.

Manager R. I. Taylor wishes us to state that hereafter the Opera House will be a place of amusement for gentlemen and their families. No improper or questionable characters will be admitted either at the matinee or at night, and nothing but first-class companies will be engaged to play in the house.

Mr. John G. Scott, son of ex-Vice-Minister Wm. H. Scott, won the first orator's medal of the Jefferson society at the University Monday night. One year ago Mr. Scott won two medals at Washington and Lee.

The City Council has been called to meet to-morrow night at 7 o'clock to consider the ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen at their meeting Tuesday night in regard to allowing the Richmond and Chesapeake Railroad Company to construct a tunnel under Eighth street.

The funeral of the late Miss Williamina Tazewell, whose death in Washington was announced in yesterday's Times, took place yesterday afternoon from the Monumental Church. It was largely attended by friends and acquaintances of the deceased, and the floral offerings were numerous and handsome. The interment took place at Hollywood.

CONFEDERATE GRAVES.

Efforts of the Ladies' Memorial Association to Care for Them.

The Finance Committee of the City Council at their meeting last night decided unanimously to recommend to the Council the appropriation of $500 to the Ladies' Memorial Association to be used in caring for the dead Confederate soldiers, buried in this beautiful city of the dead. All these old soldiers lie in nameless graves. At one time there were many headboards over them, but they were removed and in their place pegs placed in the ground with numbers on them. Most of these have also disappeared. Still the ragged soldier of whom General Lee told General Lord Walsely, "See my men fight. I am never ashamed of them," lie buried here awaiting the trump that will summon them to the eternal camping ground.

At present the graves are level with the soil, and people on Sunday's and other holiday's walk over them as freely as in the walkways.

Of these graves the ladies, the wives and daughters of many who lie buried there, make it their conscientious duty to take care. Money is of course always needed, and this appropriation when passed by the Council will help them a great deal.

On Gettysburg Hill is shortly to be erected a monument to the valor of the grand Virginia division who charged the heights at Gettysburg. On this hill lie the remains of General Pickett, their gallant commander. It is but right that the graves of the soldiers buried around him should also have respect shown them.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Congestion of the Lungs the Supposed Cause.

Last night about 8:30 o'clock, Richard H. Smith, a negro, aged about 30 years, while walking along Grace street between Monroe and Madison, was suddenly taken sick and fell to the ground. He was taken into the yard of house No. 317 West Grace street, where he died at about 9:15. Dr. Kuryk was called to him and did all possible to prevent death, but without avail.

The coroner was summoned, and Dr. Taylor promptly responded. He learned that the deceased had been suffering from congestion of the lungs, and that this ailment was the cause of his sudden death. The coroner turned the body over to friends who conveyed it to the residence, No. 919 St. Peter's street.

Soon after Smith fell, he said, "I am dying." Why he was walking in that neighborhood, and where he worked could not be learned.

CHANCERY COURT.

A Number of Appointments Made—1 and Causes.

Judge Addison L. Holladay held court yesterday and transacted considerable routine business.

He also decided that the new Code, which went into effect yesterday, was ambiguous in relation to the Commissioners of Chancery of the city of Richmond. The Code and the law says there shall be only six commissioners.

The judge entered an order declaring all the positions of Commissioners in Chancery and Commissioner of Accounts vacant.

He then appointed the following as Commissioners of his Court: William Josiah Leake, Thomas Nelson Page, Archibald W. Patterson, Robert H. Steger, William W. Turpin, and William Ellyson. All of the appointees excepting Mr. Ellyson, are the old commissioners.

Mr. Thomas J. Evans was one of the old commissioners, as well as the Commissioner of Accounts. Colonel Evans wrote a letter to Judge Holladay stating that he did not want to be one of the six Commissioners in Chancery, but would like to retain his position as Commissioner of Accounts. He was accordingly appointed Commissioner of Accounts, a position which he has held for twenty years past, excepting for a short period when the same judge turned him out.

DEAD CAUSES.

Judge Holladay also yesterday struck from the docket of the court about three hundred cases. These were the cases which he instructed clerk Berry to report to him early in April. They were all the cases on the docket of the Chancery Court in which there had been no order entered within the past seven years. All of these causes were listed out by the clerk. A few of them were not ordered struck from the docket, the attorneys interested having seen the announcement in the Times nearly three weeks ago, and having taken occasion to look after them.

Several causes which have not been struck off, are held by the judge in reserve, and will be struck off later unless positive action is taken by the attorneys.

INGALL'S SPEECH.

THE KANSAS POST-BELLUM WARRIOR RENEWS HIS SPLUTTERINGS.

The Senate Gallery Crowded with His Bloody-Shirt Sympathizers—He Again Besmirches McClellan and Hancock, Proceedings of the House.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Long before the Senate met to-day visitors began to arrive, and as early as 10 o'clock a number of people were in the galleries. By noon the crowd had assembled, and every seat in every gallery was taken with the exception of the President's pew and the Diplomatic gallery. In the public and even the Senators' and Members' galleries standing room was difficult to obtain.

The cause of the unusual crowd was the announcement of Senator Ingall's intention to leave the chair and apply vitriol and scourges to Democratic Senators and others who have taken exception to his recent speech on the dependent pension bill.

Senator Voorhees, the special subject of Senator Ingall's wrath, was in his seat, and it was understood that Senator Blackburn would also be on hand and prepared to make any necessary supplement to his speech in reply to Mr. Ingalls.

When the hour of 2 o'clock was announced, the pleuro-pneumonia bill having been laid aside, Mr. Ingalls rose for the purpose, as he said, of submitting some remarks on the President's message.

"Mr. President," he said, "on the 11th of January, 1888, Major General Fitz John Porter wrote a letter from which I will read."

He read an extract from a letter expressing gratitude and appreciation of the expressions of friendship and regard for him by Southern men, and avowing his friendship for Southern men.

With somewhat elaborate allusion of diction the Senator from Indiana had referred to Democratic leaders who had been Union generals.

Recurring to the Fitz-John Porter letter, Mr. Ingalls read with emphasis, and without comment, his assertion that the writer had always been in sympathy with Southern men.

He read McClellan's letter to President Lincoln in favor of a humane method of warfare, etc. He then passed to McClellan as a politician and Presidential candidate. He had accepted the nomination on a platform declaring the war to be a failure. Mr. Ingalls read extracts from newspapers and books declaring the vote for McClellan to have been a Confederate and a disloyal vote, and his support a disloyal support. When Abraham Lincoln was re-elected he resigned his commission and passed into history.

General Hancock was an ideal corps commander, one of the band of military leaders whose name must live forever.

He, too, however, had in turn become tainted with the virus of ambition and had covered political advancement and become the candidate of the Democracy.

Southern men had found in Hancock a man willing to co-operate with them, and from the time of his celebrated order, No. 49 and letter, construing his principles of constitutional law he had for many years been in sympathy with the party, which finally made him the candidate.

IN THE HOUSE.

Mr. Perkins secured to-day the passage of a bill granting the Kansas City and Pacific Railroad company right of way through the Indian Territory.

The House went into committee of the whole to consider the tariff bill, and Mr. McCree, of Kentucky, took the floor. He said the people were confronted by a great public question of a rapidly increasing surplus in the Treasury and useless and burdensome taxation. He urged the Republican party with having defeated every attempt made by the Democrats to reduce taxation. The war taxes still remain, and they are heavier to day on an average than they were during the war. He took exception to some remarks made by Mr. Kelley in his speech a few days ago regarding the condition of the people in Kentucky and proceeded to defend his State.

Mr. McCree was followed by Mr. Foran in a speech against free wool.

FERGUSON'S FUNERAL.

Impressive Services Held in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—The remains of Charles J. Ferguson, the noted baseball pitcher and all-around player, were this evening interred in his late home at Charlotteville, Va., for interment. Impressive religious services were held this afternoon at the residence of Captain Arthur Irwin, with whom the deceased had resided. All the players and directors of the Philadelphia Club were present, and the room was fragrant with flowers. Two large pillows of flowers—one from the members of the club with "Fergy" worked in immortelles, and another from the directors with the inscription, "Philadelphia B. B. C."—were placed on the coffin.

Pitchers Casey and Sanders accompanied Mrs. Ferguson to Charlotteville with the remains. The members of the club, at a meeting to-day, passed resolutions of sorrow at the death of their associate, and the club officially directed the players, while in uniform, to wear a badge of mourning for a period of thirty days. Telegrams of condolence have been received from various club managers. John Ward, president of the Brotherhood, telegraphed that members of the Brotherhood would wear crepe for a period of thirty days. Princeton College students wired that they would send a delegation to the funeral.

On Thursday, 10th instant, a testimonial concert is to be extended to Mr. Frederick Intropoli prior to his departure to Philadelphia. The best vocal and instrumental talent in Richmond will be secured.

THE ALLEGED POISONING CASE.

Are the Patients Guilty or Not?—The Matter Being Investigated.

Dr. Wright, who is a boarder at the house of Mrs. Frank W. Chamberlayne, No. 619 East Grace street, where a number of persons were made sick Monday from eating bread in which arsenic had been placed, said last night that his wife, who was one of the victims, and who had felt the effects of the poisoning as much as any of the others, was getting on well, and that all would recover. He did not know to whom to attribute the crime, but if any had been committed, it had undoubtedly been done by one of the servants of the house, who had probably gotten nipped at something, and took this means to gratify her revenge. Arsenic, he said, is tasteless, and it is so easy to obtain, that if the suspected servant had desired, she could readily have placed it in some dough in the kitchen while the cook's back was turned.

One police officer said to a Times reporter that the deed is thought to have been done by one of the servants, and another said that if the cook did not do it, then "some one put up a job on her."

Police detectives decline to be interviewed on the subject, but the matter is being thoroughly investigated.

He also decided that the new Code, which went into effect yesterday, was ambiguous in relation to the Commissioners of Chancery of the city of Richmond. The Code and the law says there shall be only six commissioners.

CHIEF JUSTICE FULLER.

His Appointment Highly Commended by the Northern Press.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Referring to the appointment of Mr. Fuller to the Chief Justiceship of the Supreme Court the World this morning says: "The nominee is 55 years of age, a native of the State of Maine, a resident of Chicago, and a staunch, active Democrat."

Mr. Fuller seems to be very highly spoken of by his neighbors.

The Sun says: "The Republic is opportunity. These were the opening words of a speech delivered a week ago last night at a banquet in Chicago in honor of the birthday of Stephen A. Douglass. In Mr. Fuller's case the Republic certainly is opportunity. Yesterday President Cleveland nominated him for Chief Justice of the United States, and thus put a name that has not been widely known in the way to become illustrious upon the list which bears the names of John Marshall of Virginia, Roger Brooke Taney, of Maryland, and Salmon Portland Chase of Ohio."

The Star remarks: "He is a leader of the bar of Illinois, a State renowned for legal learning and acumen. He fulfills the geographical consideration and is in the full vigor of 55 years of age. His personal character is endearing."

The Times says: "There is every reason to believe that he will prove the right man for the place."

Says the Tribune: "The first feeling of the country will no doubt be one of disappointment, that the new Chief Justice seems to be under the historic sky. But if he has the learning and the abilities demanded by the post they will soon win recognition, and none will be quicker to give it than the political opponents of the Administration which selected him."

The Herald: "He is a lawyer of experience, in the prime of life, with an admirable reputation at home, which counts for a great deal, and seems to represent no clique or influence which would be served by his advancement to the bench."

THE PAPAL EDICT.

Apparently Little Effect on Home Rulers.

LONDON, May 1.—Now that the gist of the edict of Pope Leo XIII. against the plan of campaign and other methods adopted by the Irish Home Rulers to get even with the landlords and other obnoxious persons has been published, the questions most discussed in connection therewith are, What has the Vatican been promised as the price of the decree? and who has done the promising? Whether these questions can be explicitly answered or not, it is now quite certain that, neither party to the compact, if one exists, will find it an easy matter to carry out its agreement. Apparently the papal edict has had as little effect in altering the determination of the Irish Home Rulers to continue their warfare against the landlords and the English Government in their own way as the protests of the Ulster Orangemen have had in convincing the Parliament that all Ireland was worthy of special legislation for its warfare was situated in the immediate vicinity of Belfast.

Determined to Make Sure of Him.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 1.—Henry Pope, the negro resipit under sentence of death who by one pretext and another has received several respites from the Governor, was last night taken from the jail at Summerville by a mob and hanged. Pope received a new respite on Saturday last.

SHORT TELEGRAMS.

LONDON, May 1.—Cambridge University has appointed the Rev. William Cresswell Donne, bishop of Albany, N. Y., select preacher for the commencement exercises in June.
