

AMONG THE LODGES.

Magic City Encampment No. 33 has received its dispensation to confer the degrees for $6.

Beginning with next Tuesday night, the encampment will meet every week instead of twice a month as heretofore.

Roanoke Castle, No. 6, Knights of the Golden Eagle, conferred the Crusader's degree on one candidate Tuesday night, and received several applications for degrees.

The Red Men got on the warpath Monday night, and, raising a whoop in the wigwam, captured a pale-face who had just been adopted, led him through the rough path in the forest, where he was told that he had received the hunter's degree.

George Hall, of Pamunky Tribe, Pennsylvania, visited Hiawatha Tribe, I. O. R. M., Monday night.

Virginia Castle, No. 2, Ancient Order Knights of the Mystic Chain, met Tuesday night and conferred some degrees. This castle will meet hereafter on Wednesday night in Mountain Dale Hall.

Mountain Dale Lodge, No. 49, I. O. O. F., conferred the third degree on one applicant Thursday night. The meeting was fairly well attended.

The Junior Order of United American Mechanics, Reliance Council, No. 18, met in their new hall on Wednesday night, and Southwest Council, No. 37, met in the same hall on Friday night.

The members of Roanoke Castle, No. 6, Knights of the Golden Eagle, are happy, but not quite so happy as one particular officer.

As this is the first severe blow this body has received since its organization, it is to be hoped that all will survive.

Oseola Lodge, No. 47, Knights of Pythias, conferred the rank of page upon five candidates last Thursday night. On Thursday, Sept. 10, the second will be worked and the candidates to go through at that time will number six or eight.

FAIDLEY DISMISSED.

He Was the Authorized Agent of Richardson.

W. D. Faidley, who was arrested Wednesday night in Staunton on a telegram from Chief Mori, and who was brought back to Roanoke by Officer Rigney, was given a hearing before Justice Williams yesterday.

Complaint was made by E. C. Richardson that Faidley had borrowed $15 and absconded with four gold watches which he had been authorized to sell.

As soon as Faidley was brought back, Richardson intimated before the officers that he did not wish to prosecute the man and witnesses for the defense to that effect were introduced.

After hearing Faidley's statement, which was to the effect that he was the authorized agent of Richardson, and had yet sold none of the watches, Judge Williams dismissed the case and returned the property to the owner.

The costs were charged to Richardson, and Rigney demanded $12 for going after the man.

A Building and Investment Company.

The Iron Belt Investment Company was organized yesterday in the office of the Roanoke Trust, Loan and Safe Deposit Company, with a capital stock of $2,000.

The following is a list of the officers: H. M. Darnall, president; James R. Terry, vice-president; L. S. Davis, secretary and treasurer; and H. M. Darnall, J. B. Terry, W. F. Bryant, M. W. Turner, G. H. Penn, directors.

This company is organized for the purpose of buying and selling real estate and all kinds of improved property in Roanoke and vicinity.

Schanek's Watch Thieves Released. Jim Woodson, the negro arrested by Officer Schanek some days ago on the charge of stealing a watch, was released from custody by Justice Howerton yesterday, the officers having failed to find sufficient evidence to convict him.

Mayor's Court. His honor, Mayor Evans, had but few cases to dispose of yesterday morning. Outside a dismal rain was falling, and the crowd which collected between the narrow walls in expectation of hearing something lively were disappointed.

John Campbell, arrested by Officers Brown and Early on the charge of disturbing the peace, was fined $4.50.

Stephen Young, arrested by Officer Rensch for creating a disturbance, was fined $4.50. Several railroad trespassers were dismissed.

ABOUT CHORUS GIRLS.

Many of Them Come Out of "Most Excellent Families."

It is a mistake to think that the chorus girls all come from the middle and lower classes, says a comic opera manager in Kate Field's Washington. Many of them are of excellent families and are well educated. They become chorus girls for the purpose of acquiring the rudiments of the profession, having, of course, a talent for music. And from the chorus have come many of the most prominent stars in comic opera. I could mention several who are now singing in principal parts who began their theatrical careers in the chorus. The girls are thoroughly drilled, and if they have a real talent for acting it soon becomes known and a chance is given them to see what they can show.

All of their costumes are furnished by the management and they are required only to take care of them. Beginners always object to wearing tights, which of course the chorus must do sooner or later in comic opera. Applicants as a rule ask if they must wear tights. When I tell them "yes" they reply that they could never do that and ask if they may not take some position where they will not be obliged to put on the objectionable garments. I always tell them frankly that I may be able to give them such positions for a short time, but that, if they remain with us, they will eventually be compelled to appear in tights. Sometimes they go away and give up all idea of becoming chorus girls, but more often they conclude to try it.

I believe the American takes the lead as a chorus girl. She looks better, is more intelligent and understands her business thoroughly. The matrimonial chances of these girls are very good. I have known many of them to marry, and marry well. They generally wed outside the profession and leave the stage, and I fail to see why the chances of happiness for a man who marries a chorus girl should not be as good as those of a man who marries a woman in any other profession, provided he exercises as much discretion in his choice. Many of the girls are domestic and possessed of considerable taste, which they display in the decoration of their rooms when on the road. They take out their photographs and knick-knacks, and in a few minutes their rooms look as though they had occupied them for a long time. Some of them are careless, but they are all good hearted and kind.

HOW TIGERS KILL THEIR PREY.

Some Commonly Accepted Theories Exploded by an Intrepid Observer. An observer has been among tigers taking notes and has given the results of his observations to the world. As a general rule, he is inclined to doubt the truth of the commonly accepted theory that the tiger, after lurking in ambush, springs on the unexpected victim, and, tearing savagely at his throat, eagerly drinks his blood. This method of attack may sometimes be adopted, but it is far more often the exception than the rule. In approaching his prey the tiger makes the best possible use of cover, but when further concealment is impossible he will course a deer or other swift-footed animal with a quite extraordinary turn of speed.

According to the account published by the Homeward Mail, a sudden dash of two hundred yards in the open is nothing uncommon, and the author mentions the case of one tigress with whom he says he was at one time quite intimately acquainted, who used to catch hog or deer almost daily on a perfectly open and burned-up plain. Small animals are, for the most part, dispatched by a blow of the paw; but in the case of the more bulky the experienced tiger leaping on the back of his victim grips the neck in front of the withers with his jaws, one forepaw clapping the shoulder of the animal and the other fully extended under the throat. Should he be unable to crush the spine with his jaws he will then jerk the head back violently and thereby break the neck.

"I have examined," he says, "hundreds of animals killed by tigers, and have never yet detected injury to the blood vessels of the throat, but invariably marks attributable to the above-mentioned method." In removing his prey the tiger frequently displays almost phenomenal strength and activity. In one case cited by the author a young tigress leaped upon a perpendicular rock some six feet high with a man weighing nearly eleven stone in her jaws, and on another occasion a male tiger dragged an exceptionally large buffalo up a bank at least ten feet high. Whether these anecdotes accord or not with the individual experiences of other shikaris they are at least an interesting addition to the literature of the subject.

Platinum and Silver on the Sun.

Up to 1888 platinum had not as yet exhibited its presence in the sun's atmosphere. In that year some slight traces of it were found. Recent investigation establishes beyond a doubt the fact that it exists in the "great orb of day," as well as upon the earth. The same investigations, which, of course, were made with the solar spectrum, confirm the belief in the presence of silver and bismuth in the sun also.

THE CATHOLIC ORPHANAGE.

The Matter of Buildings Soon to Take Definite Shape.

The new Catholic Orphanage, which it was decided to locate at Roanoke some time ago, is beginning to attract considerable attention. The building and equipments will cost $75,000, and will be located on the knoll between the Catholic church and St. Andrew's hall.

The matter is still in the hands of Bishop Van Deyver, of Richmond, and just when work will begin will not be made known until some time next month.

A Times reporter called on Rev. Father Lynch yesterday morning, but could get no further information than stated above.

Several prominent Catholics said yesterday that the extension of north Jefferson street was a necessity before this institution could be erected. It was almost impossible to haul material up the steep grade at anything like a reasonable figure.

The advantages offered by Roanoke when the location was selected was the free and magnificent site. It has been examined by the Bishop and promised to be one of the finest in the State.

A Bad Crossing.

Considerable complaint was made a few days ago about the condition of the crossing at the intersection of Campbell and Nelson streets. The city engineer ordered the board walk to be raised out of the water and the mud holes filled up. Foreman Knight completed the work a few days ago. He raised the walk and it bridged matters somewhat, but the mud holes were filled with clay, and yesterday morning the condition of affairs was fearful. Mud nearly eighteen inches deep, and a pond of water had been dammed up on Campbell street in consequence of ill construction of the work.

The Iron Belt's Loans.

The first day of every month is the loaning day of the Iron Belt Building and Loan Association. Last Tuesday, the first day of September, the association granted loans to members at the following point: Greensboro and Winston, N. C.; Hantington and Princeton, W. Va.; North Danville, Wytheville and Roanoke.

It pays to keep posted on Thompson's prices.

As in a Looking Glass.

Last evening Miss Lillian Lewis appeared at Harris' Theater in Lawrence Marston's version of "As in a Looking Glass." The play is too well known to require a recapitulation, and it is sufficient to say that this version is as acceptable as any other that has been presented here. The dramatic construction is good and the climaxes well worked up. Miss Lewis' conception of Lena Despard is conscientious, and her performance indicates a great degree of versatility. In her portrayal Miss Lewis shows a decided improvement over last year, especially in those places where transitions from mirth to pathos or deep feeling are required. The comedy in the first act is well rendered and she carries her audience with her moods, and proves, indeed, a charming Lena. In the heavier parts of the roll Miss Lewis shows a mental power not altogether unexpected, which, combined with a handsome physique, enables her to intelligibly and forcibly portray the strong points contained in the drama. Her work in the third act is not only very strong, but extremely natural and strikingly realistic. The same may be said of the last act, where, a broken-hearted woman, she confesses her sin and abandons herself to desolation and despair. Miss Lewis' entire presentation is considered as excellent, and affords her fine opportunity for the exercise of her undoubted emotional powers. Mr. W. A. Whitecar gives efficient support, and the same can be said of the entire cast, which shows a company above the average. "As in a Looking Glass" will be repeated at the matinee this afternoon and to-night.

Putting up the Bridge.

The first span of the Randolph street overhead bridge was swung up on the piers yesterday evening. About thirty employes of the bridge works were on the grounds directly after noon, and the ponderous derrick which had been erected a day or two ago, was attached to one side of a span and gradually the heavy iron work was drawn into position.

The iron support between the piers was erected in the forenoon. With the force of men now employed, the work will not be long under construction.

All of the iron work is loaded on cars and can be run into position when needed.

Lillian Lewis, supported by a great company of players, will appear at the Opera House on Wednesday evening in her great play, "As in a Looking Glass."
